ALIBI SPURNED IN RUM OUSTER OF POLICEMAN

Miller Is Dismissed for Drinking and Firing Wild Shots.

SUICIDE STORY FAILS TO CONVINCE BOARD

Another Discharged, One Penalized and Two are Released.

WITNESS GIVES NEW VERSION BUT IN VAIN

Father of Eight Gets Off With Warning to Heed Bank Payments.

Two policemen were dismissed, a minor penalty was given another, and a fourth was acquitted of charges by the Police Trial Board yesterday. Another was released with a warning.

R. S. Miller, Third Precinct private, appeared for trial, accompanied by his wife and his year-old daughter, Jacqueline, who frequently called for "daddy" during the hearing. He was charged with intoxication, conduct prejudicial to the good order and reputation of the Police Department, and with firing a pistol unnecessarily and not in line of duty.

His story, substantiated by the man he claimed to have aided and who contradicted his own previous testimony in order to save the policeman, was that he had sought to save from suicide a man whom he knew only as "Mac," a counterman in a lunchroom where Miller stopped occasionally for a midnight snack.

Drinks and Falls Asleep.

"Mac" had told him, Miller said, that his wife lay at the point of death in a hospital and had pleaded that the policeman remain with him because he was afraid to be alone with himself in his despondent mood.

At last, Miller said, he acceded to "Mac's" urging and had gone with the man to a Chinese restaurant and later to "Mac's" apartment, where he planned to get the man to bed and then go on home to his own wife and baby. But "Mac" sat up drinking, Miller said, and after the policeman had taken one drink, he, overcome by the strain of a hard day's work, fell asleep.

While Miller slept, he testified, "Mac" took the policeman's service pistol and fired two shots through the apartment wall, narrowly missing two girls sleeping in adjoining quarters. The noise awoke him, he said, although at the time he thought it was the sound of a chair or table being pushed over.

"Mac" Contradicts Self.

Awakening, he said his first thought was of "Mac," who was discovered to have left the apartment, leaving Miller's service gun on the floor. Just as he was putting the gun in his pocket, he said, two policemen from his own precinct rapped on the door, summoned by complaint of another tenant, and took him to his own home.

"Mac," arrested later, at first declared that Miller had fired the two shots, but yesterday retracted this statement and said that he, and not the policeman, had done the shooting. His first story, he said, had been told under the stress of trying to get himself "out from behind the bars."

Many Character Witnesses.

Miller's attorney, Maurice M. Grudd, made an impassioned appeal in which he declared that although his client possibly was "careless" in leaving his pistol where the man he was supposed to "protect" could get it, and in taking "one drink"—which Miller had admitted—nevertheless the policeman "had only done what any policeman, particularly one who is himself a father, would do when another father pleaded with him that way."

Numerous character witnesses were called by Miller, including a former representative in Congress, an official of the Department of Justice, and several Washington business and professional men. But the Trial Board was not moved, and ordered Miller's dismissal.

The board also recommended dismissal of Policeman J. M. Crawford, of the Ninth Precinct, who was found intoxicated in a speak-easy by two policemen sent there in answer to a complaint.

Father of Eight Freed.

Policeman Thomas Hayes, of the Eleventh Precinct, charged with drinking intoxicating liquor, conduct prejudicial to the reputation of the department and reckless driving was exonerated when he showed that he had not been drinking, and that his alleged reckless driving was done in the line of duty when he was pursuing a speeding automobile which he suspected of carrying liquor. He failed to catch the speeder, however.

The board gave no credence to the explanation of Policeman E. E. Ditto, of the Seventh Precinct, who excused

Memorial Bridge Hit By $10,000 Fire Loss

The south end of the Arlington Memorial Bridge shown afire yesterday. The framework on the Virginia side was destroyed, causing a cave-in of concrete. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

The Wood Framework Over Columbia Island Is Quickly Burned.

Flames of undetermined origin late yesterday afternoon did approximately $10,000 worth of damage to the $14,000,000 Arlington Memorial Bridge, now under construction over the Potomac River near the Lincoln Memorial.

The wooden framework over Columbia Island on the Virginia side was destroyed, causing a portion of the concrete to cave in. Engineers said that the entire section of concrete would have to be repoured because of the fire.

The fire broke out about a half hour after the workmen had left the job. The flames shot high in the air

BYRD HINTS OF PLAN FOR MYSTERY FEAT

HAIR HAS TURNED GREY

Dunedin, N. Z., March 12 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who has flown over both the north and south poles and driven a plane across the Atlantic, is planning another sensational feat.

"If I were to say what I am going to do next," he said today, "my remarks would cause a sensation."

Admiral Byrd, whose hair has become gray within the fourteen months just ended during which he flew over the south pole and mapped 280,000 square miles of ice, smilingly declined to say whether he contemplated a return to the antarctic.

Pointing out that the American claim lay in Antarctica entirely outside the Ross dependency, a British settlement, Admiral Byrd said there was nothing in the situation likely to cause controversy.

When it was pointed out that there still were vast unexplored territories beyond the great barrier of the antarctic, particularly between the Bay of Wales and Deception Island, Admiral Byrd turned to the immediate plans of his present expedition.

His vessels, the City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling, he said, should be able to start for New York through the Panama Canal next Wednesday or Thursday. Scars of ice floes and blizzards are being removed in drydocks and the ships are being refitted.

Discussing the scientific results of the expedition, Dr. Lawrence Gould, its geologist, said that the finding of coal on Mount Nansen convicted him that until recent geological time the antarctic frigid zone has possessed either a tropical or subtropical climate abounding in vegetable life in-

HOUSTON BARES GIFT OF $50,000 AT QUIZ

G. O. P. Chairman Declares He Gave Sum to River Association.

DENIES HE WILL RESIGN

(Associated Press.)

Questioned concerning his activities in behalf of Muscle Shoals legislation, Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, testified yesterday to the Senate lobby committee that he had contributed $50,000 to the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

The association advocated the proposal of the American Cyanamid Co. to lease the huge Alabama power and nitrate plants. Huston was its president until he became Republican national chairman a few months ago. He said the total amount spent by the organization over a number of years was between $400,000 and $500,000, but that it had engaged in activities other than those in connection with Muscle Shoals.

Pressed to give the committee a record of receipts and expenditures, Huston said they had been kept on check stubs but that he did not know where they could be obtained now unless from J. W. Worthington, chairman of the association's executive committee.

Huston, who was dressed in a double-breasted dark blue suit and spoke in an even tone, also denied to the committee reports that he would resign as chairman of the Republican national committee. He added that he had called upon President Hoover and had discussed with him "the erroneous information that was being spread regarding my connection with Muscle Shoals and possible resignation."

Huston said he went to see the President after a "majority of the papers of the country carried a statement that my connection with Muscle

HOUSE PASSES PENSION BILL TO CONFEREES

Dale-Lehlbach Measure Awaits Meeting of Six Officials.

TIME FOR PARLEY TO BE FIXED TODAY

Proposal May Be Sent to President by End of Week.

QUICK ACTION GOAL OF BOTH CHAIRMEN

Longworth Selects Men to Counsel With Senators and Make Report.

The new Dale-Lehlbach bill to liberalize the civil service retirement law was sent to conference by the House late yesterday, the next-to-the-last phase of its legislative journey.

As the Senate sent the bill to conference last week, it now only remains for the conferees to get together and report back to their respective houses.

The prospect is that by the end of the week congressional action on the measure will have been completed. Then it will go to the White House for the President's signature.

Longworth Names Conferees.

The House conferees named by Speaker Longworth yesterday are Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach (Republican), New Jersey, chairman of the civil service committee; Representative Addison Smith (Republican) Idaho, and Representative Lamar Jeffers (Democrat), Alabama.

The members of the Senate civil service committee who were named as conferees last week are Senator Porter Dale (Republican), of Vermont, the chairman; Senator James Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, and Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Meeting to Be Set.

Chairman Dale and Chairman Lehlbach will have a conference today and set a time for a meeting of the conferees.

"I see no reason why we should not finish up and make a report before the end of the week," Chairman Lehlbach said yesterday.

Chairman Dale has told The Post that he, too, is anxious to complete action on the bill as quickly as possible, which, so far as the two chairmen is concerned, makes it unanimous.

Leopold Freudberg, of 5305 Connecticut avenue northwest, reported to the police yesterday that golf clothing valued at $50 and a bag of golf clubs worth $50 was stolen from a garage in the rear of his home.

BLAINE NAMES MORMON CHIEF IN TARIFF ROW

SMOOT HEATEDLY SCORES IMPLICATION

Was Only Attending Boy Scout Gathering in Capital, He Says.

GRUNDY'S MACHINE SCORES VICTORIES

Setback on Pig Iron First Suffered Since His Work Started.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The name of Heber J. Grant, head of the Mormon Church, was brought into the Senate tariff fight yesterday as the Democratic-Progressive coalition went down further in defeat.

The new combination in control of the bill headed by Senator Grundy overturned previous votes against plate glass and window glass and placed the originally proposed rates on them but it did shirk from Grundy's naive demand for a $1.40 rate on pig iron.

And subsequently, Senator Smoot withdrew his pending compromise amendment for a rate of 7½ cents a pound on sheet aluminum when it appeared that it would result in lengthy debate. The coalition had previously slashed the aluminum rate and by Smoot's action the coalition rates stood, the strategy of the regulars apparently being to straighten this matter out in conference.

The coalition split again later last night and let a duty of 8 per cent ad valorem to pass on maple, birch and beech flooring. This was a compromise suggested by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan. Among those voting for it were three Republican independents, Blaine and La Follette, of Wisconsin, and Brookhart, of Iowa.

Smoot Defends Grant.

Grant's name was brought into the controversy when Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, said he had been informed that Grant had been here lobbying for the sugar tariff and demanded that the pending reconsideration of the sugar vote be withheld until Grant could be summoned before the lobby committee.

Grant, who is also connected with the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co., had been here "attempting to bring certain influences to bear on members of the Senate," Blaine said he had been informed by persons who observed him on his recent visit here.

"I think this is of sufficient seriousness to command the attention of the lobby committee," he declared.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, said it

Mrs. Taft Gets Bulk Of Husband's Estate

Total Value Not Estimated and Widow Will Probably Not File Inventory; Yale Bequeathed $10,000; Individuals Remembered.

The will of William Howard Taft, who was buried Tuesday at Arlington, was filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Except for a few specific bequests the will leaves the bulk of the estate to the widow, Mrs. Helen H. Taft. No estimate of the value is contained in the document, and there is indication that the late Chief Justice did not particularly want it divulged, request being made that she be relieved of making an inventory, if in keeping with the law.

Under the District law, Mrs. Taft can make a special bond to cover special bequests and any outstanding debts of the estate, and not be compelled to file an inventory. This probably will be done.

The will is under date of June 3, 1925, and is accompanied by two codicils bearing dates of April 27, 1927, and June 1, 1927.

Under the will Mr. Taft left $10,000 to Yale University to be added to the principal of the Alumni University Fund and credited to the class of 1878.

He also provided that $5,000 shall be paid to Wendell W. Mischler, who had been secretary of the late Chief Justice since 1904; $1,000 to Margaret McNamara, and $750 each to Annie McNamara and Thomas Halpin.

The three children of the deceased are bequeathed all the papers, manuscripts, correspondence, addresses and copyrights, whether in the Library of Congress, the family library or elsewhere. Provision is made that the children can make any use they desire of these documents after they have consulted with the widow concerning their disposition.

In referring to the bequest that the residue and remainder of all real, personal and mixed property "in the United States, Dominion of Canada or elsewhere" go to Mrs. Taft, the testator refers to her as "my dear wife," the only note of sentiment in the document or the codicils.

The first codicil provides that any portion of the $10,000 bequest to Yale University, which might be paid during his lifetime shall be deducted from the total as named in the will.

The same codicil provides that $5,000 shall be paid to the Foundation of the Taft School at Watertown, Conn., which was established by his brother, Horace D. Taft. Provision also is made that payments made during life should be deducted from the bequest.

Under the second codicil an additional $2,500 is given to the Taft School at Watertown.

A bequest of $2,500 also is made to All Soul's Unitarian Church, from which services for the former Chief Justice were held Tuesday.

The will also provides that all former wills shall be canceled. The will and the two codicils and two former wills were removed from a safety deposit box at the American Security & Trust Co., where they had been deposited by Victor S. Mersch, deputy register of wills of the District of Columbia.

The last will and the two codicils were contained in envelopes of the

Fliers Escape Harm As Plane Hits Wires

Quick Thinking of Pilot Saves Pair in Crash.

Quick thinking on the part of Charles Augustus Macatee, 20-year-old pilot, of 3825 Legation street, saved his life and that of his companion, 17 years old, of 21 Cedar Parkway, Chevy Chase, Md., shortly before noon yesterday, when he made an emergency landing near the Mount Vernon Airport, Hybla Valley, Va.

His motor overheated because of a defective water pump, Macatee, who owns the plane he was piloting, decided to make a second landing instead of trying to return to Washington, whence he was flying from Quantico.

Noteing telephone wires just ahead the young aviator was confident he would clear them until his plane suddenly struck and air pocket and drppoed. The landing gear was torn from the craft and the tail knocked upward.

Macatee, sensing his danger, pulled back the stick, pulling down the tail, and shot the power into the engine. As a result the plane landed with no worse results than a broken propeller and with missing under carriage. The youths were merely shaken.

"My motor was functioning perfectly at the time," Macatee said last night, "and we would certainly have cleared the wires had we not hit the under current of air."

The crash also severed a high-tension power wire as the aircraft broke a telephone pole. Had the plane

Two dozen women leaders, who said they represented 12,000,000 of their sex throughout the country, yesterday maintained that the womanhood of America stands four square behind prohibition.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Henry W. In rapid succession, the women were rushed to the witness stand by Mrs. Peabody, who limited their time, curbed the applause of enthusiastic drys in the crowded committee room and combated every attempt at interference or delay. Mrs. Peabody also presented statements from other prominent women who were unable to appear.

NEW GAS RATE SEEN FOR CAPITAL USERS

Schedules Are in Course of Preparation by New Company Owners.

MERGER ALSO FAVORED

A new gas rate schedule, designed to put gas into effective competition with coal or oil as a household heating fuel, is being prepared by the new owners of the gas companies, F. S. Burroughs, of Harris, Forbes & Co., representative of the new owners announced yesterday.

The announcement was made following a conference with the Public Utilities Commission at which the representatives of the new owners presented a tentative draft of legislation providing for a merger of the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Cos. and liberalization of the existing charter restrictions on the issuance of stocks and securities.

The reduced rate schedules contemplated by the new owners are bound up in the plea to amend the existing law so as to permit the merged company to increase its capitalization by the issuance of additional stock at rates and under conditions approved by the Public Utili-

Foreign Minister Says Session Will Close Within Fortnight.

MACDONALD BAFFLED BY FRANCO DEMANDS

SUBMARINE ARBITERS FACE TOTAL FAILURE

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, March 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The French and British naval chiefs remain firmly deadlocked tonight on the French tonnage figures, despite the mediatory efforts of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, United States "observer" at their discussions.

Secretary of State Stimson and former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki have made practically no progres toward a Japanese-American agreement, despite persistent reports to the contrary.

The conference subcommittee seeking to draft an agreement on humanizing submarine warfare has got in such a tangle that it has practically decided to throw up the sponge and is expected to report failure to agree.

In view of this absence of progress toward solution of any of the critical questions facing the London naval conference, it is not surprising that reports of the parley's collapse have begun to circulate.

Briand Looks to Italy.

But these are premature. Warnings given here a week ago against the optimism then current may now be applied to the extreme pessimists. However much the five-power parley may fall short of its aims, there are many cards to be played before it will be safe to talk of failure.

In the gloomy circumstances of the moment, considerable importance attaches to two statements made tonight, one by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand to French correspondents, and the other to the New York World News Service on behalf of an equally important British authority.

Briand said he gives the conference a fortnight longer. If any concessions are to be made, he said, Premier Andre Tardieu can make them. The veteran French statesman added that he asked Secretary Stimson today to try to induce the Italians to give their tonnage figures, remarking that France has supplied all her figures and can go no further until Italy is heard from. Stimson, said Briand, replied that he had already tried and failed.

Warns Against Pessimism.

Briand referred to whta he called Stimson's statement of yesterday explaining that the United States will not join a consultative pact because of fear lest it might appear to involve the United States in a moral obligation to intervene in dangerous circumstances. Briand's ironical comments on this boiled down to the argument that the United States and Great Britain called this conference on the basis of the Kellogg pact, which both nations signed. If this conference results in trouble, he asked, is not Stimson then on his own argument morally obliged to do something about it as a signatory to the Kellogg-Briand pact upon which the conference rests?

Predicting that the conference will end within a fortnight, Briand warned his hearers against pessimism, for, he said, there will be an agreement here for five years, there will be no war within that time, and within the next five years the general disarmament conference will meet at Geneva and will find certain agreements made here as to the method of limiting navies of great use.

The authoritative exposition of the British viewpoint made to the New York World News Service represented Prime Minister MacDonald as unable to see his way out of the tangle caused by the French demands in relation to the Rapidan agreement.

Dilemma Facing Britain.

The British dilemma was thus explained: Great Britain strongly objects to French submarines and will have to maintain 200,000 tons of destroyers against them, an increase of 50,000 tons over the figures tentatively agreed with Stimson; but Great Britain's main alarm is about French cruisers.

France proposes, it has been admitted by the French naval minister in the conversations now proceeding with First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander and Ambassador Morrow, to have ten 8-inch-gun cruisers in commission in five years and two more by 1938. Against these twelve the British would have only 15 under the provisional agreement with America. They can build 18, but only at the cost of robbing their light cruiser category of 30,000 tons, which is impossible.

Therefore, the British informant pointed out, an increase of British cruiser forces appears inevitable and the British are greatly worried as to the effect this will have on the United States when they are compelled to make it public officially.

Position of English.

Assuming fifteen big British cruisers in the water against ten French in 1936, the British, it is said, would be inferior in this category against France in European waters. The reason given for this is that out of the British total of fifteen, one would be kept in Australian waters, another in New Zealand and four others on remote stations, leaving only nine in European waters, the channel, the North Sea and the Mediterranean, a numerical inferiority against France alone without invoking a two-power European standard against France and Italy.

Such a situation public opinion and Parliament would not tolerate for a moment, the New York World News Service was told, while the whole board of the admiralty would resign instantly if such an agreement was suggested. Yet the only alternative is to build at least eighteen big cruisers, possibly nineteen — the admiralty wants twenty—and 50,000 tons more in destroyers, while at the same time refusing to reduce agreed light cruiser tonnage.

That is the pill the Americans, who thought they had an agreed parity with Great Britain, will have to swallow, and there is authority for stating that the prime minister at present sees no alternative to suggesting that if the United States wants parity she will have to revise her figures upward.

French Needs Undefined.

An estimate made by a high financial personage recently that the French program will force the British naval estimates up $50,000,000 a year in future implies that the American estimates would go up much more than this in addition to sums already calculated if parity is to remain the American aim.

Although First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander and Minister of Marine Jacques-Louis Dumesnil were supposed to be trying to agree on common statistical language, aided by Ambassador Morrow, they spent most their time today arguing about France's absolute needs. These M. Dumesnil refused to define in the face of persistent questions from Mr. Alexander.

The British first lord of the admiralty said British opinion would demand to know why France now claims a much higher ratio against Great Britain than ever before in modern history. In 1895, at the time of the Anglo-French war scare, he said, France had only 35 per cent of British tonnage. The highest she ever reached, just before the Anglo-German building race, was 39 per cent. Yet today she asks 65 per cent of the whole and in some categories as much as 80 per cent. Why? Alexander kept asking, but he got no satisfaction, Dumesnil steadily refusing to explain what he called the "absolute needs" of France against "relative needs" which would be a subject of discussion only if France were guaranteed naval security.

Submarine Issue Flounders.

The submarine subcommittee is at a standstill because the Americans are trying to get the Root convention for humanizing undersea craft adopted with as small changes as possible and the French refuse to admit a clause penalizing the commanders of submersibles which attack other vessels.

Nor have the experts who have been discussing the size of submarines been able to get anywhere, with the French demanding submarines up to 3,000 tons. It appears almost certain that all these questions will be given up and deposited on the doorsteps of the big five.

There are curious reports current of a near agreement resulting from a conference this morning between Stimson, Senator Reed, Wakatsuki and Ambassador Saito. Unfortunately, these are completely unfounded.

U. S.-Japan Dispute.

From an authoritative Japanese source it was learned late tonight that American demands would leave Japan in a position after 1936 which she regards as impossible. Not only would the 70 per cent big cruiser ratio be destroyed after that year as new American cruisers took the water but the Japanese authority caviled at what he said was a new American proposal that Japan should keep her present figure of 78,000 tons of submarines, but not replace them. This, said my informant, would mean that Japan would have only 40,000 tons of serviceable submarines in 1936, a prospect Tokyo can not tolerate.

Restive parliamentary opinion on the conference was indicated at question time in the House of Commons today. Admiral Tifton Beamish, Tory, asked Philip Snowden, in the absence of the prime minister, whether he would convey "the very generally expressed opinion that no agreement is better than a partial one between the oceanic powers." The chancellor of the exchequer remarked simply that he would.

Warm Debates Anticipated.

First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander said the British admiralty has canceled 66,000 tons of battleship construction in the last two years. "No tonnage, so far as I am aware, has been canceled by the other powers," he added.

Snowden told Ellen Wilkinson, Labor, that the government has received various resolutions from public bodies urging further reduction of cruisers and total abolition of battleships and submarines.

In the House of Commons, where the opinion is spreading that the conference is a failure, there is a tendency to criticize the French for their tonnage demands and the Americans for their refusal to talk battleships. It was said that if the conference adjourns without success it will be impossible to prevent warm debates on the floor in which hard words will be used about all the delegations concerned, including the British.

NAVY PARLEY GLOOM THICKER IN CAPITAL

Weakness of MacDonald in Parliament Increases Pessimism Here.

FRENCH FAVOR LEAGUE

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The demonstrated weakness of Prime Minister MacDonald in the British Parliament and intimations from the French that the naval limitation problem should be turned over to the League of Nations for solution have thickened the atmosphere of pessimism here respecting the fate of the London conference. Acting Secretary of State Cotton had no word of encouragement yesterday and confirmed the general impression that no progress is in sight, though he declined to discuss the situation.

The fact that Premier MacDonald refused to resign in the face of an adverse vote in the House of Commons caused no surprise here. The labor leader had previously informed his followers that he would not relinquish his grip on the premiership unless compelled to by defeat on a major issue. The impression here, based on reports from American delegation quarters in London, is that Premier MacDonald's tenure is reasonably safe until April 14, when the Labor budget is submitted to the House of Commons for approval.

This date is conceded to be the major test for Premier MacDonald and for this reason he is known to be particularly anxious to bring about some positive achievement at the conference before that date. Should the conference still be in the doldrums early next month, the chances of the Labor government will admittedly be seriously affected, especially as domestic issues in Great Britain are becoming daily more troublesome and unsatisfactory.

Briand Makes First Hint.

M. Briand has given the first hint of the French government's belief that the work now in progress at London should be concluded without definite agreement among the powers and then turned over to the preparatory commission of the League of Nations, which has been wrestling for several years with the disarmament problem pursuant to article 8 of the league covenant, which is as follows:

"The members o the league recognize that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations.

"The council, taking account of the geographical situation and circumstances of each state, shall formulate plans for such reduction for the consideration and action of the several governments.

"Such plans shall be subject to reconsideration and revision at least every ten years. After these plans have been adopted by the several governments, the limits of armaments therein fixed shall not be exceeded without the concurrence of the council."

Tardieu Helped Draft Plan.

M. Tardieu, as representative of France, helped draw up this provision and France has steadfastly supported this program and accepted the invitation to the London conference only with the understanding that the work at London would be preliminary to final decisions reached by the League of Nations under article 8.

M. Briand has all along maintained that the work at London should merely be preliminary to a later conference under the league covenant. Despite the deadlock at the present London conference, the discussions are understood to be regarded by Tardieu and Briand as valuable in connection with future work of the league preparatory commission. A formal suggestion by France to turn the work over to the league commission is expected to be one of the remedies later offered to amicably conclude the London discussions.

Power Regulation Urged by Couzens

Government Supervision Is Proposed in Senate Measure.

(Associated Press.)

Strict Government regulation of companies producing, transmitting or distributing power in Interstate Commerce was proposed in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan.

The bill would extend the powers of the Federal Power Commission to bring steam as well as water power production under its supervision. It would provide Government supervision of interstate rates, and of the issuance of securities by holding companies. It would require regular reporting by the companies and their management and holding companies to the commission.

The Senate interstate commerce committee, of which Senator Couzens is chairman, already has before it a bill by him proposing reorganization of the Federal Power Commission, which administers the water-power act. It will begin extensive hearings on the new proposal as soon as the first is disposed of, probably this month.

CRUCIAL VOTE NEARS; M'DONALD IS SERENE

Premier Confident He Will Not Be Ousted for Six Weeks at Least.

NAVY PARLEY IS CAUSE

London, March 12 (A.P.).—The labor government is having its troubles with the coal bill and unemployment and even faces a vote of censure tomorrow evening, but Prime Minister MacDonald continues his chairmanship of the naval conference confident that he will not be thrown out of office within the next six weeks.

British and French politics have afforded puzzling situations to Americans of the naval conference in the past few weeks, sometimes a defeat meaning one thing and sometimes another, but as far as the present situation in British politics is concerned a government defeat on a major issue such as would mean resignation, is not expected by political circles.

Mr. MacDonald was defeated last night on a minor amendment to the coal bill, but doesn't seem disturbed. He boldly invited his conservative opponents to extend their vote of censure set for tomorrow night so that the Liberals could join them and throw him out, but he is confident they will not do that.

Pledges Still Hold.

In fact, long before the naval conference convened, Mr. MacDonald had the pledges of the Conservative and Liberal leaders that the disarmament negotiations were of prime importance and that the Labor government, although in a minority in the House of Commons, would be given a fair opportunity for carrying them out. That pledge holds as strongly today as it did two months ago.

Still, on a controversial party question such as the coal bill, the parties must muster their strength, it being a domestic issue, and they do as they did last night. But by means of contacts the party leaders maintain with one another behind their fighting lines, the Conservative and Liberals knew that the prime minister would not take the rebuff seriously and resign.

Had the question been a vote of censure, the situation would have been entirely different. Mr. MacDonald would have said:

"If you defeat me on this vote, the government will resign." This will be the position tomorrow night on issues which will be definitely labeled a vote of censure.

Baldwin Might Be Next.

Just what would happen to the naval conference should the party pledges be broken and the rank get out of hand—a possible but improbable contingency—is the subject of widest speculation. Mr. MacDonald could resign, but the king probably would tell him to carry on until the naval conference was out of the way. The king might ask former Premier Baldwin, the Conservative leader, to form a government.

Mr. Baldwin, however, probably would decline on account of the weakness of his party in the House and explain to the monarch that Mr. MacDonald's defeat was all a mistake and recommend that the labor leader be called back to form another government. Mr. MacDonald's alternative to resignation would be to ask the king to dissolve Parliament for a general election.

District to Condemn Land for High Schools

The District Commissioners yesterday began proceedings to condemn several parcels of land in the Northeast section for the enlargement of the sites of the McKinley High School and the Langley Junior High School. The parcels are designated as lots 804, 810, 812, 813 and 815, all situated adjacent to the present sites of the schools near First street northeast. The property is unimproved except for garages, the petition sets out.

Proceedings are brought under the District code as amended by an act of Congress of March 1, 1929, which gives the District the right to condemn land for school purposes. Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Fowler appear for the District.

Injured Man Drives His Own Ambulance

Henry Lee Wallen, 50 years old, attached to the Army War College, acted as his own ambulance driver early yesterday when he was injured after his auto collided with a tree at Maine avenue and Sixth street southwest.

Wallen drove to the Emergency Hospital where he was treated for a possible fractured spine. Later he went to the Walter Reed Hospital for treatment.

TAFT WILL IS FILED FOR PROBATE HERE

Bulk of Estate Bequeathed to Widow by Late Chief Justice.

YALE ALSO REMEMBERED

United States Supreme Court, while the first will under date of November 6, 1897, was in an envelope of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, Cincinnati, Ohio. The other will, under date of November 10, 1922, was in a plain manila envelope.

Two Wills Typewritten.

The two latter wills were typewritten, but the first will was apparently in the handwriting of the former Chief Executive. All the wills apparently were drawn by Mr. Taft, no attorney's name appearing on any of them.

Witnesses to the last will were J. S. Flannery, of the Hibbs Building, Washington; Anna Connell, of Clinton, Conn., and Edwin O. Burke, of 1518 Kingman place, Washington.

The first codicil was witnessed by Mr. Burke, George Pauley Way, of New Haven, Conn., and William Winglow Crossley, of 2227 Twentieth street northwest, Washington.

Mr. Burke, Mr. Crossley and Mary Hanson, of 3215 Eleventh place southeast, witnessed the second codicil.

Rover Asks for Padlock On Building on H Street

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to padlock the first and second floors of the brick building at 631 H street northwest for alleged violations of the national prohibition law.

The petition is directed against William Joseph Arrington, alias "Bill" Arrington, as tenant, and Milton Strasburger and Irwin Strasburger, trustees under the will of Zody Strasburger, owners. The petition is supported by a number of affidavits attesting to alleged violations on the premises.

District Teachers Lose Salary Plea

Supreme Court Refuses to Pass on Claims for Back Pay.

The United States Supreme Court refused yesterday to pass on the claim of Madeline Padgett and six other District public school teachers that in the reclassification and rearrangement of salaries under the act of June, 1924, they were not given proper increases for longevity. About $500,000 in back salaries was involved.

The question of whether longevity pay mounting to $200 a year should be added to the higher salary schedules was raised in the case. The District had contended that the longevity increases had already been considered in fixing the new basic salaries in the 1924 act.

The Municipal Court decided in favor of the school teachers. The District Court of Appeals, however, upheld the District on three different occasions and the teachers asked for a writ of certiorari.

JURY COMPLETED FOR DOHENY TRIAL

ACCUSER IS CHEERFUL

(Associated Press.)

Three women and nine men were selected yesterday to decide the guilt or innocence of Edward L. Doheny of bribery. The wealthy oil operator is on trial on an indictment charging that he gave $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, for the award to his company of a lease to the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve.

Justice William Hitz, presiding over the trial in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, ordered the jury kept under guard and together until its verdict is handed down. As soon as it was sworn, he recessed the court until today when the Government will make its opening statement and will be followed by the defense. The statements are expected to require the entire day and if they do not documentary evidence will be introduced.

The jury was finally chosen near the end of the afternoon session after counsel for both sides had questioned 35 men and women. Its average age is 40 years. The members are:

Personnel of Jury.

Luther W. James, Negro automobile mechanic, 39; Lawrence P. McWilliams, chain store manager, 45; Clarence Cantor, street car conductor, 46; Archibald Gill, chauffeur, 52; Mrs. Chrissie Vollmer, house wife, 49; Isaac Dengler, laundry worker, 43; Miss Jean Yeagle, stenographer, 26; R. Bernard Beckert, hotel clerk, 33; Emory H. English, office worker, 45; Miss Margaret Mannix, stenographer, 23; Conrad Fitts, construction company employe, 47, and Chelsey H. Ray, transportation agent, 47.

Before selection of the jury, Justice Hitz overruled a defense plea that to place Doheny on trial for bribery would be to put him in double jeopardy, in view of the acquittal of Doheny and Fall four years ago on charges of conspiring to defraud the Government growing out of the same lease.

The first panel of 26 men and women was exhausted just before the noon recess without the jury having been chosen. The Government exercised ten challenges, the defense nine and four prospective jurors were excused for cause.

Doheny Appears Cheerful.

Doheny sat beside his counsel and took a lively interest in the selection of the twelve persons who will decide his case. Mrs. Doheny sat with friends in the spectators section of the court room. Frank J. Hogan, Doheny's chief counsel, said that the 73-year-old defendant, was cheerful and convinced that he would be acquitted.

Counsel for both the Government and defense expressed the opinion that the trial would require about three weeks.

The Government charges that Doheny sent Fall $100,000 on November 30, 1921, as a bribe for later award of a lease of the naval oil reserve to the Pan-American Petroleum and Transportation Co. Prior to this award the company had been awarded a contract to construct naval oil storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and that contract contained a clause giving the company preference to the Elk Hill lease.

Loan View Is Maintained.

Doheny and Fall have maintained that the money was a loan to an old friend who was in need, Fall saying that he wished to purchase a ranch next to his ranch in New Mexico.

Doheny has testified in previous trials that he bid on the Pearl Harbor contract only after being urged to do so by Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, who represented Secretary of the Navy Denby. He said that Admiral Robison painted a distressing picture of danger to the Pacific Coast States from a foreign power unless the Navy had oil enough at Pearl Harbor to prevent an alien fleet from approaching the West Coast.

The same story was told in the trial last October of Fall on charges of accepting money as a bribe. Fall was found guilty by the jury and sentenced to serve one year in prison and pay a fine of $100,000. He is now free on bond pending appeal. He will not be present at the Doheny trial, due to illness.

WOOD FLAYS WASTE IN FRUIT FLY DRIVE

Says Same Official Could Be e Jailed for Plot to Ruin Florida Citrus Trade.

$5,000,00 WASTE IS SEEN

President Hoover was told bluntly yesterday by Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, chairman of the House appropriations committee, that the Government had wasted close to $5,000,000 in money and has destroyed $60,000,000 worth of the Florida citrus growers' property in its "eradication" of the Mediterranean fruit fly there.

"Someone in the Department of Agriculture could be indicted for conspiracy to destroy the Florida citrus industry and could be convicted," Mr. Wood said to newspapermen, after his talk with the President.

Made First Hand Survey.

Mr. Wood, who, in addition to being chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, is chairman of the congressional campaign committee, had just returned from a trip to Florida, made for the purpose of surveying at first hand what was being done there with the large sums appropriated by Congress for the fruit fly eradication work.

"Practical fruit men estimated," he said, "that the work which the Government has spent $6,000,000 for could have been done for $1,500,000. There is quite a little inefficiency there."

The worst "pests" from which the Florida fruit growers have suffered, Mr. Wood declared, are the entomologists, or "bugologists," as he called them.

Says Situation Overemphasized.

"These fellows and others have broadcast throughout the country posters showing highly magnified pictures of infected fruit and of the fruit fly," he said. "They have done great harm, in that way, to the Florida fruit growers and have acted in what seems to me to have been without just cause."

"Considering the mess we have gotten the Florida fruit growers into," Chairman Wood said, he believed it wise to continue a rigid inspection of the Florida citrus fruit at the expense of the Government. The appropriations, however, he stated, should be kept down and well under the present program.

Mr. Wood declined to state the exact amount that would be appropriated, or to give further details to his charges of waste and inefficiency.

Japanese Flight Is Engineer's Plan

Diesel Turbine Engines Will Be Used to Propel Huge Craft.

Leonia, N. J., March 12 (A.P.).—J. Morton Stelling, local aeronautical engineer, plans to take off from San Francisco about May 1, on a nonstop flight to Nagasaki, Japan, a distance of 9,300 miles, he told the Associated Press today. The undertaking will be for commercial and scientific purposes.

Sterling said an F-201 tri-motored monoplane of his own design, powered with three Diesel turbine engines, would be used. The plane has six propellers, driven by shaft through the wing, a new device in airplane construction. The huge motors will be housed inside the fuselage rather than under the wings.

The crew will consist of eight, Stelling said. He declined, however, to reveal their identity, or to name the backers of the prospect at this time.

The ship, built at a Paterson plant, already has undergone successful test flights, he said.

Part in Kidnaping Laid to Politician

Late Candidate for Office Proposed Extortion Plot, Suspect Declares.

Pine Bluff, Ark., March 12 (A.P.).—A recent candidate for a State office was named today in a reported confession by an alleged confederate as the originator of a plot to kidnap and rob and extort money from L. W. Quattlebaum, wealthy planter and bank director.

A Doyline, La., blacksmith, P. L. Sapp, 42, told officers, they said, that he and his nephew, Emry Majoe, 28, took Quattlebaum into the woods a week ago today, robbed him of diamonds, bound him to a tree and threatened him with death, unless he sent $1,200 in cash to them last Saturday. Sapp said he received $12.50 for his work.

The $1,200 was to be delivered to H. Bradley Jobe, Arkansas politician, and Sapp said, according to officers, that Jobe proposed the affair three weeks ago in his Shreveport office. No charge has been filed against Jobe in connection with the plot. Jobe two years ago was a candidate for State commissioner of mines, manufactures and agriculture.

Tales That Are Told Where Veterans Gather—Now to Be Published in

The Washington Post

One of the strangest phenomena of the World War has been the reluctance of veterans to talk about their experiences—excepting when in the company of those who shared their hardships and dangers and the occasional bright spots of humorous occurrences.

Now the silence is to be broken—veterans themselves will tell of the outstanding memories of happenings in which they participated; in the training camps, on shipboard, in the training areas of France and England and on the field of battle. Short, punchy stories, in the language of the soldier, sailor and marine, giving an intimate glimpse of life as it was in the stirring years of 1917-1918.

Census Methods of David Praised by U. S. Official

Dr. W. M. Steuart, in Talk Giving Evolution of Ways of Tabulating Population, Says King of Israel Used Inclosure Holding Certain Number.

Atlanta, March 12 (A.P.).—Evolution in census taking methods was cited here today by Dr. William M. Steuart, Director of the Census, who compared the manner in which King David counted his subjects with regulations covering the enumeration of American citizens, prescribed in the Constitution for the first census in 1790.

Count of the 1790 population of 17 States was made according to a provision of the constitution which has served as a guide for census directors each ten years since. The total population then was a little less than 4,000,000.

King David, Dr. Steuart pointed out, counted over 4,000,000 people by using an inclosure in which a certain number of persons could stand. A quick enumeration was needed, so the entire population of Israel was caused to enter the inclosure a group at a time, and a tally sheet showing the number of times the inclosure was filled, furnishing a count of the population.

Dr. Steuart paid tribute to the statesmanship of Moses, who, he said, was probably the first man to take a census. Moses and Aaron numbered the Children of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai about the year 1489 B. C., or two years after the exodus from Egypt. This count includes only males 20 years old and upward who were able to go to war. The total enumeration by name was 603,550.

About 40 years later, or near 1452 B. C., Moses and Eleazar, son of Aaron, took another census of the Israelites on the Plains of Moab. This time all the people were counted and the total was 601,730. Dr. Steuart spent three days in Atlanta, giving district supervisors for Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina careful instructions for taking the 1930 census beginning April 2.

CRIME BOARD HEARS DYER VIEW ON BEER

Law Enforcement Body Is Asked to Determine if 2.75 Content Intoxicates.

GIVEN WARM RECEPTION

(Associated Press.)

The Hoover Law Enforcement Commission was asked yesterday to determine whether 2.75 per cent beer is nonintoxicating and whether a change in the Volstead law to permit manufacture would aid enforcement.

Representative Dyer (Republican), Missouri, ranking member of the House judiciary committee and author of a bill to legalize 2.75 per cent beer, said after appearing before the commission for an hour and a half that he had received a "very cordial and satisfactory reception." He declined, however, to say whether the attitude of the commission toward his proposal had been indicated.

The Missourian asked the group to investigate questions of policy and fact involved in legalizing a higher percentage of alcohol content and report on its findings. There exists, he said, a great body of public opinion against the dry laws and rigorous enforcement of them.

Mr. Dyer said Congress was disinclined to enact legislation which was not whole-heartedly in support of the eighteenth amendment, but was none the less compelled to consider any measure which would aid in a fair execution of the mandate.

"There seems to be," Mr. Dyer said, "a substantially universal assent to the proposition that one-half of 1 per cent alcohol is far below the intoxicating ratio of alcohol to the beverage solvent in which alcohol is present."

He cited a number of authorities who had so held and pointed out that the eighteenth amendment "does not prohibit intoxicating liquor for any other purpose than beverage use, neither does it define intoxicating liquor" and declared that home-made wine and cider of from 6 to 12 per cent is permitted under the law.

Millions of householders, he continued, are manufacturing 4 to 6 per cent beer, and "the Federal Prohibition Bureau has not made any serious effort to interfere with the manufacture of beer in the home, probably upon the theory that it would be highly inconsistent to arrest and prosecute householders for the violations of the national prohibition act for making beer of a lesser alcoholic content than wines and ciders, the legality of which is fully recognized."

"Millionaire" Is Facing Divorce From Actress

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 12 (A.P.).—Description of John Brody, jr., 26, as a "Pittsburgh millionaire," was said to be exaggerated by his brother, Charles Brody, of Zanesville, Ohio, in commenting here today on suit for divorce filed in Chicago, by Frances Miller Brody, actress, who married Brody in New York, March 1.

Brody, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brody, Pittsburgh, was described as a millionaire in the bill of particulars, which also charged Brody with cruelty. Brody was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania four or five years ago. His wife is now appearing in New York.

24 WOMEN LAUD DRY LAW AT CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRY

forces before the group which earlier had heard seven days of argument by wets for repeal. With the exception of a few, cross-examination was completed at a prolonged afternoon session to make way for a statement from Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It will be read today by Deeta Pickett, secretary of the organization, as Dr. Wilson was obliged to leave the city yesterday afternoon.

The hearing was opened by Mrs. Peabody, who presented to the committee the political creed of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, the central organization linking many affiliated women's groups in the prohibition movement.

This creed held the buyer of liquor equally guilty with the seller, advocated personal liberty for women who have "endured personal slavery through drunken husbands," and called for organization of citizens' public safety groups, recognized and approved by the Government to "safeguard observance and enforcement of law through the regular channels of Government."

Vast Improvement Seen.

From every angle and type of organization and from nearly every section of the country, the women's arguments were assembled by Mrs. Peabody, and they all declared that prohibition, even though not well enforced in some regions, constituted a vast improvement over the prohibition conditions.

Under later questioning by wet members of the committee, the witnesses reiterated their contentions and avoided being drawn away from the line of their direct testimony. They frequently sought rulings on the admissibility of the questions.

Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, was the first witness. She came to Washington accompanied by three men, presumably to guard her. She said she had been threatened if she should appear. Her organization had 14,500 clubs in the United States and willed that the eighteenth amendment be carried out.

Others Put on Stand.

Among the other witnesses were Mrs. Clarence Fraim, legislative chairman of the General Federation; Mrs. F. I. Johnson, of New York, president of the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America; Mrs. Orrin R. Judd, of New York, president, Counsel of Women for Home Missions; Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md., of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement Committee, and Miss Hilda Olson, of Cambridge, Mass., treasurer of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement.

The witnesses not affiliated with Mrs. Peabody's organization were Mrs. Henry Marshall Kendrick, of Washington, representing the national council of Federated Church Women; Mrs. William Tilton, Cambridge, Mass., legislative chairman of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. Clarence Marshall Busch, of Miami, Fla., president of the League of American Pen Women.

Representing the national advisory committee of the law enforcement committee were former Mayor Bertha K. Landes, of Seattle, and Mrs. Clarence Macey, of Rochester, N. Y.

Twelve Officers Heard.

Twelve State officers of the committee added their testimony in person. They were Mrs. Charles H. Greenlead, of Franconia, N. H.; Mrs. Lewis Jerome Johnson, of Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. Frank Porter, of New Haven, Conn.; Miss Grace Van Braam Roberts, Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Mrs. John Osgood Blanchard and Miss Bertha Rembaugh, all of New York; Mrs. W. H. Alexander, of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Clayton D. Eulette, of Chicago; Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, of Estes Park, Colo.; Mrs. Haines Lippincott, of Camden, N. J., and Mrs. Maynard Thayer, of Pasadena, Calif. Mrs. Thayer represented both northern and southern California.

Messages supporting the witnesses' views were read from Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Thomas Edison, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, of New York; Mrs. Vic Donahey, wife of the former Governor of Ohio; Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, of Austin, Tex., former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; President Mary E. Woolley, of Mount Holyoke College, and Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida.

Most of the women witnesses were middle-aged and gray-haired. They sat in the reserved section before the committee, while probably 200 men and women stood pressed against the walls of the committee room.

Mrs. Peabody opened the testimony with the declaration, "Here are 12,000,000 women pledged to loyal service of this Government. They will use their ballots to secure loyal representatives." She will be questioned today.

Mrs. Sipple said the General Federation of Women's Clubs favors prohibition. Asserting that the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League of 200,000 women is satisfied with the prohibition law, Mrs. Nicholson said she had listened to testimony given "by attorneys for brewers and others and I have been amazed at some of the statements made before this honorable committee."

Definite Plans Lacking, Claim.

"Not one witness," she said, "who has spoken before this committee has had a definite workable plan if the eighteenth amendment were repealed."

Miss Olson told the committee the government of Sweden considered the Bratt plan of controlling liquor a failure and she asserted it was entirely inadequate and did not prohibit illegal traffic. The wets were charged by Mrs. Tilson with having no constructive alternative to offer for prohibition. She said if their efforts for repeal were successful it would mean the return of the old saloon.

The National League of American Pen Women was represented by its president, Mrs. Busch, as favoring prohibition. Under crossexamination she said the tourists in Florida, her home State, were responsible for most of the liquor law violations there, while the natives were "improving."

Mr. LaGuardia asked her to join him in securing an adequate Coast Guard force just before the season starts at Miami next year, in order to dry up that city. She said she would.

Conditions Better on Coast, Claim.

Former Mayor Landes of Seattle said prohibition had improved conditions in the State of Washington and expressed belief that the law could be enforced, but not 100 per cent. The wets, she said, composed of men and women who could afford the "high cost of drinking," were asking the Government to break down the protective law the eighteenth amendment had built up around women and children.

Asked by Chairman Graham and Mr. LaGuardia to identify the "attorneys for brewers," who she said had appeared as wet witnesses, Mrs. Nicholson said that she had gained the impression that Henry S. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, represented brewers.

Mr. LaGuardia leaped to his feet and shouted:

"Why, Curran is a newspaper man. He never tried a case or represented anybody in his life."

"If the gentleman from New York wants to make statements of his own, let him take the witness stand," demanded Representative Sparks, Republican, Kansas.

La Guardia Pounds Desk.

The New Yorker pounded the desk and said:

"The gentleman from Kansas and any one else can shout all he wants to, but when unjustified attacks are made on my friend, Mr. Curran, I am going to fight, and I don't care whether the committee members like it or not."

Mrs. Nicholson then produced a list of breweries she said had contributed to the association against the prohibition amendment. She read a dozen names before Chairman Graham halted her with the remark that the reading of the contributors did not answer the question of Representative La Guardia to name specifically one attorney in the employ of a brewery who had appeared. She said she did not remember the attorney's name.

Mr. La Guardia then demanded that the names of the contributors to the Anti-Saloon League, including that of Mr. Kresge of the five and ten cent store chain, be filed with the committee at the proper time.

RUM BUY CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Justice Department Makes Appeal Against Decision of Boston Judge.

ON GUILT OF PURCHASER

(Associated Press.)

Whether the purchaser of illicit liquor is guilty of a crime under the prohibition law was laid before the Supreme Court yesterday for determination.

Citing the diversity of opinion expressed by various judges as to the legal culpability of the liquor buyer, the Department of Justice appealed to the highest tribunal against the decision of Federal Judge Morton at Boston, holding Congress expressly excluded the purchaser from the penal provisions of the act.

Judge Morton sustained the contention of James E. Farrar, the defendant in the case, that section 6, title 2, of the national prohibition act, under which the Government sought to convict him, referred only to those legally entitled to buy and sell liquor under permits, such as druggists and hospitals.

The controverted section says that no person shall sell, barter, transport or purchase liquor without first obtaining a permit.

Section 3 of the Volstead act was held by the Boston jurist to contain the enforcement provisions, and he said this part clearly eliminated any liability on the part of the purchaser.

"Not only did Congress carefully exclude the purchaser from the penal provisions of the act as originally passed," Judge Morton said, "but it has taken no steps to extend its provisions to the purchaser in the ten years of legislation which has since intervened."

The Boston case is the second brought before the Supreme Court involving the purchaser of liquor. Previously the tribunal had been asked by Attorney General Mitchell to determine whether a conspiracy charge against a buyer could be sustained under the law.

17 Soviet Officials Granted U.S. Entry

Three Will Be Returned Following Detention at Ellis Island.

New York, March 12 (A.P.).—Seventeen Russians, members of a group of 20 representatives of the Soviet government, were permitted to enter the United States today after having been detained for 24 hours at Ellis Island.

The other three members of the party, a man, wife and child, were excluded on the ground that they might become public charges. They will be returned to Russia.

The Russians, who are said to have come to the United States as representatives of the Soviet to study American industrial methods, arrived here yesterday afternoon on the White Star liner Majestic. Immigration officials said that there was nothing "unusual" in their detention, although a party of 60 Soviet representatives which arrived here three weeks ago was admitted without question.

Clubman Severely Hurt In Fall at Polo Match

Palm Beach, Fla., March 12 (A.P.).—B. Nason Hamlin, sportsman and clubman, of Dedham, Mass., received serious injuries today when his mount fell into a ditch as he was playing a practice polo match at the Phipps Polo Grounds at Gulf Stream, about 18 miles south of here.

He was taken to a hospital at West Palm Beach, where it was said X-ray pictures would be made to determine if he had broken bones or internal injuries.

Hamlin has been playing polo at Gulf Stream for several days following a visit to Palm Beach. He is said to be noted as a polo star in Boston and is a member of the Norfolk Hunt Club, of Dedham, and the Somerset Club, in Boston.

Woman and Servant, 90, Burned to Death in Fire

Canton, Miss., March 12 (A.P.).—Miss Annie Harter, 60 years old, and her 90-year-old Negro servant, Martha Cheatham, were burned to death here today in a fire that destroyed a store and damaged the Trollo Hotel. The loss was estimated by firemen and the owners at $100,000.

The two women were trapped in the bedroom of Miss Harter on the upper floor of the store building, which she owned, and were burned to death as scores of spectators looked on outside, powerless to rescue them. All guests in the hotel escaped without injury. A number of other business concerns suffered losses.

The water pump had given the youths trouble once before on the return trip from Quantico, and a landing was made in a cornfield without incident. This landing was made about 5 miles from Hybla Valley.

Telephone lines in the vicinity were out of commission for two hours following the accident, and Fort Humphreys, Va., was without light or power.

Macatee is employed at the Washington Airport.

House Judiciary Group Gets Document at Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

A fourteen-point "political creed" of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement was presented to the House judiciary committee yesterday by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass.

Mrs. Peabody, chairman of the organization, appeared before the committee to oppose amendment or repeal of the eighteenth amediment or the prohibition laws.

The creed read:

"1. We believe in the Government of the United States, based on the Constitution, the supreme law of the land, according to Article VI of the Constitution:

"'This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; * * * shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.'

"2. We believe that prohibition of opium, alcohol and other habit-making drugs, is a necessary protection in this machine age.

"3. We believe the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution, voted by 46 out of 48 States in the way prescribed, with a greater majority than any other amendment, is binding on all States.

"4. We believe in the Volstead act which has met the test of the Supreme Court and limits alcoholic content to one-half of one per cent. No other standard would be safe for children and those not inoculated with alcohol.

"5. We believe that under the existing act the buyer is equally guilty with the seller in illicit transactions in liquor.

"6. We believe that the economic gain resulting from the use of billions of dollars formerly spent in saloons, speak-easies and liquor for private use now used for better homes, clothing, food, washing and sweeping machines, automobiles, radio, life insurance and bank deposits, justifies this law.

"7. We believe the moral issue makes this law obligatory for the individual citizen and the duty of every church member, and that every church should teach respect for this law through its priests and ministers.

"8. We believe in personal liberty for women who have endured personal slavery through drunken husbands, and we recommend Paul's interpretation of liberty to certain eminent educators and legislators.

"9. We believe in law observance for the protection of life, property, homes and human rights. Education in law observance, necessary and important, should be supplemented by discipline; the only education for the lawless and criminal found largely among the upper classes and in the underworld.

"10. We believe since 'law breakers must not be law makers' law making and enforcement departments of our Government should demand that members, sworn to protect and defend the Constitution, either cease attacks on the Constitution leading to contempt for law, or relinquish their office. And since the first duty of the Government is to protect the people from violators of the law, we call for immediate and adequate action whatever the cost.

"11. We believe, according to the Constitution, Article VI, that courts of justice should be relieved of prejudiced judges, often responsible for the failure of justice and the breaking down of law, through protecting the criminal rather than the public.

"12. We believe there is no authority or precedent for submitting the Constitution as a whole or in part to a national referendum.

"13. We believe that the press, which has been in the past and should be now a moral and civic asset, ought, without regard to the personal opinion of owner and editor, to give fair representation of the views of law-abiding people and the Government rather than continue attacks on the law which will not be repealed, and whose enforcement may be weakened by statements leading to crime and disorder.

"14. We believe that in view of the disloyal and dangerous attitude of men and women of wealth and influence and the failure of officials, there should be law enforcement groups of citizens in town, county, State and Nation organized to correct propaganda and safeguard law observance through regular channels, and that regular safety groups of men and women serve without compensation and be recognized and approved by the Government."

Corn Liquor Unknown To Wife of Professor

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Lewis Jerome Johnson, wife of a Harvard professor, told the House judiciary committee yesterday that she had never heard of "corn liquor."

She appeared as an official of the woman's national committee for law enforcement. Asked about drinking at Harvard, she said:

"I have not seen a drunken student since 1920. My husband told me that he had not smelled any liquor on a student's breath at his classes since 1920."

Shoals was embarrassing to the party leaders."

"I do not regard any activity that I have ever had in connection with the Tennessee River Improvement Association as embarrassing to my office," he asserted. Later, he said:

"Let me tell you this, that prior to August, 1929, I did everything on earth that I could do, and I am sorry I did not do more, to further the interests of the Tennessee River Improvement Association. Since August, 1929, I have done nothing because I resigned, and I resigned seriously and quit."

Will Seek Records.

Huston suggested that Worthington, who is reported ill at Detroit, be subpenaed. Chairman Caraway has charged Worthington with feigning illness in order to "dodge" the committee. The witness said his information was that Worthington is "a very ill man," and added:

"Col. Worthington is or is not sick. You can subpena him and determine whether he is or is not sick. It is an injustice to charge him continually with evading appearance if he is physically unable to come and if he is physically able to come I want him here."

Huston added that he would make an attempt to obtain the records desired by the committee. He also promised to attempt to obtain records he kept while treasurer of the association, which he said now were in a Chattanooga trust company.

Names Several Contributors.

Huston added that no questions had ever been raised about the handling of funds by the organization "until the question was raised by this committee."

"The people down home are entirely satisfied and are not complaining because they understand just what has been going on," he asserted.

Among the contributors in the work of the association, Huston mentioned the Union Carbide Co., which he said had given "something in excess of $30,000." He added that Henry Parsons, New York capitalist, had given $35,000 or $40,000 a year and that Z. C. Patton, jr., of Chattanooga, had contributed.

Others he named were the East Tennessee Power Co. and the Knoxville Power & Light Co.

Huston was directed to appear again today for further questioning.

Steel Companies Ready for Merger

Gulf States and Republic Settle Controversy Over Combine.

New York, March 12 (A.P.).—Settlement of the controversy between the management of the Gulf States Steel Co., of Birmingham, Ala., and certain important shareholders, including Otis & Co., paving the way for a merger of that company with the Republic Steel Corporation was announced here tonight.

The agreement provides for the election of three new directors: Ferdinand Eberstadt, of Otis & Co.; G. Munro Hubbard, of J. G. White & Co., and Frank Altschul, of Lazard Freres.

It is an essential part of the agreement that steps be taken toward the possibility of effecting a merger of Gulf and Republic on some fair basis.

MARYLAND GROUPS TO ATTEND HEARING

Cramton Park Development Bill Is of Interest to Montgomery.

TO URGE BRIDGE PLANS

Montgomery County probably will be well represented at the hearing on the Cramton park development bill which will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the U. S. Capitol. The hearing was postponed from Tuesday night because of the death of former President Taft.

While there is no adequate method of checking which will appear tonight, practically every large organization in the county has voted to send representatives to the hearing, which is considered of vital importance to the county. The Montgomery County Civic Federation will lead the delegation. Many prominent county leaders are expected to appear and make known their views.

The bill provides for the contribution of $1,500,000 to Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties for the development of the park lands projected there and the loan of the additional funds needed for the purchase of the necessary lands which will be loaned without interest for a period of eight years. The Montgomery delegation probably also will urge that the Great Falls bridge project be provided for by Federal funds at once or the provision in the bill prohibiting toll bridges be withdrawn in order that the bridge can be completed by private enterprise.

The Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission probably will postpone its meeting tonight unless some provision for meeting after the Cramton hearing is made as all of the officials of the commission will be present at the Cramton bill hearing.

Seven upper Montgomery County towns tomorrow night will celebrate "The Birth of Light" at the Damascus High School. The celebration marks the completion of service lines for electricity for the towns of Cedar Grove, Woodfield, Clarksburg, Etchison, Browningsville, Purdum and Lewisdale, all of which are members of the Montgomery County Improvement Association, recently organized in the upper section.

The festivities will begin with a banquet at the high school. The Rev. Nicoll, of Cedar Grove, will be toastmaster. Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners, who appeared before the Maryland Public Service Commission on behalf of the plea for service of the communities, and Police Judge Charles W. Woodward will be the principal speakers. Members of the board of county commissioners have been invited.

Miss Ida Manchester, home economics demonstrator of the Potomac Edison Co., which is furnishing the power, assisted by Miss Dorothy Warehime, will describe and demonstrate some of the latest home service appliances and ideas.

Mrs. John L. King, of Cedar Grove, is chairman of the committee on arrangements. The officers of the association are: J. Dallas Watkins, Cedar Grove, president; Mrs. E. D. Hawkins, Woodfield, secretary, and Clarence Day, Clarksburg, treasurer.

Suit for absolute divorce from Tucker G. Staunton Cadets Plan Encampment

Arrange for Usual Grounds at Winchester; 700 to Attend.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 12.—Cadets of the Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., will hold their annual encampment here May 23 to 30, it was announced today by City Manager L. R. Dettra after he had received a letter from Maj. T. G. Russell, commandant of the institution, relative to obtaining the same grounds the cadets have used heretofore and suggesting the last week of May for the period of the encampment.

Mr. Dettra said Rouss Spring Park grounds, owned by the city, will be used and that the site will be greatly improved by the time the youths arrive. There will be approximately 700 cadets in camp and about 50 civilian employes. In the cadet corps will be included the academy band of more than 70 pieces, under the direction of Maj. Thomas Beardsworth. Col. Thomas H. Russell, superintendent of the academy, will be senior officer.

The tactical work and intensive training, a part of the course of study, will be in charge of an officer of the United States Army. Nearly every State in the Union will be represented at the camp. The Staunton institution has been holding the spring encampment at Winchester for a number of years and citizens and local organizations provide many social features for the boys.

Maryland School Heads Will Meet

Problems of Small Country Institutions Are to Be Discussed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., March 12.—Problems connected with the administration and teaching policy of small high schools, of which Maryland has an unusual number, will be the theme of discussion at a series of conferences of high school principals and county superintendents, according to E. Clarke Fontaine, of this city, State supervisor of high schools for the Eastern Shore. He said today that the State department of education does not approve additional high schools in this State but is advancing the concentration of work in large, centrally located schools. The local educator will preside over the first parley at the Maryland State Normal School, at Salisbury, March 19.

A similar conference will be held here at Chestertown High School March 26.

Simultaneously with the Salisbury conference similar meetings will be held in Frederick for Washington, Frederick and Montgomery Counties, with Supervisor W. K. Klingaman in charge, and at La Plata for Prince Georges, Charles, Calvert and St. Marys Counties, with Samuel M. North directing.

Senate Vote in Casein Levy Solves Economic Problem

Refusal to Increase Further Duty on Skimmed Milk Derivative Features Closing Chapter in Complex Series of Evolvements in Tariff Revision.

By A. H. ULM.

In refusing to give further increase to the rate of duty it already had approved for casein the Senate practically closed its books as to perhaps the most complex series of economic involvements in current tariff revision. In the tangle are the dairy industry, nearly all fats and oils, many manufactured products and manifold puzzling relatoonships, one of the latter being that of this country with the Philippine Islands.

Casein is derived from skimmed milk, of which about 10,000,000,000 pounds is produced on farms in this country. Most of this skimmed milk goes to waste. Yet about half of all the casein consumed in this country is imported, the largest part of this coming from Argentina, the foreign country that probably has been most excited by tariff revision developments in the United States.

The largest single use of casein is in coated paper, the kind used in the making of well-printed books and magazines. Many efforts have been made to develop a substitue for this use, but the problem is unsolved. But paper that can fairly well take the place of the coated kind is made. It is cheaper than coated paper. This noncasein or supercalendered paper is now used in printing several popular magazines. In a large consumptive sphere price is the determinant as to which kind of paper is used.

"We must import large quantities of casein in order to get enough of the kind we must have," say the coated paper folk, who assert that a subtle difference in quality is linked with pasturage.

Grass feeding of cows yields an element of quality essential to much of their use, they say, and add that a duty merely adds to their costs disadvantages in competing with manufacturers of other kinds of paper.

Much casein goes into glue and there apparently is no puzzle of quality here. But a large group of glue manufacturers said in substance to Congress:

"There should be no duty or the rate should be so high that imports will be kept out and a stable price maintained."

The House did not increase the present rate of 2½ cents a pound. The Senate increased it to 5½ cents a pound. Dairying interests asked for 8 cents, which the Senate has refused.

"If you give us a high rate, production, which can be without limit, soon will take care of the price factor," said spokesmen for the dairying interests.

This contention finds support in the present situation of dairy products in general. Despite high duties, most of them are now selling in this country on world-price bases, and for the first time since the postwar depression dairying finds itself down to par with other major sections of farming. This is because production of dairy products has increased so rapidly that when recently there was a slackening of consumption surpluses began to pile up.

Increase was facilitated by tariff duties which have kept out all but an insignificant volume of imports and by extraordinary advance of per capita consumption. This last has been in late years 20 to 25 per cent above the prewar record. Until lately dairying has been in the best situation of any comparable branch of agriculture.

But the prosperity of dairying gave encouragment to the exploiting of substitutes for dairy products. The most formidable substitute is nut-margerine, made of cocoanut oil, of which imports have increased enormously. This is so like butter and has been so much cheaper that, it was stated in recent discussions of it in the Senate, that many dairymen themselves have been buying "cocoanut butter" for their own home use.

Cocoanut oil imports come chiefly from the Philippine Islands, where cocoanut growing is the most pervasive farm industry. A duty is on cocoanut oil when it is imported from "foreign" territory. There is none on copra, large quantities of which have been imported for the procurement of oil. In this there is an equation bearing importantly on American shipping in the Pacific, copra being one of the major items of freight brought in from the Far East. As it stands, the tariff tends to shift crushing to the Philippines. Dairying and other domestic oils and fats interests asked that duties be put on the oil content of copra and on oil from the Philippines and from "foreign" area. Both the House and Senate turned them down on this; also on the demand that expanding substitution, in many spheres, of imported for domestic oils and fats be comprehended by a proviso that no duty on imported oils and fats be less than 45 per cent ad valorem. The aim of this was the making of all duties effective in despite of the fact that this country ordinarily exports annually over a billion pounds of oils and fats—in the main high priced ones which are in substance exchanged largely for lower priced ones produced abroad.

Practically all else asked for dairying interests is in the Senate tariff bill. Rates of duty on milk, butter, butter fat, and cheese are made materially higher, though most of those duties have been hoisted by the Tariff Commission and the President since the Fordney-McCumber act was passed. As a whole they now are higher than they ever were before. And for the present they are practically ineffective, for the reason that, as stated before, production is so exceeding consumption that domestic prices of dairy products are being forced to world levels. This may be only a temporary condition. But practically all students of the economics of the problem agree that it will be a fixed condition within a few years.

Companions said they could put him to sleep and, doubting, he let them try. When he closed his eyes they thought he was shamming and released their hold upon him whereupon he fell rigidly to the sidewalk and broke his nose when his face struck the concrete.

The bill also carries $60,000 for the back pay of the laborers and charwomen employed in the Senate Office Building. The appropriation for these workers ran out two weeks ago, and their pay has since been piling up.

As passed by the Senate yesterday, the bill carries a total of $171,869,377, an increase of $123,627,814 over the amount approved by the House.

The $100,000,000 requested by President Hoover for the Farm Board, $150,000 for the American delegation's further expenses at the London naval parley, $12,000,000 for river and harbor work, and $7,000,000 for seed loans to farmers in storm stricken States were added to the measure by the Senate.

The latter loan would be available to the following States: Missouri, New Mexico, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma, Ohio, Virginia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

stead of the present waste of snow and ice.

Even under present conditions, said Meteorologist Haines, men could live there if supplied with food and clothing.

When asked concerning the possibility of forecasting the weather from the Antarctic, home of storms, Mr. Haines said the expense of maintaining stations for that purpose would be too great, although it would be useful to South America.

Admiral Byrd and his men spoke with high praise of the hospitality of New Zealand. Thousands of dollars had been saved the expedition, Admiral Byrd said, by the free use granted of harbors, wharves and telephones.

The men of the expedition, enjoying themselves ashore, warmly praised their commander, saying that he was on the happiest terms with everyone.

More than 80 husky dogs, declared by Admiral Byrd's men to be the most wonderful draft animals in the world, are on their way to the United States aboard the whaler Larsen. With them are many puppies born on the great barrier in Antarctica.

MORMON OFFICIAL LINKED WITH TARIFF

was generally known that the Mormon Church is interested in sugar.

Senator Smoot, of Utah, declared that Grant had been here only to attend the Boy Scout gathering and had called at his office to pay a friendly visit, as he always did.

"Is he to be criticized for coming into my office?" he asked. The lanky Utah senator declared it to be an outrage that a man can't come here to see his friends without the lobby committee grabbing him.

Senator Norris said that inasmuch as some curiosity had been expressed about the activities of Grant while here, he would think Senator Smoot would be glad for him to appear before the committee and explain them.

The controversy was stirred up over Senator Smoot's effort to have the sugar vote reconsidered at once. Senator Nye of North Dakota, moved for a reconsideration several days ago. He had previously voted for the 2 cent rate on raw Cuban sugar, but says now that he did not realize the trade surrounding it and which has taken control of the bill from the coalition.

It was finally agreed that his motion shall be acted upon at 11 o'clock this morning. It is doubtful if the coalition has enough votes to get a reconsideration.

Grundy Stirs Walsh.

Senator Borah said Grant had called upon him while in town but that sugar had not been mentioned.

The setback on pig iron was the first one Grundy has suffered since his machine began working. The only available explanation was that the proposed duty on pig iron was just too much. It is noteworthy that several administration senators voted against it. At that the vote, 31 to 42, was a gain over the vote of 48 and 30 by which the Senate had previously lowered the rate to 75 cents.

When Grundy proposed the $1.40 rate he explained there was no need to debate it as the subject had been fully gone over.

"We may as well vote," he said.

His complacency was too much for Senator Walsh, of Montana, who jumped up and asked why there should be another vote.

Curtis Casts Vote.

"Has the senator any new information to offer?" he demanded. "Has he made another deal?"

Grundy just grinned and said that he had not had the opportunity to vote before, not having been a member of the Senate at the time.

Vice President Curtis joined with the new combination, although there was no need to, in restoring the rate of 19 to 22 cents a foot which had been placed on glass by presidential proclamation several months ago. The coalition had previously slashed this rate to 15 to 17½ cents. Yesterday the vote was on concurring with this previous action. The Senate failed to concur, 36 to 36, leaving the higher rate prevailing, but Curtis cast his vote nevertheless, probably under the impression that it was necessary.

The Senate had previously voted for the lower rate, 43 to 36, which reveals the overturns that are taking place. Similarly, it had previously voted, 40 to 34, for a 1¼ to 2½ cents rate on window glass. It voted yesterday, 41 to 40, for a rate range of 1⅞ to 3¾ cents.

CAPITAL RESIDENTS SEE NEW GAS RATE

ties Commission after a public hearing.

Descending Scale Planned.

It is planned to divide the household rate into a graduated and decending scale based on the monthly consumption, Mr. Burroughs said. He suggested a primary household rate based on 2,000 cubic feet used in a month, a second and lower based for 3,000 cubic feet consumed and a third and yet lower rate for consumers using 5,000 or more cubic feet a month.

A reduction of the present rate of $1 per 1,000 cubic feet for households to "at least" 90 cents is contemplated, it was said. Mr. Burroughs gave no definite estimate of the next lower rates which would be proposed, but declared that the total reductions offered would be considerably more than 10 per cent. It has been suggested that the reduced rate for the third step would be at least 20 per cent.

But this new rate schedule is not a prospect of the immediate future, it was emphasized, and will depend on the outcome of the plan to expand activities of the local gas companies.

The proposed merger legislation is the first step in the program of the new owners. There apparently is widespread approval of the plan to merge the two local companies. The Washington company owns the stock of the Georgetown company. Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, said after the conference in the utilities commission offices yesterday, that he believed a merger of the two companies desirable.

Saving of $50,00 Anticipated.

James Piper, Baltimore attorney, representing, with Wilton J. Lambert, of Washington, the new owners, estimated that a merger of the two companies would save between $50,000 and $75,000 a year in overhead expenses.

The keynote of the plan of the new owners, however, lies in their proposal that existing law be amended so as to permit increased capitalization to provide funds for expansion of the merged company.

Mr. Lambert pointed out that the Washington company now is laboring under the handicap of the capitalization authorized by Congress in 1896, when the stock of the company was increased 130,000 shares with a par value of $20. No stock has been issued since, Mr. Lambert said, the company resorting to issuance of bonds to get needed capital, although the value of the company has steadily increased, as evidenced by the fact that the new owners paid former stockholders $125 a share for their stock.

Company Restrictions to Stand.

"The legislation which we will propose does not contemplate freeing the company from any restrictions on issuance of stocks or other securities," Mr. Burroughs said.

"What we want is that Congress shall empower the Public Utilities Commission, after proper and full public hearing, to authorize additional issue of stock when such an issue is justified and necessary for the expansion of the company. The legislation we have in mind would provide for issuances of common or preferred stock, with or without par value, at such rates and under such conditions and at such times as the Public Utilities Commission may approve.

"Such legislation, we believe, will make for a much better situation all around. Congress can, of course, always keep check on the situation by revoking the power of the Utilities Commission, although, of course, we never expect that to be necessary."

Several Amendments Proposed.

Several amendments to the proposed merger legislation were proposed at the conference with utilities officials yesterday. Many of these were tentatively accepted but Mr. Lambert said that it was desired to give more careful study to the revised measure before it was definitely offered as the formal proposal of the new owners to the Public Utilities Commission. The revised measure will be studied by Messrs. Piper and Lambert and taken to New York by Mr. Burroughs, where it will be gone over by other officials of the nationally powerful utilities investment companies which now own the gas company.

Immediately final approval is given by the responsible officers the measure will be submitted to the Public Utilities Commission and made public Mr. Lambert said.

The utilities commission, at the conference yesterday, took no formal action on the proposal nor will it take any action on the proposition until after it has held a formal public hearing, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, commission chairman, said at the conclusion of the conference.

Institution at Camp Lee Is Being Considered, Says House Member.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., March 12.—According to Representative H. H. Drewery, of Petersburg, Secretary of War Hurley has under consideration the matter of permitting a section of Camp Lee, near this city, to be used for the erection of a Federal penal institution.

He said that he did not know the amount of land in question, but it has been reported that 2,000 acres adjoining the river will be utilized by the United States Department of Justice if the plan for the building of this institution at Camp Lee materializes. The Camp Lee tract of land is said to contain 7,000 acres and was purchased by the Federal Government during the World War for the training of troops for overseas service. At the present time a large part of the camp tract is under cultivation and a large portion of it is used as a game sanctuary.

A large area of the camp is included in the proposed Petersburg National Military Battlefield Park. The matter is now in the hands of the War Department, which controls Camp Lee.

COL. BARKER KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

HAD FINE WAR RECORD

Ottawa, Ontario, March 12 (A.P.).—Canada's second ranking ace of the World War, Col. William G. Barker, today crashed to his death at the Rockliffe Park Royal, Canadian air force field, when the motor of a new ship he was testing stalled in an upward loop while flying at a low altitude.

The valiant war ace, who had 52 German planes to his credit and once shot his way out of a "flying circus," never had a chance once his ship started plunging noseward to earth.

His broken body was pulled from the twisted wreckage by government officials who had gathered at the field to witness his test of the new Fairchild two-seater biplane. It was the first time the colonel had flown a ship of that type.

Col. Barker had been in the air only 10 minutes before his plane went into its fatal dive. He was flying low, and apparently put the ship into a steep climb, when, at the top of the upward loop, it suddenly remained suspended for a moment and then plunged downward.

The plane had been flown here only yesterday from New York and its pilot said it had performed perfectly. D. Campbell Shaw, test pilot for the Fairchild Aviation Corporation of Canada, of which Col. Barker was president, said that the ship was in perfect condition at the take-off.

He ascribed the tragedy to "an error of judgment while flying low," giving the opinion that Col. Barker must have miscalculated the power of the motor to drive the machine from the ground.

Col. Barker's war flying record was excelled among Canadian aviators only by that of Col. W. C. Bishop, V. C. He received a long list of decorations, headed by the enviable Victoria cross. Other citations included the distinguished service order, the military cross, with two bars; Medalgia valore d' Argenta (Italian) and the croix de guerre (French). He was wounded twice and was thrice mentioned in dispatches.

Col. Barker was decorated with the Victoria Cross after a feat which is listed as one of the air epics of the war.

A short time before the armistice he was attacking an enemy plane when he ran into a "flying circus" of German fighting ships. He brought down six of the German planes and although badly wounded, brought his own machine safely to earth.

Started as Infantryman.

The intrepid airman, whose brilliant record was written on three major fronts, had entered the war as a member of the Canadian mounted rifles. He soon tired of the inactive life of an infantryman in the waterlogged trenches overseas and was inspired by the air battles he witnessed over the front lines. He obtained a transfer to the flying corps. Then he soon launched upon the glorious career that earned him the highest decoration of the crown.

Col. Barker was 35 years old, a native of Manitoba. He lived in West Toronto and was president of the Lyneboch Tobacco Co., Ltd., and vice president of the Middleton Tobacco Co., Ltd., and the Norfolk Tobacco Plantations, Ltd.

He also was president of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club.

Virginia Sectional Labor Fight Arises

Two Marksville Districts Battle Over Granting of Road Jobs.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., March 12. — Whether the eastern or western ends of Marksville district shall furnish labor to build the Gordonsville and New Market turnpike in this county, where $20,000 or $30,000 is to be spent, is causing an ugly situation in the two sections. Work was begun on the road several days ago. Laborers in the eastern end of Marksville district declare that they have been discriminated against and that they are forced to stand idle while laborers from the western end of the district are finding employment.

The situation has become so acute that work has been temporarily suspended until an agreement can be reached. Those living in the eastern part of the district, where the road was expected to be built, declare that "right under their noses" the program as being carried out, is intensifying the labor situation.

Hearings have been given those demanding that they be given work.

He advocated a campaign of public education designed to make buyers realize the place filled in each community by the home merchants. Officers of the new organization will be elected next Tuesday.

Youth Is on Trial In Traffic Death

Blame in Killing of Danville Boy by Auto Is Laid to Defendant.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 12.—Robert Douthat, prominent Danville youth, went on trial in the Corporation Court today on an indictment charging him with responsibility for the death of Vernon Black, an 8-year-old boy, January 26. The State charges that Douthat was at the wheel of an automobile which killed the boy and that he was intoxicated at the time.

A succession of witnesses were heard today supporting the conflicting claims by the State and defense. Some testified that Douthat was driving the car and that the fatality could have been avoided had he controlled the car. Douthat, the last witness, denied that he was driving and denied he was intoxicated.

The defense is that Bunny Slayton was the chauffeur and that Douthat, after picking up the dying child, took the wheel and drove to the hospital. On the way there, however, the car collided with another, partially wrecking it. The case will be argued and submitted tomorrow.

Restoration Work In Virginia Told

Lecture Given Under Auspices of Colonial Dames of America.

Details of the restoration of the colonial capital of Williamsburg, Va., made possible through the munificence of John D. Rockefeller, were told in a lecture yesterday at the Washington Club by the Rev. Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, rector of Old Bruton Church in that town.

The lecture was the first of a series of lectures to be given under the auspices of Chapter 3, Colonial Dames of America. The next lecture will be Wednesday, March 19, at the Washington Club, when Paul Wilstach will speak on "Mount Vernon and the Historic Potomac" and illustrate his talk with lantern slides.

The speaker also referred to the bill now pending in Congress to make 1,400 acres of historic land in this vicinity, including Jamestown Island and the battlefield of Yorktown, into a historic colonial monument, connected by a scenic highway.

STRANGE PARALYSIS NOTED IN GEORGIA

Malady Like That in Other States Afflicts Ten in Two Cities.

ISOLATION IS ORDERED

Atlanta, Ga., March 12 (A.P.).—Ten persons in Powder Spring and Dallas today were reported to the State Board of Health as suffering from a mysterious form of paralysis, similar to that affecting scores of persons in Tennessee and Oklahoma.

Immediate steps were taken by the board of health officers to isolate the persons afflicted with the malady, to guard against its spread, should it prove to be contagious.

"We do not know whether the cases are a result of disease or poisoning," a statement from the State Board of Health said. "We are going to isolate and study them and will be guided by the findings of Tennessee doctors, since our cases seem identical with theirs and already have been been at work upon a diagnosis.

Affected Suffer No Pain.

"Those afflicted seem in no danger. The pain is nominal. Paralysis shifts from one member to another and there seems thus far to be no indication that the injury will be permanent.

"Existence of the disease in Georgia became known with the arrival here of one of those stricken, for treatment by an Atlanta physician. The doctor was unable to diagnose the malady, but said the symptoms were identical with that of persons suffering from the affliction in Tennessee."

The history of the Georgia cases showed the inception in a cold, followed by sore throat, then numbness of the limbs, and pain with the patient finally becoming unable to flex the muscles of the afflicted member.

No Fatalities Are Listed.

As in Tennessee there have been no fatalities among those stricken.

Johnson City, Tenn., March 12 (A. P.).—Two additional State health department experts arrived here today to aid in combatting the paralysis which has afflicted a reported total of 138 persons in four East Tennessee counties.

The county and State physicians who have been studying the ailment since its outbreak last week said there were no reports of new cases today in Washington, Carter, Sullivan or Unico Counties. Washington County continued to have the majority.

Slight Improvement Noted.

Slight improvement was noted in several cases, but Dr. S. S. Moody, Washington health department, said no progress had been made toward diagnosing or finding a cure for the condition. It has reached its peak in every case with numbness of the feet and ankles, preventing walking and in some instances causing considerable pain. Head colds and throat infections have occurred in every illness.

Dr. Moody reiterated that while most of the victims are men who said they had taken liquor recently, poor intoxicants could not be blamed definitely.

Dr. E. L. Bishop, health commissioner, left today after an investigation. Dr. William Litterer and Dr. H. C. Stewart came to aid State physicians and county health authorities.

Interurban Line Changes Owners

Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Co. Sold to Bus Man.

Purchase of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railroad was announced yesterday by R. L. May, a Virginia bus operator, who has several lines of buses running between Washington and Alexandria. Effective March 20, both buses and electric cars will leave from Twelfth and D streets northwest. Mr. May's buses have been stationed at Ninth and C streets northwest.

The new operator of the electric line has informed District Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission that he will immediately renew the company's tracks from Highway Bridge to the junction with Washington Railway & Electric Co.'s tracks on Fourteenth street. Failure of the old company to renew tracks has held up paving improvements near the bridge.

Mr. May contemplates continuing the service on the electric line to Alexandria. The right of way between Alexandria and Mount Vernon is no longer available, having been sold by the old company to the Government for the new George Washington Memorial boulevard.

Man Whose Car Killed Another Is Sentenced

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 12.—Odell Maynard, a Negro, who last December caused the death of Joe Ingram, a white man, and injury to four others when his car ran wild in a carnival crowd, yesterday was sentenced to serve six months in jail.

Indicted on a murder charge, he pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the corporation court. The State accepted the plea, it was explained, because none of the witnesses in the case, all identified with the carnival, came back to Virginia for the hearing.

Thieves smashed a window in the Travelers Shoe Store at 418 Seventh street northwest yesterday, stealing two pairs of shoes and 60 pairs of ladies' silk hose. James J. Smith, manager, valued the loot at $93.

18 TRUE BILLS FOUND ON JONES STATUTE

Grand Jury Fails to Return Indictment Against George Cassidy.

NINE OTHERS IGNORED

Eighteen persons were indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday on charges of violating the Jones act. At the same time the body ignored similar charges against three other persons.

Chief among those against whom charges were ignored is William David Goldberg. His arrest near the Senate Office Building shortly after the arrest of George L. Cassidy, "the man in the green hat," in the same neighborhood precipitated a demand for a senatorial investigation.

Prohibition agents who arrested Goldberg and a young woman, who later was released, stated that they had been acting on a tip, and that when Goldberg drove up in a coupe automobile they closed in. They allege that Goldberg attempted to place a package of liquor in an automobile parked against the Senate Office Building. The agents stated that when Goldberg saw them he threw the package to the ground and stepped on it.

Cassidy's case reached the grand jury last week and he was indicted.

In addition to Goldberg others against whom Jones law charges were ignored are: Rena May Cole and Berry Augustine Cannon.

Those indicted on Jones law charges are: Mosby Williams, Effie Lee, William Leo Larkin, William Cabell, John Edward Eddy, Louis Mazer, Edward Buell, Sylvan Provost Taylor, Stanley Morris Beaner, Stanley Gordon Gray, Thomas William Collins, John Hauptman, Robert Lee Pitts, Webster Penn Dorey, Jeff Holloway, Harry Lazarus, alias Hyman Lazarus; Frederick Oliver Rinker, alias Frederick Oliver Cole, and Joseph DeMar, alias Joseph Pagiolo.

The Jones law indictments are among 64 returned by the inquisitorial body, charges ranging from first degree murder to nonsupport.

In addition to ignoring the three Jones law charges, the grand jury failed to indict in seven other instances, as follows: William J. Gillick, two charges of false pretenses; Charles R. Olive, embezzlement; John Russ, alias Robert Ruse, embezzlement; Jesse W. Costello, forgery; Charles W. Arnold, forgery, and Willie Johnson, robbery.

Mrs. Bryan Buried By Husband's Side

Body of Commoner's Wife Is Laid to Rest in Arlington.

(Associated Press.)

The body of Mrs. Mary Baird Bryan last night lay beside that of her famous husband, William Jennings Bryan, in Arlington Cemetery.

Only a few witnessed the simple burial ceremonies for the widow of "the Commoner." Funeral services had been held in California, where Mrs. Bryan, an invalid for twelve years, was visiting a daughter, Mrs. Grace R. L. Hargreaves, when she died on January 31.

The same clergyman, Dr. J. R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church here, who conducted the services over the body of Mrs. Bryan's husband on July 31, 1925, officiated yesterday.

Before her visit to California, Mrs. Bryan had been living in Washington with another daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, now representative from Florida. Besides Mrs. Owen, those at the burial services included William Jennings Bryan, jr., and P. H. Callahan, of Louisville, Ky., the latter secretary of the William Jennings Bryan Memorial Association.

'Uncle Jim' Richmond Dies; Served U. S. for 40 Years

Custodian of President's Gallery in House Succumbs.

James Richmond, 86 years old, Civil War veteran and a Government employe for 40 years, who died Tuesday at the Naval Hospital, will be buried tomorrow afternoon in Arlington Cemetery. Services will be at 1 o'clock in Zurhorst's funeral parlors.

Mr. Richmond, who was known as "Uncle Jim" at the Capitol, lived at 316 East Capitol street. He was a native of Ohio. During the Civil War he served the Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

In 1888 he came to Washington and entered the service of the Bureau of Engraving. He remained there 30 years. In 1918 he was appointed to the honor roll of retired veterans at the Capitol, a position reserved for enlisted Civil War service men. Since then he had been in charge of the President's gallery at the House of Representatives.

FRANCE FACES BRITAIN.

All the correspondents in London have sent out the statement that the American delegation has turned down the plan for a consultative pact. There seems to be no doubt that the delegation has advised Foreign Minister Briand and Prime Minister MacDonald that the United States is not willing to sign an agreement to confer with the other powers for the purpose of averting threatened war. But the public is denied the specific information that would be conveyed by an official statement, and therefore the scope and bearing of America's present position are left undisclosed.

The furtive manner in which information is given out in London is extremely unsatisfactory to the public. On more than one occasion the information furnished has been misleading. The public does not yet know whether the United States insists upon building a dreadnaught to match the British Rodney, or whether the proposal has been abandoned. Mr. Stimson recently hinted that a 200,000-ton reduction of naval forces was in sight, but he gave no details, and his statement would not bear analysis.

M. Briand's renewed emphasis upon the importance of referring any understanding at London to the preparatory commission on disarmament at Geneva seems to confirm the report that hope of a consultative pact has been abandoned. As France thrusts the League of Nations program forward the chances of an effective separate agreement at London are diminished. France hoped to obtain a commitment from the United States which would be equivalent to an alliance. Failing to obtain it, and not wishing to break up the conference by refusing to make any tonnage concessions whatever, France now interposes the plea that any agreement reached at London must be tentative, as a mere program to be considered later by the preparatory commission in shaping the agenda for a general disarmament conference. In accepting the invitation to London this reservation was made by the French government, and it may now prove useful as a means of avoiding a drastic cut in the French naval program.

The French foreign minister has many strings to his bow. If one will not serve, he will use another and another. He is making sure that France shall escape from the domination of the British navy. This is his opportunity, while Britain is unable to maintain a double standard against French competition.

Ramsay MacDonald's purpose in calling the conference was to induce other powers to quit building, so that the British navy might remain superior without additional expense. He was not in the confidence of France, and could not foresee that France would seize the occasion to announce an enormous naval increase. Mr. MacDonald evidently regarded the United States as Britain's only rival. He expected France to play a minor role in London.

As of old, the two powers face each other across the channel. The ancient rivalry did not expire during the war. It was merely latent, and has now sprung up at a time that is embarrassing to England. The Labor government dares not load up the budget with a naval expansion program, and yet it sees France forging ahead to the point where, unless Britain builds more warships, British domination of the narrow seas and the Mediterranean will disappear.

What has Mr. MacDonald to offer to France to induce her to remain content with British sea supremacy?

This is not the first conference which has run contrary to the expectations of its promoters. The enthusiasts who think there is peace magic in the word "conference" should read history and study human nature. Unless carefully prearranged, an international conference is apt to stir up devil's broth. The London conference has intensified naval suspicion and international rivalry.

TERRIBLE PROBLEM OF INDIA.

Mahatma Gandhi, India's peaceful revolutionist, marches to the sea with a band of disciples where he plans to manufacture salt in defiance of the British monopoly. No one can foretell where the march will end. The campaign of civil disobedience, embracing nonpayment of taxes and similar passive resistance to the government, was inaugurated yesterday morning when the 60-year-old leader emerged from his "Ashram," or college of disciples, and to the cheers of an assembled multitude set forth on the crusade that Indian leaders have likened to Paul Revere's ride. There is no intention, say the leaders, of engaging in a military revolt against the British government. The policy of nonviolence ratified by the Indian National Congress remains unchanged. But "peace" and "revolution" are antitheses. A crisis of major proportions impends.

Gandhi commands an enormous following. He appeals to Indians not only as a disciple of nationalism but as a philosopher, a teacher and, to a greater or less degree, a holy man. His influence is evident from the fact that the campaign of civil disobedience, which he conceived and formulated, prevailed against the program of violence and armed resistance preached by the more radical nationalists in the National Congress in January. Gandhi has strength; he has trained leaders to step into his shoes should he be put out of the way. Normally they would not wield the power of the master, but were Gandhi made a martyr, his lieutenants would capitalize his martyrdom.

It is for this reason that the government hesitates to arrest Gandhi—for this reason and for the reason that if the campaign of peaceful resistance was halted it might be superseded by a campaign of violence. India is seething with unrest. The "impoverished dumb millions" appear to have been inflamed to the point where they stand ready to strike. The unorganized people could not stand up against the British army, but the day has passed when a government can send an army to mow down and massacre a people. Great Britain's dominions would not subscribe to a war of this nature. The English people themselves would have something to say if an attempt were made to pour millions of pounds into a war in India at a time when suffering and distress are rampant in the tight little isle.

What will be Britain's answer to the campaign of civil disobedience? Gandhi can not be permitted to paralyze the government. Taxes must be collected. But the authorities can stop him only at the peril of bringing about bloodshed and an appalling revolt. Nor is India capable of governing itself, even if it were possible for Great Britain to withdraw. The situation is fraught with terrible dangers, and no solution of the problem is in sight.

NEW YORK AND THE REDS.

New York has adopted an effective way of dealing with Communist agitators. Police Commissioner Whalen has made a survey of all industrial plants where red agents are causing trouble, and the names of the agitators have been supplied to employers. They will be discharged. Three hundred names have already been given to employers, and the total may run into thousands.

The police are engaged in a campaign to rid the city of organizers, propagandists and trouble-makers acting under instructions from the Communist party. As part of the bolshevist scheme to undermine the "capitalistic" industries of this country conspirators have been placed in many industrial establishments. The police are acting in cooperation with employers with a view to preventing riots, sabotage and labor troubles before the Communist poison takes effect.

Communism has no place in the American industrial system. It is as repugnant to organized labor as it is to capitalists. Since the whole purpose of the Communists is to destroy the existing economic system, no plant in which the agents of Moscow secure a foothold is safe from their subversive schemes. American industry can not afford to nourish a snake in its bosom, even though it may be in embryo. Employers are not only justified in ridding their factories of Communist organizers and agitators, but they owe it to their country and to loyal American workmen. Other cities will adopt New York's method of dealing with the reds, as the evidence of deviltry is unearthed.

GERMANY RATIFIES.

Final liquidation of the obligations imposed upon Germany as a result of the World War has been achieved through the ratification of the Young plan by the Reichstag. Legislatures of the creditor nations have yet to ratify the plan, but in view of the agreements reached at Paris and The Hague there seems to be no doubt of their acquiescence. The penalty to be exacted from Germany for its part in the war is definitely fixed. Germany acknowledges its obligation, and the collection of reparations henceforth becomes a business matter.

The overwhelming vote in favor of ratification again demonstrates the good sense of the Reichstag, composed of representatives of the German people. Uncertainty as to how much Germany must pay, as to how long its finances would be dominated by foreigners, and as to when the last troops of occupation would leave German soil has been removed. Foreign directors of the Reichsbank and the German federal railways will resign and S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, will withdraw. From this time on Germany will be master of its own fate if faith is kept with the creditor nations.

The German people will be burdened with a heavy load for the next two generations. The Young plan calls for annual payments to the creditor nations for the next 59 years. The aggregate debt amounts to $24,000,000,000. Annuities have been scaled down from the figures of the Dawes plan now in effect. They represent a minimum of what Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan will accept in recompense for damage suffered during the war. On the other hand, they represent an approximate maximum of what Germany is able to pay.

Although both the plans for settlement of German reparations bear the names of prominent Americans, the United States does not participate in this debt agreement with Germany. This country made no claim for reparations, but the Reichstag has approved a separate agreement covering the cost of American troops of occupation and other minor adjustments. President Hoover recently asked Congress to approve of this agreement.

THE NATIONAL PLAYERS.

The National Theater Players will again unfurl the banner of Thespis on March 31, beginning their sixth consecutive spring and summer season. A Washingtonian—Mr. Stephen E. Cochran—started the National Theater Players on their successful career. Clean, wholesome plays ranging from farce to high comedy have been the offerings. Patrons of the National Theater Players come from all walks of life, and it is the pride of the management, as showing the true democracy of the theater, to point out that three First Ladies of the Land have been amongst the steady subscribers—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. William Howard Taft.

In all the country there is no resident theatrical company comparable to the National Theater Players. Dramatic critics from New York and those cities lying between Washington and the metropolis have come here to view the performances. The players come from the highest ranks of the theater, and from these boards will graduate some of the future stars of the stage; for the National Theater organization develops the youthful talent with which the stage must be supplied.

The announcement that the National Theater Players are about to present another interesting repertoire is encouraging to all lovers of the drama. Under skillful direction they have presented many original productions, besides reviving old plays that bring back memories of the stage in its prime.

THE OLD HOCUS POCUS

From the Christian Science Monitor.

There are on record many amusing hoaxes where the victims of the hoax enjoyed the joke as much as the perpetrators.

One recalls with a chuckle the interest which the Pickwick Club took in archeology, and how during the digging and delving indulged in by its members they came upon a broken stone by the roadside and finally evolved the simple inscription—"Bill Stumps his mark."

A group exploring some years ago in the neighborhood of Banbury, England, received a copy of an inscription which, it is said, was taken from the stones of an old structure just torn down. It read:

Seogeh sreve ereh wcisume vahl
Lah sehs se otreh nos llebdnas
Regin freh non gnires rohyer
Ganoed lryd ale nifae esots sorcy
Rub nabot es rohk co caed ir

The archeologists worked and puzzled over this for some time and then one of their number suggested that they try reading it backward. When this was done it proved to be a transposition of the old nursery rhyme:

Ride a cock horse to Banbury Cross
To see a fine lady ride on a grey horse

A hoax which did not really deceive any one, but amused many, and puzzled some, was known as the "Dutch Mail" hoax. Some time in 1840 an article appeared in The Leicester Herald (England) which, the editor announced, came too late for translation from the Dutch. The truth was that, due to an accident in the composing room one column of type became horribly "pied." As there was no time to straighten it out, the editor decided to have some fun, and let the mixture go through. It caused a good deal of comment, aroused much curiosity and proved a good advertisement for the paper!

Poe's balloon hoax in 1844, and his moon hoax nine years earlier, certainly showed up the credulity of the public. The balloon hoax was the account of the crossing of the Atlantic by a group of men in three days in a balloon or flying machine called the Victoria. This account was purely a figment of Poe's imagination, but it captured the fancy of the public. The excitement was great. Poe attempted to explain the fictitious character of the tale, but people would not listen. They wanted to believe in this extraordinary feat. Aviation seed was sprouting.

Later Poe said: "If the Victoria did not absolutely accomplish the voyage recorded, it will be difficult to assign a reason why she should not have accomplished it." Verily, there was faith in aviation in that statement!

Poe's moon hoax was the account of a trip to the moon by Hans Pfall. Herschel's telescope had just been invented, and this had added much to astronomical lore. Thus Poe wove together fact and fiction in a clever way; and again the public was keyed to a high pitch of excitement over what it considered a wonderful feat. In this case, also, Poe's attempts to explain were futile. As a result of the public's attitude, Poe never finished his story of Hans Pfall. "He remains where I left him, and is still, I believe, the man in the moon," said Poe.

Perhaps one of the most famous hoaxes on record is that known as the Great Bottle Hoax, which occurred in 1749, and was the outcome of a wager between the Duke of Portland and the Earl of Chesterfield.

One of them said: "Do you mean to say that if I were to advertise so impossible a thing as a man jumping into a bottle on the stage of a theater, anybody would be foolish enough to buy a ticket?" The other replied that there would be an amazing number of people who would do that very thing. To test the matter out, a notice was inserted in a London daily to the effect that on a certain night, at a certain theater, a man on the stage would jump into an ordinary bottle and then jump out again. The theater was crammed to the doors, from gallery to pit, and crowds struggling outside to get in. Of course, nothing happened, but several wags in the audience got up on the stage and promised to do the trick at a later date.

Sullen and obstinate he stood,
And would not answer when he could.

The Hen Is Fooled by Electric Lights and Lays Eggs as in Summer

By ROBERT QUILLEN

EXCEPT in rare cases, they can be happy who will.

When the Fathers declared the rights of man, they were careful not to include the state of happiness, but only the pursuit of it; for it is clear that happiness is not the right of undeserving men, and equally clear that all have the right to pursue it by making themselves deserving.

There was wisdom in the choice of that word "pursuit," for it is clearly established that the unhappy individual can develop happiness as a farmer develops corn, and by much the same process.

He can plant the seed of it in himself and leave the rest to Nature.

He can pretend happiness and nature will make him happy in fact.

This is not a Pollyanna banality but an emotionless scientific truth, easily demonstrable.

It is true because nature's reactions to stimuli are habitual and automatic, without the guidance of conscious reason, and therefore are easily harnessed by trickery.

Thus vaccination is effective because nature regards it as an invasion of disease germs and organizes her forces of defense so effectively that the subject is made as immune to the disease as one who endures the malady itself.

Thus a brutal father, however calmly he may begin the punishment of his child, is stirred to wrath by the action wrath commonly employs, and ends by surrendering to ungovernable rage.

Thus Burns, the poet, whiled away the tedious rustic hours by "going through the motions" of being in love, knowing by experience that pretense would blossom into reality.

That is the secret of cultivating happiness.

As the play grief of a little girl with dolls ends in genuine woe, so the physical action of laughter, however forced and artificial it may be, tends to produce the emotion of laughter.

To smile by an effort of the will is to set in motion a series of reflexes and reactions that develop a genuine inclination to smile.

And to pretend happiness when the spirit is depressed—to sing, whistle, speak cheerfully and do all things with the zest and gusto common to happiness—is to generate the emotion of happiness itself.

So true is this, and so mechanical are the reactions of nature, that any normal individual who continues to nurse a "grouch" does so deliberately and by choice.

The kingdom of heaven is within you.

The source and substance of happiness are within you, ready for use when you have your fill of self-pity.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LETTER TO A NAVAL PARLEY DELEGATE FROM HIS WIFE.

My Dear Gideon: This is just a line to let you know you still live in our memory. The children all speak of you quite often. They do not remember your face, of course, but they hear me speak of you and have seen numerous references to you in the cable news ever since they were little tots.

It is for their sake that I sincerely hope you are alive and well and that we may some day see you again, as the neighbors are beginning to talk. It was all right for the first four or five years to tell them you were in London at a naval conference but they no longer believe that story and I can tell by their attitude that they really believe you are in jail or something.

"Oh, how I yearn to see you again, Gideon! I am quite sure I would know you, although you have probably changed a lot during the years since I last saw you. Have you aged greatly or taken on flesh? The children have come on a lot during the conference debate on cruisers. Willie, who was but 3 years old when the conference first took up that question, is now in his senior year in high school, and Hilary, who was 5 the month you and the delegates first began discussing battleship replacements, made the varsity football team at Yale last fall. Evelyn, who was in the cradle when the parley debated on abolition of submarines, is now engaged to a fine young man and she often asks me what her daddy is like. Would that I could remember!

I suppose you know we no longer live in the old home. The march of progress could not be halted and a few years ago the house was razed to make way for a fifteen-story business block. The whole neighborhood is no longer residential, and the old railroad station, where we saw you off to the London Naval Limitations Conference, has been replaced by a new and magnificent structure.

Did you know that President Harding had died? Probably you have heard of that. A boy named Lindbergh flew to France alone in an airplane called the Spirit of St. Louis Gen. Smedley Butler has been retained to drive crime out of Philadelphia, and a young writer named Eugene O'Neill has written a sensational play called "Desire Under the Elms."

* * * *

Well, outside of that, things are about the same. I think I told you in my last letter that I lost an eye in a taxicab accident some years ago and that I have been quite ill ever since the Hudson-Fulton celebration. I am feeling better now, though.

Do try to break away from the conference, if only for two or three years, so the family can see what you look like again. If you can arrange to come home cable me and I will meet you at the station. I will wear a red rose so you will know me. You can carry an American flag.

With all the love in the world and hoping we may live to see the naval parley ended, I am

Your loving wife, EMMA.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Bingham Plan for Philippine Inquiry Requisite to Intelligent Action Looking to Independence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post is taking a constructive attitude on the Philippine independence question by favoring eventual independence after a period of readjustment.

Before any plan could be decided upon, however, the facts of the problem should be ascertained. The Bingham bill provides for a Filipino-American commission for the ascertainment of the facts in a dispassionate and judicial manner. The approval of that bill is indispensable if any constructive step is to be taken toward the final solution of the independence problem.

The Filipino leaders say now they are against the Bingham bill. Only a few years ago the Filipino resident commissioner in Congress, Senor Pedro Guevara, presented before the Williamstown Institute of Politics (which he then incorporated in a speech on the floor of the House of Representatives) a plan that was on all fours with the present Bingham plan of a fact-finding commission. It was understood the Guevara proposal had the approval not only of the Filipino press but also of the Filipino public. And it was also hailed by many Americans interested in seeing a definite settlement of the Philippine question.

At present the Filipinos are for the King bill, which provides for immediate independence, although Senor Manuel Robas, chairman of the Philippine mission, expressed himself in favor of the Bingham bill if the King bill is not passed, which he must have known would not and could not pass. I hope The Post will continue advocating the early solution of the Philippine problem by concrete methods of approach.

No Federal Supervision of American Schools, Thank You!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The National Education Association, through its department of superintendence, has renewed its proposal for the establishment of a Department of Education, its secretary to sit in the President's Cabinet.

In the material world absolute standardization is desirable—standardized carpet-tacks and nails and bolts and screws, standardized automobile fixtures, standardized railroad tracks. But the standardization of human beings is the most perplexing problem with which civilized man has to deal, and in the development of American citizenship, there is a limit beyond which standardization is pernicious.

With its opportunities for the insidious shaping of the thoughts of the youth of the country, a Federal establishment of education would be as objectionable as the "establishment of religion," which is banned by the Constitution. FEDERALIST.

"Education" by Radio Will Be Incidental—Scraps of Culture in the Feast of Jazz.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Education by radio" has an alluring sound, but in the full definition of "education," I do not think it can ever be more than a superficial aid in the spread of knowledge.

Those who dream of an all-inclusive people's university of the radio are, I imagine, misled by their scholarly zeal for the popular extension of culture. Those who anticipate good results from incidental educational broadcasting in radio programs have the right idea.

Commercial broadcasting as a source of popular entertainment has proved its worth, although I would gladly miss its crooner who sings like a sick calf. It already serves a good purpose with its scraps of culture for the radio fans, and no doubt in this connection it may make great advances in the future.

EDUCATOR.

Men Will Be Boys—Lads at London May Say Later, "We Didn't Know It Was Loaded!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The proceedings of the London conference remind me of the old saying that "men are only boys grown old." And the old boys of world politics do not seem to change much from generation to generation. How the Disraelis and Bismarcks of the past would enjoy themselves if they could come back and join in the sport!

The old army musket of boyhood days was harmless enough as a usual thing, but occasionally it went off with tragic results. The naval limitation idea is likewise a harmless plaything which, nevertheless, may prove unsafe in combination with the high explosives of European diplomacy. In case that it should unfortunately explode, the boys in their guileless innocence can offer the fine old excuse, "We didn't know it was loaded." OLD TIMER.

Suggests That Plaza at Pennsylvania Avenue and Fifteenth Street Be Named Taft Square.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I suggest that the memory of Chief Justice Taft be perpetuated by giving his name to the plaza and park that will be created of the block lying between Pennsylvania avenue and the new Department of Commerce Building. While the park will not be large, its situation in the very heart of the Capital makes up for its lack of size. Let it be named Taft Square and let there be erected therein a suitable monument to the memory of the only man who was both President and Chief Justice of the United States!

Says Nicholas Murray Butler's Talk Has Made Him Dry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am interested in the prohibition inquiry in your city to the extent as to not be partial to either side, but what I have read so far has cured me of being a wet. I have voted the straight Republican ticket for 50 years. The disgusting and atrocious attitude of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler toward the eighteenth amendment, and his splentic talk has alienated many Republicans both dry and wet. E. B. TOEDT.

HAITI BOARD PLANS TO PRESS DEMANDS

Hoover Commission to Insist Borno Support Idea of Temporary Ruler.

ISLAND JAUNT IS ENDED

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, March 12 (A.P.).—The Hoover Investigating Commission returned to this capital tonight determined to back up its demand that President Louis Borno adhere to his promise to support the commission's plan for a temporary president so that the muddled political situation of the island republic might be cleared up.

Once that subject is out of the way, the commission intends to take up its final study of Haitian conditions preparatory to its return to the United States. Members of the commission said tonight that they hoped they would be able to get away after about another week's work.

En route here today on the U. S. S. Rochester from Gonaives, the last stop on the tour which took in half a dozen of the largest towns of the republic, the commission received a wirelessed report quoting a statement credited to President Borno in the newspaper "Le Moniteur."

Constitution Referred to.

The newspaper quoted the President as saying that he approved the commission plan for a temporary administration only on condition that it would be executed in strict accord with the constitution of Haiti and the treaty of 1915.

Since the constitution, under strict interpretation, would not provide for national legislative elections until 1932, the commission interpreted this as an apparent attempt by the president to delay execution of the plan.

Members of the commission were emphatic in declaring that the problem must be solved at once. They said they never had knowledge of any conditional acceptance of their proposal by President Borno. The latter will be told of this attitude tomorrow unless he changes his own attitude overnight.

Promises Not to Run.

The newspaper also said that the president had renewed his declaration that he would not be a candidate for reelection and that he had no other candidate to propose.

Already there are about 20 candidates in the field, either openly or through mention of their names by friends. The one who is most frequently discussed is Eugene Roy.

Delegates to the convention which is to choose a president in accordance with the commission plan have already been selected at Jeremie, Aux Cayes, and Port de Paix. Election for capital's representatives was held here today.

Auburn Convict Freed Of Guilt in Riot Killing

Auburn, N. Y., March 12 (A.P.).—Max Becker, Auburn convict, today was acquitted of a charge of murder, first degree, for the death of principal Keeper George A. Durnford in the prison riot of last December 11.

Becker was the seventh man tried for murder as an outgrowth of the riot. Three of the six defendants in the first trial now are in Sing Sing Prison's death house. Three others were acquitted. The six were tried on charges of murder, first degree, in the killing of Henry Sullivan, convict, in the riot, in which Keeper Durnford and seven convicts were killed.

Veteran, Held on Liquor Count, Ends Life in Cell

Johnson City, Tenn., March 12 (A.P.).—Arrested on a charge of drunkenness, Hiram Thompson, 34 years old, inmate of the National Soldiers' Home, hanged himself in prison here, W. L. Fleming, chief of police, announced today.

The announcement said that the body, hanging by a woven belt to an iron window bar, was found this morning by two other prisoners when they awoke in the same cell. Thompson entered the Soldiers' Home in 1927, coming here from Mount Vernon, Ind.

Murder Is Laid to Two In Alleged Kidnaping

Wooster, Ohio, March 12 (A.P.).—The Wayne County grand jury today indicted Charles Hannah and Earl Conold, jointly, with child stealing, and separately with first degree murder in the disappearance of Melvin Horst, 4-year-old Orrville boy, December 27, 1928.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IT is rather an amazing political picture that is unfolding in Pennsylvania.

One member of the President's Cabinet is out to get the Republican senatorial nomination from the hands of a sitting senator, who is the candidate of another member of the Cabinet.

Mr. Davis has been campaigning already from his office and presumably will continue to do so. No one has heard of his submitting his resignation. And this campaigning will be to wreck the Mellon-Grundy machine of the Keystone State.

* * * *

IT is the weirdest picture one has seen in a long time. Which side has the administration favor? Undoubtedly both will try to bask in it and it is quite likely that as the campaign goes on one will make outright claim to presidential support and the other will very probably insist that no, it is the fair-haired son.

These Republican candidates usually have as their main and often their sole slogan, "Support the President."

Mr. Davis will be able to use this with a perfectly straight face, that is, if he keeps reasonably quiet on the prohibition question. Mr. Hoover must approve of him. He is in Mr. Hoover's Cabinet. And while the general opinion is that this is because the labor leaders could not agree upon his successor, the fact is that he is a member of the Cabinet and the President would not keep him if he did not approve of him.

NOW, it is unlikely that Mr. Grundy will go around shouting "Elect me to support the President!" because that would cause too many laughs, but he certainly will be able to point to his vote with the administration forces in the Senate on every vote that has been taken. Just how is one to figure that out?

If the President's name is not to be dragged into the fight, just how will Mr. Davis pursue Mr. Grundy? Just what course will he take against him?

Will he challenge Mr. Grundy's votes on the tariff? Mr. Grundy has only to reply that he voted as did the other administration forces.

* * * *

IS IT then to be a war against the Mellons, against fabulous wealth?

Well, what kind of a happy Cabinet family would that be, with one member out on the hustings uttering imprecations against a colleague?

One has the sneaky suspicion that Mr. Hoover hopes that Mr. Davis will win. Mr. Grundy, despite his vote every time with the administration forces, is not a friend of the President, paradoxical as that may sound. Indeed, the President has reason to fear trouble from this same Mr. Grundy. And Mr. Vare, whose banner Mr. Davis is carrying, was much kinder to Mr. Hoover at the Kansas City convention than either Mr. Mellon or Mr. Grundy.

The President, however, will probably try to keep out of the mess. If he succeeds it will then be unmistakable that he cares nothing about the Senate at all. It will, indeed, be a new record for disinterest.

REICHSTAG PASSES YOUNG DEBTS PLAN

Pact for Reparations to U. S. Is Also Approved in German Ballot.

POLISH PAYMENT VOTED

Berlin, March 12 (A.P.).—The Young plan and other measures connected with it, as well as the German-American agreement by which Germany's reparations payments to the United States are regulated, were given final approval by the Reichstag today.

The Young plan measure itself was given third and final reading by a vote of 265 to 192. The German-American agreement was approved by a rising vote. The Polish liquidation was approved, 236 to 217.

The measure by which the final liquidation of the war debts are provided, now only requires the signature of President von Hindenburg and publication of the ratification in the official gazette before becoming law as far as Germany is concerned.

The Nationalist opponents of the Young plan palyed their last card in an effort to secure two months' time during which they hoped another plebiscite on the Young plan might be arranged, but this maneuver was countered by the government declaring today's legislation "urgent."

There is no doubt in Berlin but that President von Hindenburg will sign the documents by which it is expected Germany will be freed from foreign occupation and foreign control and will be restored to full sovereignty.

Under the Young plan, which was signed in Paris on June 7, 1929, the payments which Germany must make to the allied powers for the next 59 years are fixed. Delegates representing six creditor nations—the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy and Japan—signed the report with the representatives of Germany.

The Young plan superseded the Dawes plan, under which S. Parker Gilbert had been agent general for reparations.

The plan, which took its name from Owen D. Young, called for a reduction of the reparations annuities during the next 37 years from approximately $600,000,000 to an average of approximately $492,000,000. Annuities of $408,000,000 were recommended for the last 22 years subject to the profits of the bank for international settlements created under the agreement.

Accomplice in Slaying Sentenced to 20 Years

Boston, Tex., March 12 (A.P.).—Bud Goodwin, 21, was found guilty in Bowie Circuit Court today as an accomplice in the slaying of Lloyd Elliott, 22, and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment following an instructed verdict by the jury.

His brother, Dave Goodwin, 40, late yesterday was sentenced to electrocution for the slaying.

but with head erect and determined to start anew when he gained again his freedom.

Keyes sent more than 5,000 persons to State Prison. Nearly 3,000 of these have served their term or been paroled.

There was much curiosity as to how 2,000 still here would receive him. It was found they virtually ignored him.

When Keyes got out of the car before the prison entrance this morning Warden James B. Holohan was there to greet him.

For a moment Keys and the warden posed for photographers, then they entered the prison yard, Keyes leaving the world behind for "one to fourteen years," becoming for that period number 48,218. Care will be taken to prevent possible attacks by any convict sent here by him who may seek revenge.

After Keyes has served the first year of his sentence the State pardon board may decide the exact length of his term.

His months in jail in Los Angeles reduced his weight perhaps 40 pounds. He is far from being the grim and husky nemesis of bad men that he was during the years when he sent "over the road" some of the most notorious outlaws of the West.

Condemned Oklahoman Hangs Himself in Cell

McAlester, Okla., March 12 (A.P.).—Charles R. Fray, slayer of two women, cheated the electric chair by hanging himself in his cell in death row at the State Penitentiary here today. He was under sentence to die March 28.

Fray, who killed his wife, Lucille, and his former wife, Laura, and on the same day seriously wounded the town marshal of Jenks, Okla., apparently while in a drunken rage, took his life while other condemned men in adjoining cells were eating their breakfast. They said they heard no noise. The body was found hanging from an upper bunk. A cell blanket had been twisted into a hangman's noose.

$12,500 BAIL IS SET FOR NEW YORK REDS

Five Are Held in Connection With Communist Riot Last Thursday.

SECURITY IS OFFERED

New York, March 12 (A.P.).—Bail of $12,500 each was set today for William Z. Foster, Workers' Communist candidate for President in 1928, and four other Communist leaders, who are held on two charges in connection with the "Red Thursday" riot in Union Square last week.

Supreme Court Justice Alfred H. Townley held Foster and the others in $10,000 bail each on a felonius assault charge growing out of injuries received by a policeman in the riot, and in $2,500 bail each on a charge of inciting to riot.

Earlier in the day Magistrate John V. Flood had set bail at $5,000 each on the riot charge, and yesterday he held Foster without bail on the felonius assault charge.

Foster and the other four Communists, Robert Minor, Communist editor; Israel Amter, Harry Raymond and Joseph Lester, went from Magistrate Flood's court, where Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen was the principal witness against them on the riot charge, almost directly into Justice Townley's court, where their bail was finally set.

Prior to their hearing before Justice Townley, Mrs. Arthur Garfield Hays, wife of the attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, appeared at the Supreme Court building and announced that she was prepared to offer her home as security for the five Communists. The Hays residence is in the exclusive lower Fifth avenue district, in which Commissioner Whalen and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith occupy apartments, and is valued at $80,000.

Thieves Get Loot Worth $180.

Twenty-three articles of men's and women's wearing apparel valued at $180 was stolen from a tailor shop at 2022 Fourth street northwest yesterday. William H. Watts, proprietor, told police that the thieves entered by breaking a glass window of the store.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

POST WANT ADS PAY

WAR VETERANS PLAN TO TELL EXPERIENCE

The Washington Post would like to read.

They don't have to be long. They don't have to be written in the language of our leading novelists or journalists. All The Post wants is the real story of what happened to "you" while you were serving in the A. E. F.

What is more, The Post wants to pay for each story you submit, and which is published. There is a dollar waiting for every little yarn of World War history which makes its way into print and a $5 weekly prize for the best of these.

To the post of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled Veterans or other service organization turning in the most stories between now and April 16, a prize of $100 will be awarded in addition to the money paid for individual stories.

Don't hesitate about this. Just tell in 100 or 150 words some incident which has remained vivid in your recollection since the days in France. Mention the outfit with which you fought and then collect your dollar. There is no limit to the number of stories any individual may submit.

Your post may need something which can be purchased for $100. If you turn in a story, you'll be helping your post win the grand prize. The first of these stories will appear in The Washington Post next Sunday, and others will follow until the contest closes on April 16.

Get busy, brother. It only takes a few minutes and you'll be helping yourself, your post and the readers of this newspaper. Let's go.

and soon fire companies from Clarendon, Ballston, Cherrydale, East Arlington and Georgetown responded to the alarm. A fireboat also went to aid in the fight, which lasted a half hour.

So high were the flames that a large crowd soon collected on both the Virginia and the District sides of the river and many residents were able to see the reflection from their homes.

Fear was expressed last night by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d that the granite on the bridge might have been marred by the smoke, but firemen said they saw no evidence of such damage. The fire will not halt the progress of the project, he said.

The loss, for which there was no insurance, will be borne by the general contractor, the Severn Construction Co., of Chicago.

Bailey House Feels Inroads Of Matrimony

District Supreme Court Justice's Daughter and Son to Wed.

By JEAN ELIOT.

MARRIAGE is certainly making inroads into the household of Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Supreme Court. No sooner had the engagement of his daughter, Miss Lucy Bailey, to Mr. Lionel Morgan Summers, and of his son, Mr. Jennings Bailey, jr., to Miss Isabel Lamberton been announced than his cook, an old family retainer broke the news that she was soon to be married. And by the time summer rolls round Justice Bailey, instead of being head of a family, will be living in solitary state.

Miss Bailey has chosen Saturday, March 22, as the date of her marriage to Mr. Summers, son of Mrs. Maddin Summers and the late Mr. Summers, who was at one time American Consul General at Moscow. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride in Bancroft place, with only members of the two families in attendance, and will be followed by a small reception at 4:30 o'clock, to which a few intimate friends have been invited. Miss Bailey will have her sister, Miss Elizabeth Bailey, as her maid of honor and only attendant.

The wedding of Mr. Jennings Bailey, jr., and Miss Lamberton is not to take place until summer. It will be a country wedding at the summer home of Miss Lamberton's grandmother, Mrs. Harry Morris Clabaugh, near Blue Ridge Summit, Pa. A debutante of the season now drawing to its close, Miss Isabel Lamberton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Paulding Lamberton. Her grandfather, the late Justice Clabaugh, was for many years chief justice of the District Supreme Court with which Jusitce Bailey is associated.

Miss Lambertop was the first of this season's debutantes to announce her engagement.

Mrs. Charles Cooper, of Baltimore, chairman of orchestra for the National Federatoin of Music Clubs, and Mrs. Joseph Stoddard, president of the District of Columbia Federation, will be guests of the California and Ohio State Federations of Music Clubs in the boxes they have taken for the National Symphony Orchestra concert tomorrow afternoon at Constitution Hall. Other guests of these music groups will be Mrs. Porter H. Dale, president of the Congressional Club; Mrs. Clarence Frederick Lea, Mrs. Arthur M. Free and Mrs. W. E. Evans, of California; Mrs. William W. Chalmers and Mrs. John L. Cable, of Ohio, and Mrs. John Jay O'Connor.

At this concert tomorrow Hans Kindler, famous cellist and conductor, who looms as a possibility as permanent conductor for Washington's new symphony orchestra, will be the guest conductor.

The luncheon in honor of the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme Veverka, arranged by the American Association of University Women for Saturday, has been postponed because of the official mourning.

Capital Home Is Picked Out By Authoress

Michael Strange to Live in Georgetown Residence.

Michael Strange has been successful in studio hunting, has responded to the appeal which Georgetown makes to the artist temperament, and has taken the house at 3036 P street, with a view to making the Capital her headquarters in future. In private life Mrs. Harrison Tweed, wife of a New York lawyer, Michael Strange has a genius of many facets and has achieved success as artist, actress and playwright, with an international reputation as a beauty. But she is perhaps best known as the quondam Mrs John Barrymore.

Born Blanche Oelrichs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oelrichs, of New York, Mrs. Tweed had a brilliant season as a debutante but soon tired of society and turned to literature as a career. She was first married to Mr. Leonard Thomas, of Philadelphia. As a young matron, Paul Helleu, famous French artist, dubbed her "the most beautiful woman in America." Divorcing Mr. Thomas in 1920, she was married that year to John Barrymore, this marriage also ending in the divorce courts. Mr. Tweed consequently is her third husband.

Michael Strange returned yesterday to New York, after spending several days at the Mayflower and devoting herself to house hunting. She will be a welcome addition to Washington's artistic colony. If memory serves, the last time she visited the Capital was when a play which she had written—or adapted—and in which she had the leading role was being presented at the Belasco Theater. This time her small son, Robin Thomas, was with her here.

How could we get along without the Canned Fruits

every grocer sells?

Canned fruits add health and variety to every diet and menu

Every cook should cultivate the habit of using sugar as a flavor. Often fresh vegetables, such as corn, tomatoes, peas, carrots and string beans, need a dash of sugar to restore their sweetness. In making them more palatable, everybody is eager to eat what they need of these foods. This is especially true where children's meals are concerned. Can you blame a child for shying at an insipid vegetable, a too-sour fruit or an unsweetened cereal?

Leading doctors and dieticians recommend the use of a dash of sugar in flavoring foods. What is more, they encourage the inclusion of wholesome desserts in normal diets. Consider this as you plan your meals. Well-flavored foods promote health. The Sugar Institute.

JUST LOOK at the wonderful assortment of canned fruits, jellies, jams and relishes every grocer offers you. You are always able to get just what you want at a nominal cost.

Modern science has been used by the canner to bring the finest fruits to you cooked to uniform perfection. And sugar plays an important part in such results.

"Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with Sugar"

BEHIND THE SCENES

With NELSON B. BELL

WITHIN recent weeks this column has carried various and sundry items pertaining to the establishment of a new talking newsreel under the guidance of a company to be headed by Courtland Smith, with Jack Connolly as vice president and general manager, both, until recently, having been closely identified with the outstanding success of the Fox Movietone News.

For what it is worth—if anything—I quote a portion of a featured story carried in the current issue of a reliable trade publication which may, or may not, shed further light on the matter:

"Straight from an inside, authoritative financial source comes the report, unconfirmed and denied on all sides, that Electrical Research Products, Inc., has made a deal to acquire the interests of Harry M., Albert and Jack Warner in the company bearing their name, and that Courtland Smith, former general manager of Fox Movietone News and a close friend of John E. Otterson of 'Erpi,' will enter the Warner organization as representative of the big electric.

"Warners and 'Erpi' are at cross purposes on the question of royalties. By the contract between the two companies, disputes are settled by arbitration. The Warners several years ago preferred charges against the electric company and, if the arbitrators now considering the evidence determine in Warners' favor, it is reported the company stands an excellent chance of recovering millions. This factor is reported to be a prime one in the deal said to have been made by 'Erpi' for the Warner brothers' holdings.

"Whether or not the reported deal is a purely financial one or whether it presages a switch in operating management is one point which refuses to emerge from the maze. But it is expected that Smith will join the Warner organization ostensibly in charge of a new sound newsreel with Jack Connolly, former European representative of Fox Movietone News, as associate. In reality, so the story goes, Smith is to be the direct inside representative of 'Erpi.'

"'Neither my brothers' nor my interest in the company is for sale to anyone at any price,' Harry M. Warner telegraphed from Hollywood in commenting on the reported deal. 'As stated previously, we are in the business to stay, including our sons.'"

At any rate, this makes a splendid companion piece to the puzzle of who is the operating head of the Fox enterprises!

Next week's attractions in the picture houses, as they stretch out on my desk Wednesday afternoon, will be about as follows: Fox, Kenneth MacKenna in John Ford's production of "Men Without Women;" Metropolitan, Vivienne Segal and John Boles in the Warner Brothers' Technicolor production of "The Song of the West;" Palace, Vilma Banky in "A Lady To Love;" RKO-Keith's, George Sidney and Charlie Murray in "The Cohens and Kellys in Scotland;" Earle, Winnie Lightner in "She Couldn't Say No;" Columbia, William Haines, Leila Hyams and Marie Dressler in "The Girl Said No," second week. The Earle, as usual, will inaugurate the new bill with a Friday midnight performance.

In passing, it might be well to warn you to scan the announcements closely in any attempt to determine which of the pictures relating to the matter of feminine negatives it is you want to see. "The Girl Said No" and "She Couldn't Say No," while they by no means mean the same, look and sound a bit alike—especially if you are reading while you run.

And another thing. This Edward G. Robinson, supporting Vilma Banky in "A Lady to Love," coming to the Palace, must be quite a character actor, judging from the advance glimpses afforded of him in the current trailer. Certainly he betrays no trait or quality in his work that would serve to remind even a habitual picturegoer of his role of the gangster in Joseph Schildkraut's "The Night Ride," recently featured at the Rialto.

It may interest you to know that "The Prisoner of Zenda," which eight years ago featured Barbara La Marr, Alice Terry and Ramon Novarro, is to be remade as a talkie, probably with Novarro again in the lead . . . "Hoot" Gibson's real name is Edward. . . . "The lady that's known as Lou" will be brought to the screen again in a new version of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," with sound effects . . . Yeah, they've killed some of the rest of us, too . . . Visitors to studios steal thousands of dollars worth of souvenirs each year, appropriating practically everything that isn't nailed down or red hot, my informant, Mr. Keavy, apprising me that the favorite mementos are the canvas backs of the chairs bearing the names of celebrities.

I understand that the real reason Jack Gilbert tried to take a punch at Jim Tully was that Jim was regaling the early morning supper hounds by singing the caviar song from "Me and My Shad Roe."

Well, I'll be seeing you around.

WHO'ZAT?

1. He was a French lawyer.
2. During the early stages of the French Revolution he was one of the triumvirate which held supreme power.
3. He was a noted orator.
4. Because he did not favor extreme methods of terrorism he became involved in a disagreement with one of his former associates on the triumvirate, was condemned and guillotined.

Answer to yesterday—Charles Darwin.

Neither Scare Criminal Nor Reconstruct Him, Official Says.

"Our prisons are either too good or too bad. At least they are not right. They neither scare the criminal away nor reconstruct the inmates," said Dr. Sanford Bates, superintendent of prisons, Department of Justice, speaking at a meeting of the Travelers Aid Society at the Burlington Hotel yesterday. Dr. Bates was introduced by Arthur C. Moses, president of the Travelers Aid Society.

The speaker, lawyer, former member of both houses of the Massachusetts Legislature and later commissioner of correction for Massachusetts, before coming to Washington, spoke on the general topic "The Program of Protective Penology." He told of a Western sheriff who boasted that he kept his jail so nasty, dirty and disagreeable that no prisoner ever wanted to recurn and that he had cleared up crime in his section by this method.

Dr. Bates said that if this method were successful, it would be working in 3,700 county jails in the United States through which 500,000 persons pass in and out annually. He declared that it is impossible to make jails bad enough to prevent repetition of crime.

Thursday, March 13th, we start a

Special 9-Day demonstration

HYDRATOR

Desserts and salads will be served. New recipe books will be given away . . . .

Be sure to attend

Here's your opportunity to find out all about the marvelous new Frigidaire Hydrator.

On Thursday, March 13th, we start a special 9-day demonstration—one of the most interesting ever held in our showroom.

We will show the Hydrator in actual use—just as you would use it in your home. You will see how lettuce is made tender and brittle by the Hydrator's moist reviving cold. You will see how celery and radishes take on added crispness—how tomatoes stay firm and delicious. You will see how convenient it is to keep all your vegetables in one compact compartment—how the Hydrator saves shelf space.

Fast freezing exhibition

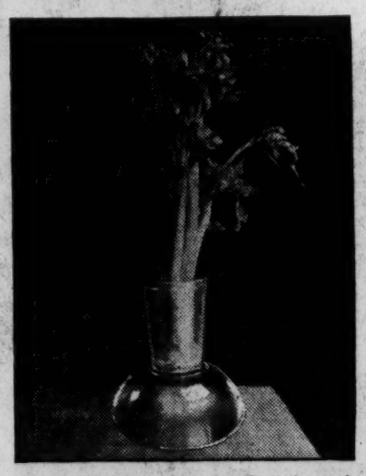
The latest household cabinets in Porcelain-on-steel will be on display. The famous "Frigidaire Cold Control" will be demonstrated. You will be shown how this device freezes ice cubes faster—how it permits you to make scores of unusual desserts that require extreme cold.

Free dessert and salad recipe books

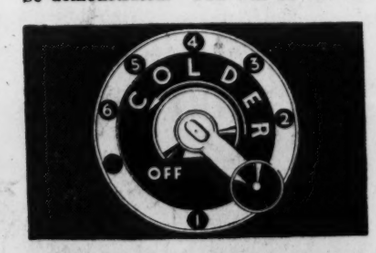
And we'll give you an opportunity to taste the better dishes made possible by the Hydrator and the "Cold Control." A cooking expert will prepare and serve unusual salads and delicious frozen desserts during the entire period of the demonstration. We have also arranged to distribute two souvenir recipe books—both filled with new and different recipes you'll want to try.

Will you be our guest?

Actual photograph of stalk of wilted celery before being placed in the Hydrator. This celery is tough, unpalatable, useless.



The same celery as it came from the Hydrator the following morning. The magic action of the Hydrator has restored the celery to its original state—fresh, crisp, delicious.



THE FAMOUS "FRIGIDAIRE COLD CONTROL"

SPECIAL OFFER until Saturday, March 22nd

We are prepared to make a liberal special offer to all who buy Frigidaire during our 9-day demonstration. Let us tell you about this offer. Let us tell you about our easy payment plan. Come in at your first opportunity. We will be open evenings until ten o'clock every day of the demonstration.

CRABTREE TO KNOW FATE BY SATURDAY

Man Convicted of Slaying to Get Judge's Decision on New Trial Plea.

JUROR TERMED BIASED

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 12.—By the end of the week Walter Crabtree, 36-year-old Romney man, who has been found guilty of murder in the first degree, a crime which automatically means death by hanging, will know if the first move by his counsel since his conviction will give him a new opportunity to save his life or move him closer to the gallows at the State Penitentiary at Moundsville.

Judge A. G. Hughes, who presided at the Crabtree trial, has announced that he will render his decision Saturday on a motion by attorneys for the convicted man to set aside the jury's verdict and grant a new trial. The jurist, some time ago, indicated that he would decide against the prisoner, but has never let that be known definitely.

Counsel for the convicted man, who killed Magistrate H. C. Inskeep, Deputy Sheriff Benjamin Miller and Edward Wolford, an ex-soldier, while on a rampage in Romney last December, and also wounded three women, has set forth a number of reasons in the plea for a new trial. Among them it is claimed that one of the jurors had expressed an opinion before the trial, the opinion prejudicing him against Crabtree.

After Judge Hughes' ruling, if it is against Crabtree, it is likely that the man's attorneys will appeal their case to the Supreme Court of West Virginia in an effort to save his life.

Woman, Hurt by Auto, Files Suit for $20,000

Mrs. Ethel Goldblatt, of 2109 Eighteenth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against John J. Hamilton, attorney, residing at 2611 Woodley place northwest, seeking to collect $20,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered in an automobile accident January 23 last, in front of 2008 Eighteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Goldblatt alleges that she was struck down by the defendant's automobile which was operated by a chauffeur, and that the machine was not under control. She asserts that as a result of the accident she had to have 50 pieces of skin grafted to cover the wound and that she still is in a hospital. Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer appears for the plaintiff.

Youth Is Held in Theft Of Policeman's Bicycle

Charged with stealing the bicycle of Park Policeman Lemuel Bailles, Earl Stevenson, 19 years old, pleaded not guilty in Police Court yesterday and was held for the grand jury under $200 bond.

According to the testimony, Policeman Bailles had answered a call on I street northwest near First street Tuesday and parked his bicycle against a tree. When he emerged from the house he discovered his bicycle was missing. Policeman Lynch, of the First Precinct, said he recognized the bicycle as police property and arrested the youth.

Candy Not Forbidden TO THE FAT

No need to deny yourself all good things because you overweigh. Modern physicians do not advise starvation. They know the dangers of it. They know that people who are over-fat have generally an under-active gland. So they supply the factor, for lack of which too much food goes to fat.

This modern method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. These tablets were perfected, and are prepared, by a famous medical laboratory. A book in each box states the formula and explains the reasons for results.

For 22 years Marmola has held the top place in its field. Millions of boxes have been used in fighting fat. The people who gained new youth and beauty, new health and vigor, have told others. Now the results are seen everywhere. Excess fat has largely disappeared.

There is usually no excuse for an abnormal figure and the dangers which go with it. If the cause is an under-active gland, Marmola is the right way to combat it. For 22 years, countless people have been learning what it does.

Go try Marmola and learn what they have learned. Read the book in the box, then do as directed. Take four tablets a day. When you see that results are coming, go on and complete them. You owe that to your future. Start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IF Representative Wallace White's radio bill is passed, it will put the secretary's job at the Radio Commission, which is now under Civil Service, in the category of a $7,500 political plum.

Inasmuch as the position will be vacant May 1, the provision is construed to mean politicians may again dictate another important radio appointment a la Thad Brown.

Give the little girl a hand!

Tex Guinan, night club hostess of "Hello Sucker" fame, will try broadcasting over Station WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight.

This is also the night John McCormack warbles.

AT a solemn moment during the broadcast from the Washington Cathedral for Mr. Taft, a choir boy pulled a handkerchief out of his pocket. With it, to the consternation of the entire choir, there came a pocketful of marbles, which fell to the floor with a noise sounding to them like a machine gun.

There was no congregation in the Cathedral at the time and the disturbance was not heard over the air.

Floyd Gibbons, who became a famous war correspondent before coming to radio, was dismissed from his first newspaper job for incompetency. It was a terrible blow because the job paid $7 a week.

THEY say there is a parrot down in Virginia that, having listened to the Landt Trio (formerly known here as "On the 8:15") can sing the boys' signature song and "Puttin' on the Ritz," which will be the first number the trio will do when it "puts on the ritz" next Tuesday night by appearing on the Eveready Hour.

Weather conditions permitting, it looks as if we are to be able to sit here in Washington Sunday afternoon and listen to a grand opera in the State Opera House in Dresden.

NOTHING is more whimsical than radio weather. Yesterday morning, when it was apparently bright and clear, there was so much static that WGY—using 200,000 watts power, the greatest amount ever used—could hardly be heard.

Just ahead of the storm the morning of the Taft funeral, when the weather looked threatening, atmospheric conditions were really so good that Australia, 10,000 miles away, was heard for the first time. There was static, but this was reported to be between Sydney and Dunedin, New Zealand.

However, there were other troubles in this remarkable two-way broadcast with Admiral Byrd, one of which was our understanding the Australians' brand of English and their sauvying ours.

For instance, William Meenam, master of ceremonies at Schenectady, said:

"This is Bill Meenam speaking, Mr. Burberry."

To which Mr. Burberry at Sydney replied:

"Good morning, Mr. Birmingham."

"It's a very delightful spring day here. What season are you in?" Mr. Meenam inquired.

"Autumn," Burberry answered.

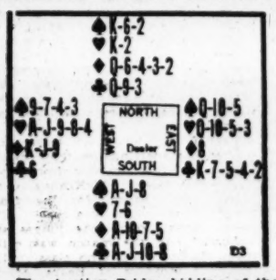
IT was 7:30 a. m. Tuesday here, but 12:35 a. m. Wednesday in Australia. With this in mind, Arthur H. Sulzberg, of the New York Times, said:

"Tomorrow is the date of the birth of Mr. Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, who is here with us. You people down there can congratulate him on his birthday, which hasn't happened here as yet.

"I don't think anything like this has ever occurred before, where a man received congratulations on his birthday rightfully the day before it happened."

AUCTION AND CONTRACT BRIDGE
MILTON C. WORK
(The World's Leading Authority.)

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The Auction Bridge bidding of the above hand would be South one No Trump, followed by three passes.

At Contract, South would bid one No Trump, North two, and South three.

When the hand was played, West led the Eight of Hearts and dummy played the King. The Declarer then led a small Diamond from dummy and finessed the Ten. West won and ran his four remaining Hearts, saving game.

The Correct Play.

When Declarer won the first trick, he could be sure that if the enemy obtained the lead before he took nine tricks, they would save game as one of them must have at least four Hearts remaining. Declarer could not establish Diamonds without losing a trick, even if the finesse succeeded; no matter how the adverse Diamonds were located, one of them must take. So, although the Declarer had a total of nine Diamonds and not more than seven cards in any other suit, the natural play of establishing the Diamonds was hopeless. Declarer had one chance to make game, viz., by running four Clubs, three Spades and one Diamond, before the adversaries obtained the lead. To accomplish this he must succeed in both his Club and Spade finesses, and it was not probable that both the King of Clubs and Queen of Spades would be located in the East hand; but it was the only chance.

To trick 2, the Queen of Clubs should be led. South playing the Ten if East do not cover. Then the Nine of Clubs. South playing the Eight if the King be held up again; and next a third club for the third finesse. With four Club tricks assured, dummy should be put in with the King of Spades and the Spade finesse tried. When that succeeded, Declarer's game would be assured.

BASKET BALL FOR HEALTH.

The Physicians' Times magazine recently carried a story about the invention of basket ball. Practically all games just grow. They start in some simple way and then evolve step by step, but never with any definite end in view. Not so with basket ball.

Dr. J. A. Naismith set out deliberately to make a game to meet certain ends and to proceed in certain ways. He was as cold-blooded about it as is a racketeer in planning to bump off a business competitor. In his judgment the prevailing major athletic games were causing athletes to become heavy and muscle bound. When the Athenians were planning to best the Spartans they decided that the latter were too heavily muscled and slow, and that they would develop for the youth of Athens a method of training that would result in lighter, longer muscles; in more agility, dexterity, speed and grace, but less muscle power.

Dr. Naismith sought to invent a game which would make athletes "tall, agile, and graceful." The Times magazine says that in spite of the changes in the game since Dr. Naismith launched it the premium on speed and agility still remains and the exceling basket ball players are of that build and type. It is possible that the premium put on people of that build and the popularity of basket ball as a game for women have been contributing factors in modifying the build of women.

In one respect the game has not held to the inventor's plans. As originated, basket ball was to be a mass game. As many as fifty played at a time. It was to be a game for the players, and not for spectators. This meant that no one was to specialize in it exactly, and no one was to develop outstanding skill in it. Anybody and everybody at hand were to get out on the floor and take part.

It may be remembered that such was the Athenian plan, and, let us add, the plan went to pieces just as it did with basket ball; presently the Athenians were divided sharply into skillful players and carping, bench warming critics. Plato and other wise men of the day thought Athens took its place on the skids when play ceased to be universal and the ringside boys began to organize.

The change in basket ball has resulted in perfecting the game. The players are most expert. They are likewise fine athletes. But its advantages are not being reaped by the masses.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, March 12.

DARING as they may seem to the watching world, the French dressmakers always know what they are about. Even when they make radical changes in styles, they never go to extremes. Which may seem quite an extraordinary statement to make, but if so, it is only to the unthinking person who sees the superficial effect and not the thought behind an unusual gown.

Actually there is no important style tendency or change, which is not carefully thought out and subtly approached. No style change is abrupt—think how the long skirt came to return to favor after all these years! First down in the back in the peacock effect. Then drapes and panels and tabs and all sorts of irregular thises and thatses, which gave hints of long skirts without saying them out loud. Then robes de style, which served so well for certain occasions, took a gradual hold on feminine imagination, which resulted in the definitely long skirt, which analytically inclined couturiers, who created with slightly more than their fingers, felt would fit in with the modern woman's urge toward elegance.

When you step out for the dinner and theater and dancing in your loveliest of lovelies, the thing to do, you know, is to carry a "breath" of chiffon to match your shoes, for instance. It's easy enough to make them, and for that matter you can have a fan or two made besides, if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Cause Dare will send you her illustrated leaflet with the dearest, daintiest ideas! You just see!

Red is very smart, and if it happens to be red and black for summer wear, so much the smarter!

Bernard et Cie has scored very much of a hit with "Toi et Moi," the red and black printed crepe de chine dress, and red woolen coat to wear with it.

A new treatment of leather for evening shoes is being offered by a famous French bottier. It is a mother-of-pearl finish to pastel kids, which makes the shoe resemble Miladi's little mother-of-pearl tinted fingernails. This shoe finish is very nice!

About those white crepe evening slippers—the plot is that you don't wear them at all for dancing. You wear them just to the opera and to dinner parties where you know there will be no dancing, 'n' then you take care of them besides, not stepping in the mud and all that sort of thing.

And then you clean them with art gum, which you buy in any stationery or art supply shop, until they just can't be cleaned any more with art gum. Then, if they continue to look too badly, you try cleaning them with cotton dipped in ether—the while you are very careful not to inhale it—you know that hospitally smell!

And now that I've done all of that to mine, I'm going to try cleaning them once again with a toothbrush dipped in castile soap and warm water—I'll tell you how it comes out!

Wives of Tomorrow

"For Early Marriage."

DEAR Miss McDonald: After deciding in my old age to refrain from argument, on account of high blood pressure, here you have gone and stirred an old man's ire by asking the question: "Is it safe for two young things of 19 or 20 to marry on $50 a week?" My dear child, do you not realize that the families in two-thirds of the world are actually doing it, many of them on less than $50 per? Are these millions of families happy? The census does not say but it is fair to assume that they are as happy as human beings usually are.

Of course, the young things are perfectly safe in marrying on $50 a week! But! There are little essential conditions to be attached to that, which we will briefly consider. The great question is: Are the young things capable of financing their domestic life on $50 a week? You are aware, that all marriages and the following domestic life must be financed? If not, wisely done the marriage goes on the rocks, no matter what the family income. That gentleman, named Einstein, has promulgated a theory and given to the world the word "relativity" which applies with the greatest fitness to financing marriage. Getting down to brass tacks, there are a whole lot of relative things that must be ruled out of the budget on $50 a week. That income will not stand a wedding trip to Bermuda. It will not stand any great amount of theaters, dances, dinners or other expensive pleasures. It will not stand very much of what some young folks think is essential in this age of jazz, discontent and unhappiness. Now you begin to see what I mean by social "relativity." I will add that any young couple, at 19, can find great happiness and great adventure in marriage on $50 a week. Moreover, they can have home shelter, sane family life, one child in the first five years, a small, increasing savings account and independence; if they will carefully finance such simple forms of social life and not waste their money.

Miss McDonald, you are a careful soul, but it does seem to me your carefulness runs to extremes when you advise the young to wait so long for marriage. At 30 the time for romance has fled. The bachelor and old maid who essay marriage at that age submit wedlock to a far greater strain than do the young, determined things at 19, who get married on a shoe string and "make Pike's Peak or bust."

Pray forgive an old man, at the threshold of 80, who was happily married at 21, who worked hard for many years—46 years—helped to raise two daughters and one son, who pounded his fingers to the bone on typewriters in four cities, and who has not yet arrived at anything to speak of in the way of fame or fortune. But the man at 21 and the bride of 18 had a mighty good time in this world. She has gone over the divide, into immortality. If we had waited to fulfill the condition you lay down the marriage could not have been consummated until late in life, when the zest for romance and domestic joy had gone down the stream of the rapid years. Our daughters were married, one at 20, one at 22, and the boy at 19. All started with light equipment. I learned about the prospective "annexes," found them good, and advised marriage while young, and do not regret it. Best of all, no one had better come to one of our frequent family gatherings and insinuate that anybody is unhappy, or that any mistakes have been made! It would not be completely healthy for an outsider to do that. GRANDFATHER.

The Goofus Turtle

We find the Goofus Turtle making soup upon a winter's day.
The recipe for it is this: First you take some hay.
You boil it well with sassafras, and then you add some salt—
When fermentation soon begins you add four quarts of malt,
A rubber shoe, a bit of twine, a piece of sealing wax,
Some leaves from a geography, a handful of thumb tacks,
A drop or two of temperature just to give it zest—
Serve hot upon the kitchen stove, or toast, whichever best.

Honey Bran Muffins

(Mixing time: 10 minutes)

Nature's oldest and purest sweet—honey—joins two other natural foods—fruit and whole wheat—in these quick muffins. And Crisco, the sweetest, freshest-flavored shortening you could possibly imagine, lends its freshness and pure flavor to the ensemble.

4 tablespoons melted Crisco	2 cups bran
1 egg, beaten	½ teaspoon soda
½ cup honey	½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups thick sour milk	1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup whole wheat flour	¾ cup raisins or chopped dates
¾ cup bread flour

Light and set oven at 375° F. (medium oven). Melt sufficient Crisco for recipe and to brush into muffin tins. Beat the egg, stir in the honey and sour milk. Sift the two kinds of flour with soda, salt and baking powder, mix with the bran and stir into the first mixture. Add raisins and melted Crisco and beat well. Fill Criscoed muffin tins half-full with batter. Bake in medium oven (375° F.) from 20 to 25 minutes. This makes 24 large muffins. I have reheated these muffins when they were a week old and found that Crisco had kept them fresh and moist.

This recipe has been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

Taste Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor

TASTE a cooking fat? And why not? You taste milk. You test eggs. Now, taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Then you'll understand why Crisco's own sweet, fresh flavor so improves the taste of your cakes, pies, hot breads, cookies and fried foods.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF March 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:40 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:30 a. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

A hustling, bustling day is augured for this date, but there will be more activity than accomplishment—haste will make waste in more ways than one. There will be extravagant expenditures, considerable travel and exchange of properties.

The child born on this March 13 will have a brilliant mind, but not a practical one. It will be ambitious, but it will lack the plodding perseverance which is so essential to success. It will have a very proud and very generous nature.

It can not be said that you possess a very strong nature, nor a positive one, but you do possess many endearing qualities. You have a sweet, humble, charitable and kindly nature. You are looking for the flowers and not the weeds in your pathway, and you are finding them. You are looking for the good which you find in others, and you find it. You have a tremendous reserve of quiet strength which helps you through the bad days of your life. You have something within upon which to fall.

You have ability and some little talent, but you are so very modest about your own accomplishments. You shun any kind of publicity or "showing off" in any way. You are very secretive, and, if anything, you talk too little for one who can really say wise things. You are a philosopher and you have learned to take the rough with the smooth, and to meet every crisis courageously. You have a heart of gold and are wonderfully just. In your quiet way you can weigh up a person with amazing speed, but your criticism is usually a charitable one—you are always ready to make excuses for those who err. Neither great wealth nor dire poverty are likely to enter your life—you will travel along the middle plane. You are too spiritually mined to care for many material things, although you do not hold yourself above them.

MARYLAND ROMPS AWAY WITH HONORS IN MEET AT C. U.; COUNTY QUINTETS SCORE EASILY IN TITLE TOURNAMENT

SISTER SPORTS: ATHLETIC AND ALCOHOLIC

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

PROHIBITION is a matter of which I know practically nothing, never having seen it work, but in my observation of champion athletes, domestic as well as foreign, there has been nothing to substantiate the fine old theory of the Y. M. C. A. that total abstinence alone can whet the blade of competition, improve the wind and preserve the whiteness of the teeth.

There may be something to the contention that the only clear-eyed athlete is the total abstainer. But that, I believe, is immaterial, having positive knowledge that some very distinguished golfers have, on occasion, gone out blear-eyed and a bit tremulous after an all-night saenger-fest, starting in the locker room, drifting by stages into the grill, the music room and the kitchen and terminating at dawn in a roadhouse down the line, to outshoot others with the advantage of eight hours' sleep and a scientific breakfast of fruit, cereal, eggs, toast and chocolate.

Golfers, especially the amateurs, but not excluding the pros, are the least grim of all competitors in tournament or championship sport in their hours off the course. The expert literature on their game constantly emphasizes the importance of nerve control and loose reflexes, but they seem to regard intensive training as something akin to teeing on the fairways.

Best Golfers Not Stews
Or Vice Versa.

Of course, nothing in the foregoing is to be interpreted as a charge that the best golfers are common stews or vice versa, nor that the tournaments are held merely to provide occasions for disorder by night. But the fact remains that here is a class of sportsmen, playing a highly exacting game with almost uncanny delicacy, who, as a class, do not turn their glasses down but sometimes turn them bottom up with a good song ringingg loud, if not exactly cealr.

Prize fighting, for all that may be said of water-polo, foot ball and wrestling, is the most exhausting athletic pursuit of all, as was shown when Arthur (The Great) Shires, of the White Sox and George (Cyclone) Trafton, the foot ball player, two novice fighters, who had been training and playing games for ten years, fought themselves into exhaustion in the first three minutes of their five-round bout last winter.

But no total abstainer ever has held the heavyweight championship of the world and the first of the champions, on the contrary, was a bellowing lush, who yelled for anti-dotes and doctors the time he swallowed a mouthful of water while swimming. The man who beat him was no toper, but Mr. Corbett has written that he used wine even while training and teetotalism cannot claim a man in the line of succession down to Tunney.

Lump Sugar Is Form
Of Home Brew.

Name an athlete of world renown and you are quite likely to mention a man or woman with some tolerance for wine or ale and perhaps for spirits, the only exception that I am sure of being a young champion with a sentimental loathing for all alcoholics whose mother had made the stuff hateful by overdrinking for some years.

College trainers make such a pother about abstention from cigarettes, candy and pastry nowadays that one is likely to forget that only a few years ago the rowing crews, and, in some schools, the foot ball men, received their ale under official auspices at their training tables. And I could name a noted trainer who feeds his foot ball men lumps of sugar between halves on the confidential advice of the official surgeon that sugar turns to alcohol and imparts about the same stimulus that a fellow might receive from a very small noggin of rum.

But perhaps I shouldn't identify him because his is a sectarian college much opposed to stimulants and he might be fired for seducing the innocents under his charge who probably have no idea that when they eat sugar they are creating a form of home brew.

Certainly the polo chaps and those who go galloping over the gates and hedges of Long Island and Westchester, emitting cries of "Yoicks!" are not abstainers and if yachtsmen don't drink what do they use to wash down the thousands of dozens of bottles of ginger ale and charged water which are unloaded at the clubhouse kitchens all along the coasts when the regattas are on?

Relieve Strain by
By Getting Plastered.

I have read many editorials explaining the difference between temperance and total abstinence and not to cloud the meaning of my remarks, I will state that, while I know of no drunkards who are competing successfully in sport nowadays, there are some who not only drink moderately most of the time, but relieve

Hawks Defeat Wesley Five By 29-15

Crescents Oust Petworth Mets, 44-33, in 145-Lb. Class.

TWO of the three Prince Georges County unlimited basket ball teams seeking District A. A. U. honors weathered their first tests last night and move into the second round of play with impressive debuts behind them. The Brentwood Hawks tripped the Wesley Heights Team in the final game in the Tech High Gymnasium last night, 28 to 15, while the Company F, M. N. C., Quintet romped to victory over the Fort Humphreys Five, 44 to 14.

Earlier in the evening the Crescents turned back the Petworth Mets in a 145-pound class contest, 44 to 33, and the Y. M. C. A. Flashes barely eked out a 22-to-21 victory over the Northwesterns in a 130-pound class battle that appeared destined to go to the Northwesterns until the tide of battle turned to the Y lads in the final seconds of play.

Fort Humphreys Weakened.

Company F found Fort Humphreys' doughty passers no match in the second half, holding the Virginia Soldiers to two points throughout that period after taking a 20 to 12 lead before intermission. Dorsey alone of the losers was able to penetrate the big defense of the Hyattsville Guardsmen.

Rufus Vincent, sharpshooting center of the Maryland Guardsmen, was the outstanding contributor to his team's success. Williams and Cogar contributed frequently to the big total piled up by the Hyattsville Team.

Lead Hawks.

Led y George Sullivan, high scorer in the Tri-County League, and Charley Bailey, the Brentwood Hawks showed a marked superiority over the Wesley Heights Five. The latter team wasted many shots and always trailed.

The Hawks rolled up a 12 to 5 advantage before half time and was content to battle along on even terms during the second half. Colison and Fuchs were outstanding in the defeated team's line-up.

Abelman's Basket
Decides Duel.

Dave Abelman tossed but one basket for the Y. Flashes but he flipped the deciding points through the hoop with but 40 seconds of play remaining. With the count 21 to 20 in favor of the Northwesterns, Abelman sent the winning shot through the cords.

T. Synyrnas led the stubborn Northwestern offensive that waged a great uphill battle that threatened to bring victory until Abelman's toss decided. Lease Bussard, of the Flashes, led his team in scoring and proved equally as outstanding on the defense.

Blow to Team.

Seeing their opponents, the Wolf Arcadians, lose, S. Giovanelli at the end of the third quarter, the sportsmanlike Ambassadors withdrew one of their players, to leave themselves on even terms with their rivals. Ahead at the time, the Ambassadors went on to win, 29 to 19.

In the game marked by the removal of players on personal fouls, the Wolf Arcadians were forcing the fight to the eventual winners throughout the entire first half of the game, holding the upper hand in the first twenty minutes of play to walk off the floor with a 11-9 advantage at the intermission. MACKSTANDS PAT WITH WINNERS

Turns Bench Into a Kindergarten of Recruits, However.

This is the tenth of a series of first-hand Associated Press stories on major league baseball prospects.

By BRIAN BELL.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 12 (A.P.).—When the world champion Philadelphia Athletics go out to open the 1930 season, they will present the line-up that won the World Series, but the background will be vastly changed. The bench will be occupied in part by pink-cheeked boys just out of their 'teens.

The veteran Connie Mack, 68 years old, but young in spirit, will shover about a small group of baseball chicks, turning his bench into a kindergarten.

There are 17 youngsters in the camp of the Athletics who are 20 years of age, or under. Some of them will be retained as reserves for the stars who won the 1929 championship.

The Athletics may be the only club in either league to stand pat on the closing line-up of last season. Players have been added in quantity, but there have been no signs that any of them can crowd his way into the opening batting order. The newcomers are extra infielders, pitchers, and one catcher.

Mahaffey Likely to Be Regular.

The pitching staff—Bob Grove, Rube Walberg, George Earnshaw, Eddie Rommel, Jack Quinn, Howard Ehmke, and Bill Shores—will be reinforced by possibly two recruits. One seems certain to be Roy Mahaffey, from the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League, who had two trials with Pittsburgh. Mahaffey is called "speed" by the players, high tribute on a team whose three aces, Grove, Walberg, and Earnshaw, can throw fast balls with the best in the business.

Probably the astute Mack will carry only nine pitchers after he cuts his team to the league limit of 25, June 15, so the scramble for the last place will be intense with three of the kindergarten trying desperately to break in—Alfred Mahon, 20, a Nebraska boy; Glenn Liebhardt, 19, son of a famous Cleveland pitcher of other days, and George Snider, 18, a California boy, whose contract was purchased from Portland.

3 New Infielders.
For Emergencies.

Gordon Cochrane, rated generally as the game's best catcher, will continue to do the bulk of the receiving with two veterans in reserve, Cy Perkins and Wally Schang, the latter procured in a trade with the St. Louis Browns.

The infield quartet of Jimmy Foxx, Max Bishop, John (Joe) Boley and Jimmy Fykes, remains intact. Three newcomers may form the emergency corps. Jim Keesey, first baseman from Portland, will be kept for utility duty as will Eric McNair, 20-year-old shortstop from Knoxville, who made a favorable impression last autumn. A third extra infielder may be Dibrell Williams, just 19 years old, who played second base for Little Rock last year. Williams has been one of the spring stars.

McNair led the South Atlantic As-

Manush and Browns Continue Salary Talk

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 12 (A.P.).—While Business Manager Bill Friel and Outfielder Heinie Manush continued their argument today over what salary the slugger should receive, the rest of the St. Louis Browns went through the usual training grind.

Eddie Grimes, infielder, who has been holding out, wired Friel today he was on his way to the training camp with his signed contract.

Pirates Veterans' Hits Beat Yannigans, 7-6

Paso Robles, Calif., March 12 (A.P.).—The regulars outhit the yanigans, 7-6, in a practice encounter at the Pittsburgh Pirates training camp today, but the yanigans won the game, 6 to 5. Four straight hits by Brickell, Comorosky, Paul Waner and Traynor, of the veterans, brought three runs in the eighth. Comorosky's effort was a double.

Kremer Brame, Erickson and Finney were on the hill for the yanigans and Bednar and Lang pitched for the regulars.

GRIFFITH SET TO DISMISS GOSLIN

Club Plans to Proceed With Barnes in Left Field.

BILOXI, Miss., March 12.—While President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, refuses to discuss his salary controversy with Outfielder Goose Goslin and declines to be quoted in any manner until the big fly chaser opens negotiations with him, he denies that there is any yielding in his position, as reported.

While under baseball rules a player may be put on the ineligible list and fined $100 when he finally does come to terms, it is understood that Griffith will not take this action against Goslin for several more days at least, although Goslin's three days of grace expired tonight. The Nats' owner gave Catcher Roy Spencer, another holdout, several days' leeway and feels that Goslin is entitled to the same consideration, and it is for this reason alone that no disciplinary action is planned in the Goose's case at the present time.

Goslin's Value
Doubted.

Goslin and Griffith apparently have reached an impasse in the matter of settling their argument over the fly chaser's 1930 salary, as each declares that it is up to the other to reopen negotiations. Naturally, the owner of the Washington Club does not want to see his team lose any of its punch, but he takes the view that Goslin did not add any strength last season and that there is no certainty he would do a come-back in the coming one, and is making his plans to get along with Emile (Red) Barnes filling Goslin's shoes.

Griffith declares that he is making no effort to make a trade of any kind, as he is through taking chances on veterans. He is, however, carefully scrutinizing the waiver lists and will not let any young talent which he thinks might help him get away.

As a matter of fact, Griffith is confident that Manager Walter Johnson will develop some youngsters to supply a batting punch. Alongside of Sam Rice, who led the team last year, will be Sammy West, a great fielder with a batting reputation which he has never lived up to since joining the Nats, and Barnes, who showed great hitting ability in the early part of 1928, when he was among the leading five until late June.

Sees Better Year
For Barnes.

Regarding the latter, Griffith figures that 1929 simply was a bad year for Barnes and that he will get back in his stride during the coming season. He is giving indications of having regained his batting eye in practice here now.

George Loepp and Alvin Powell are the other outfield candidates. The latter must be counted out because of his inexperience, but Loepp has improved each season while advancing up the ladder, and also shows signs of being of some use.

In addition, Griffith looks for an added punch to be supplied by his infielders. Buddie Myer apparently being a better hitter than he was last year, while Joe Cronin and Jack Hayes are expected to add to their 1929 punch. While the Nationals may miss Goslin if he fails to come to terms with the club, neither Griffith nor Manager Johnson are showing any signs of worrying at this writing.

Liska Pitches Regulars to 5-0 Win

Also Hits Home Run in Defeat of Nats' Rookie Team.

Errors by McLeod and Bradley Figure in Triumph.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.

BILOXI, Miss., March 12.—Manager Walter Johnson has decided that occasional practice intercamp games are good for his athletes in that they foster the competitive spirit needed during the regular season, and the first of these affairs was staged this morning after the regular drill.

Assistant Trainer P. Reilly Baxter's Rookie Clubhouse Gang tackled the Regulars and might have made a fight of it but for two costly errors which gave the Regulars at least three of the five runs they made in registering a 5-to-0 shutout victory.

It was a five-inning fracas, with Adolph Liska going the route for the Regulars and not only whitewashing his opponents, but contributed a home run with a mate on the sacks. A bad peg by Shortstop Jimmy McLeod put this runner, "Muddy" Ruel, on the sacks, while another, by First Baseman Bill Bradley, cleared the filled bases in the second frame when he pegged to left field while the Regulars were in confusion and suddenly discovered that two of their men were on third at the same time.

Brown's Outfield
Catch Features.

"Chief" Carlos Moore and Don Savidge did the flinging for the rookies and both performed well. Lloyd Brown, in left field for Johnson's team, turned in a one-hand circus catch to feature from a defensive angle, while, in addition to Liska, others to get hits were Buddie Myer, Ossie Bluege and Muddy Ruel.

Liska's work was particularly pleasing to Johnson, as he is banking heavily on this subway pitcher coming through. He tossed slow ones, fast ones, curves, 'n everything this morning and never was in hot water, while he issued but one pass.

Pitcher Bump Hadley, another whose 1930 performance will have much to do with where the Nats place in the race, did not get into action, but was burning the ball over the plate in practice. He has been working hard and looks to be in better condition than he has ever been while wearing Washington livery. While no scales are available, judging by the way his clothes fit him over his middle section, he has dropped at least 15 pounds.

Phelps Nursing
Foot Injury.

Catcher Gordon Phelps is hopping around like a hen on a hot griddle as a result of stopping a foul with the big toe on his right foot in today's game. The injury is painful but not serious and he stuck to his job and finished out the game.

Roy Vangrafian, the sweet-voiced umpire, is expected to arrive here tomorrow. He will officiate at all of the Nats' exhibition games until the regular season starts.

Although the Athletics are not making the news public property, a visitor arriving here today from Hot Springs is authority for the statement that Outfielder Al Simmons is again having trouble with his legs and that one of his ankles is swelled to twice its normal size. With "Water Bucket" Al out at the start of the season, the Athletics' efforts to repeat in the title race will be handicapped considerably.

Manager Walter Johnson and Trainer Mike Martin spent the afternoon telling some of the kiddies at Gulfport how to become real he-men.

Dealers Pay $40,000 For 79 Saddle Horses

Lexington, Ky., March 12 (A.P.).—Eastern dealers paid fancy prices for saddle horses at the second day of the annual sales here, at which 79 head sold for a total of $40,000.

F. E. Robinson, exhibitor and dealer, of Summit, N. J., paid $4,000 for the promising show gelding, Harvest Moon, in the consignment of W. D. Mountjoy. Harvest Moon, a five-gaited chestnut gelding, by Bourbon Star, a son of Bourbon King, and out of a mare by Montgomery Chester, brought the top price.

Robinson also bought a bay gelding, Star Shoot, by Bourbon Star, for $775. Another Mountjoy horse, a three-gaited black gelding, Ipanna, went to Turner Young, Lebanon, Tenn., at $725.

Thomas Deheny, New York, bought three horses, including the three-gaited gelding, The Diplomat, at $1,125. Frank Person, Allentown, Pa., and R. A. Ware, Hot Springs, Va., bought a carload of horses each.

British Name Women To Oppose U. S. Golfers

London, March 12 (A.P.).—The British women's golf team to oppose the United States representatives at Sunningdale, May 1, in the first match of its kind ever held was announced today.

It consists of Miss Molly Gourlay, captain; Miss Doris Chambers, Miss E. Corlett, Mrs. Latham Hall, Miss P. Lobbett, Miss Jean McCulloch, Miss D. Pearson, Mrs. J. B. Watson and Miss Enid Wilson.

The name of Miss Joyce Wethered, England's premier woman golfer, is conspicuously absent from the list. She has retired from competitive golf because of the effort required to keep her game up to the high standard necessary.

Glenna Collett, American champion, who lost to Miss Wethered last year in a memorable match for the British title, will lead the invading Americans.

Quinn, of Maryland, Beats Brother in Open Sprint.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY athletes were romping away with the Catholic University indoor track and field meet at a late hour last night.

After what apparently was destined to be a close battle with Tech for the honor, Eastern High School won the top honors in the scholastic division with 16 points. Tech was second with 8 points, Hyattsville High third with 5 points, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High fourth with 4 points and Raymond Riordon School fifth with 3 points.

The most outstanding individual performance was contributed by Fouts, former Western High and present Maryland star, when he leaped 11 feet 7 inches in the pole vault to shatter both the Maryland and C. U. records. His 15-inch handicap carried his mark to 12 feet 10 inches, which was much the best.

In one of the feature dashes, Bob Quinn, of Maryland, defeated his brother, Ed Quinn, of Tech, in the 50-yard open handicap affair, by a matter of inches. The younger brother came back a few minutes later to score an impressive victory in the District A. A. U. championship 50-yard sprint, defeating McGuigan and Joe Champs, of Catholic U., in the good time of 5 3-5 seconds.

Mayer, Tech, Unhurt
In Mishap.

An accident that might have proven serious was averted when Bob Mayer, Tech 440-yard man, ran off the track at one of the turns, leaped over the heads of scribes in the press box, and then bounded back onto the track and finished the race.

Bill Kinnamon, of Maryland, won the high hurdle event in which Fahey, former Maryland star, running unattached, failed to place. Fahey is the present South Atlantic champion. Flye, of Eastern, and Gerth, of C. U., led the sectional champion to the tape.

Lindsey, of Maryland, demonstrated his superiority in the 880-yard run when he permitted Farris, of C. U., to open up a good lead and then come from behind to win by 10 yards. Brown, of Maryland, was third.

W. & L. Freshmen Gain Draw in Varsity Bouts

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., March 12.—Washington and Lee's "varsity" and freshman boxers split a seven-match card here tonight, each team winning three decisions and one match being called a draw.

No knockouts featured the match, but lively boxing was the order of the night. Robinson, varsity 115-pounder, started the evening by winning a decision over Gunter, and Capt.-elect Sloberg added another victory for the upper classmen by outpointing Messick in the 125-pound class. Capt. Black gave the varsity its third decision when he won by a decision from Jackson.

Then Pound, freshman 145-pounder, started the yearlings on their way by winning a close decision from Robinson, of the varsity. McKinney, of the varsity, and Bacon, for the frosh, fought three rounds to a draw. After an additonal round the judges still disagreed and the match was called even. In the 175-pound class Collins took the measure of Heaps, of the varsity, and in the unlimited weight Mundy gave the first-year men their third victory in a slow exchange of swats with Day. As a final to the evening, Coach W. E. "Bus" Malone went two rounds each with Ward, Porter and Lord. There were no decisions.

MILLS URGES GAMES BETWEEN LOCAL COLLEGES

Hilltop Is Not Aloof, Says Director

Intracity Encounters Seen as Aid to All Institutions.

CAPITAL sports fans, long denied intracity competition between the colleges, should note with a good deal of interest the expression of attitude and intention of Tom Mills, new Georgetown University athletic director, regarding their desires. Mills spoke yesterday in an informal discussion in his Hilltop office as follows:

"I am not only willing but anxious to enter into permanent athletic relationships with other local schools, and if I can find the time within the next week or so I am going to start trying to determine the possibilities of bringing it about.

"This talk of Georgetown keeping aloof in local college competition is not true and I intend to show that.

"I realize that the present lack of competition among local colleges is the one big thing tending to hold the fans' interest to a minimum.

G. W. and Maryland
Games Proposed.

"There's no doubt in my mind that football games or other contests between Georgetown and George Washington or Maryland, for instance, would help us, help them, and help the general athletic situation in this city. When I finish looking into the matter nobody will be able to say that Georgetown is holding back."

In this department's opinion, Tom Mills was not talking just for lip exercise. We believe he will make an honest effort to effect athletic relationships with other local colleges on a permanent basis.

Aside from many other benefits, intracity college sports competition would certainly keep the participating institutions out of debt in so far as sports are concerned. At present there probably is not a single local college able to meet expenses in the conduct of its athletic program.

Whereas they now depend solely on football to help defray expenses—having no idea of football paying for everything—they would, by virtue of permanent relations in all sports, build up a general and sustained interest from which each sport would become self-supporting, or nearly so.

Georgetown Handicapped
In Facilities.

The present state of Georgetown's athletic facilities has awakened no end of comment among students and friends of the Hilltop. It is safe to say that no other college of Georgetown's prestige in the country is so handicapped as the Blue and Gray in the matter of playing fields, &c.

With the dormitory building program under way, the only space left for unhampered athletic activity is the freshmen field situated south of the main building, and this plot is entirely too small for the staging of a football or baseball game. It affords just enough room for practice.

But, according to Mills, things will be greatly improved within a couple of years. In fact, he feels confident that by the start of the fall the ground in the rear of the medical school, on Reservoir road, will be converted into two football fields, and that before the robins come North a year hence that a cinder path and a baseball field will be ready for use.

Mills is thinking hopefully also about a new gymnasium which would house an indoor track, basket ball court, a couple of handball courts and complete gymnasium equipment. It will be two years at the earliest, he says, before that can be realized, if at all.

100-POUNDERS PLAY WITH 4 MEN

Ambassadors Beat Arcadians in A.A.U. Tourney, 29-19.

Arcadian center, was forced from the game after his fourth personal foul soon after the resumption of play, and his absence left that team sadly weakened in the tap-off position.

From that point on, Gellman, opposing center, went on a scoring spree of his own to tally seven times from the floor and four times from the foul line to lead the Ambassadors' second-half attack. From a position of two points in arrears, the Ambassadors stepped out to acquire a 20-13 lead at the end of the third quarter, never again being threatened by the Arcadians.

Optimists in Lead
From Start.

In the second game of the afternoon the Boys Club Optimists hopped out in front during the first quarter; and though holding but a scant 2-point lead at half time, coasted to a 31-21 verdict over the Burns combination.

Never behind in their game with the Burns Five, the Boys' Club Optimists were, nevertheless, extended all the way and only in the fourth quarter were they able to sew up the game. Ahead at the end of the first ten minutes of play, 6-4, the Optimists could not widen that lead during the next period, leaving the floor with but a 14-12 lead at the halfway mark.

The third quarter was productive of the first real spurt of the Optimists, 4 more points being added to their half-time advantage, which saw them ahead, 23-17, as the final period started. The Optimists then exhibited some close guarding qualities, which held their opponents to two field goals, while they were adding eight points to their total. Foul shots kept the losers in the running, the Optimists outscoring their foes, 2-1, from the floor.

Crescent Victory.

A concerted and relentless attack carried the Crescents to victory over the Petworth Mets in the 145-pound class struggle, 44 to 33. Everett Russell, Wiegel, Smith and Streets evenly divided the individual scoring honors for the victors. Wiegel's work was especially outstanding as was the all-around play of Ellis of the defeated team.

The Crescents went well into the lead at the outset and managed to hold the advantage safe throughout, riding safely on a 25 to 15 lead at intermission.

The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. W. Webster

DUKE RELIES ON UNTRIED TRACKMEN

Freeman, Washington Youth, Mainstay of Blue Devil Team.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., March 12.—With only five veterans around whom to build a team, Coach George Buchheit of the Duke Track Team will have to fill the vacant places on his team this year with untried material.

Capt. Roberts, who performed brilliantly in the high jump last season, will be handicapped this year by a recent operation for appendicitis. Bill Simon and Jim Heizer, in the 2-mile run, and Chester Freeman, who participates in five events, and Fletcher Turner, pole vaulter, constitute the nucleus of the team.

Freeman, a Washington (D. C.) boy, was individual high-point scorer in the State last year. Freeman does what few athletes can do; he has the stamina to particiate in five events on a track team and do each of the five well. He runs the 100-yard dash in 10.1, jumps the high and low hurdles in fine time, and makes good jumps in broad and high jump events. He is expected to participate in each of these events this year.

Hicks and Cook In Sprints.

Bill Hicks, of Charlotte, and Ralph Cook, of Greensboro, former high school stars in these two cities, form good sophomore talent for the sprint events. Kid Brewer, Winston-Salem boy, full back on the football team, is an all-round track man. He sprints and takes part in field events also.

The schedule:

March 22—Wake Forest at Durham.
March 29—Washington and Lee at Durham.
April 9—North Carolina at Chapel Hill (tentative).
April 12—Georgia Tech relays at Atlanta.
April 16—North Carolina State at Durham.
April 26—V. P. I. at Blacksburg, Va.
May 3—State meet at Greensboro.
May 16-17—S. I. C. meet at Birmingham, Ala.

Should an average player attempt to remember everything he has been told by the professional?

By ABE G. ESPINOSA,

While an attempt to remember too many things that he has been told may result in confusion, it is well for the average player to try to remember the points given him by the pro. These were all very likely given him for some purpose in connection with his game, and for that reason should be put into practice. This, of course, holds good until the points on which he has been coached become automatic. Until then, the best thing that the average player can do is to confine himself to practice in some quiet corner of the course.

BOWIE OPENS SEASON IN 3 WEEKS

Big Stables Attracted to Plant for Start of East's Season.

RACING, the most popular of all outdoor sports in this section of the country, comes back to its own in less than three weeks at Bowie, when the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association throws open its gates for an eleven-day session starting April 1 that will mark the inaugural of the 1930 season on the major tracks of the East.

The outlook for the meeting is excellent, as there is no serious opposition anywhere on this side of the Atlantic, and the track houses over 600 horses with as many more headed from various winter courses and farms. In addition, there are close to 1,500 more thoroughbreds going through their paces at Laurel, Pimlico, Havre de Grace, Timonium and Marlboro whose owners will ship here on the days there is a race in Race Secretary Joe McLennan's book to suit them.

Frequent rains in this section have only served to pack the soil. They have also enabled Track Superintendent Dick Pending to work any frost out that may have taken root in his soil over the winter. As soon as the track becomes fast, which should be in a day or two, some fast times will be witnessed in the morning trials.

Whitney to Campaign 20 Horses.

Virtually every first-class stable in America and Canada has applied for stalls. Harry Payne Whitney, of New York, who led the list of American money winning owners last year with the excellent sum of $363,305, will campaign 20 horses.

The Whitney band will be made up of the division which Freddie Hopkins wintered at Benning, just outside Washington.

Hopkins won't lack a rider, as Head Trainer Thomas J. Healey is sending Raymond (Sonny) Workman down from the Whitney Farm, at Red Bank, N. J., so that the stable can get an excellent start toward again heading the list of winning owners.

Workman, who led the list of winning riders during the recent Miami, Fla., meeting, where he was aboard 21 winners, weighed exactly 112 pounds, when he returned North. Since reporting to Trainer T. J. Healey, the Washington kid has been kept busy working Whichone, Boojum and others of the Whitney band, so that he will be swinging into his stride on April 1 at Bowie.

Farrell Making Improvements.

While Track Superintendent Pending is busy looking after the thoroughbreds, Joseph A. Farrell, of Baltimore, who was named to fill the general manager's position when James F. O'Hara resigned due to illness, is going about dolling up this plant.

Farrell is a great believer in making things comfortable for the race fans, and visitors here next month are going to see several worthwhile improvements, all of which should make to their greater comfort and enjoyment.

Birmingham Dog Wins Third Field Trials Title

Grand Junction, Tenn., March 12 (A.P.).—Feagin's Mohawk Pal, setter, owned by E. M. Tutwiler, of Birmingham, won the national bird dog field trials here today by outhunting Mary Blue, champion pointer, owned by W. C. Teagle, New York. The victory was Pal's third in the national event.

South Atlantic Clubs To Be Known Monday

Durham, N. C., March 12 (A.P.).—The pertinent question of who's who in the South Atlantic Baseball League will be unanswered until next Monday.

Then, said W. G. Bramham, president of the loop, today, a definite announcement about league membership is to be made.

Until Monday Mr. Bramham said he would not discuss the possibility of new cities in the league line-up.

Asked if the Knoxville, Tenn., and Spartanburg, S. C., which have been experiencing difficulties in retaining their franchise, still may enter, he replied:

"They are working on it."

Efforts are being made in Charleston, S. C., to procure a franchise in case either Spartanburg or Knoxville is unable to stay in the league.

Spartanburg has requested President Bramham to visit the city to stir up baseball enthusiasm.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 12.—The Kiwanis Club of this city dropped its first bowling match to the Rotary Club by a margin of 95 pins in the first five-game block of a fifteen-game match. Each year the two civic organizations play a golf match and bowling match. Last year Kiwanis won the golf match.

The Alexandria High School teachers, after a victory over the local high school girls' team, will play the Herndon High School teachers in a game at the Armory hall here on Friday night of this week. The teachers won their first game by a single point. Miss Heiser, of the local teachers, will call a practice session tomorrow. She will send the same team against the Herndon teachers that won the game last week.

The Knight Store Midgets won last night from the Fredericksburg Tigers by the score of 37 to 18. The local midgets were in the lead throughout the game. The playing of Chilcotte and Flinchman featured for the winners. They scored 10 and 14 points, respectively. The Knight Midgets are entered in the District of Columbia tournament.

Marshall Baggett, former Alexandria High School track star and captain of the William and Mary track team this season, is fast rounding into shape. Last summer his knee was operated on and has now recovered completely. He is getting back to his stride in the 440 and hurdles and should be one of the best track men in the State this year.

OIL STOCKS ADVANCE WHILE OTHERS DROP

Rails Continue Firm Trend as Day's Sales Total 4,470,080 Shares.

STEEL OUTPUT DECLINES

New York, March 12 (A.P.).—Further curtailment of steel mill operations and fresh weakness in the wheat market unsettled speculative confidence today and prompted the bear crowd to attack the stock market along a broad front. Scores of important stocks lost 2 to 10 points—the worst setback experienced in three weeks. Selling poured into the market in such volume that the ticker was delayed about half an hour. Total sales reached 4,470,080 shares, the largest turnover since December 20.

From the oil industry, however, came the most encouraging news in several weeks, and about a dozen oil stocks advanced moderately against the downward trend, reaching new high levels for the year. With few exceptions, utilities, industrials and merchandising shares were under pressure. The rails, however, held fairly steady, as they have not participated notably in the recent advances. The price index of 90 leading shares receded about 2 points.

The weekly steel trade reviews present a rather disheartening picture of the situation. While steel mill operations continue at a high rate at Chicago and Birmingham, a decided slump has occurred in other centers. Iron Age stated that the cautious policy of motor car makers has caused a less confident attitude in the steel trade, pointing out that automobile output is only about half what it was in March of 1929. Iron Age's composite prices for finished steel and pig iron were unchanged, but it stated that the price situation is poorly defined. It was notable that U. S. Steel's mills were reported to have cut down production about 2 per cent, the first reduction by the largest manufacturer since steel mill activity began to pick up in January.

Freight Car Loadings Gain.

The weekly report of total loading of revenue freight, covering the week ended March 1, failed to make an impressive showing in comparison with the past two years. A large gain over the previous week was insignificant, owing to the holiday on February 22.

Copper statistics for February showed further accumulation of stocks, despite curtailment of production, and caused renewed uneasiness over maintenance of current metal prices. In sharp contrast, however, the developments in the petroleum industry were distinctly cheerful, including indications of success in cutting California production down to refinery requirements. Standard Oil of California increased crude prices, probably as a boon to independent producers who have cooperated in the curtailment program. Gasoline prices were increased at Chicago.

Simmons and U. S. Industrial Alcohol were again singled out as weak spots by the bear crowd. Simmons was driven down more than 5 points to 52¼, the lowest in about three years, and contrasting with last year's peak of 188. U. S. Industrial Alcohol has been unfavorably influenced marketwise by sporadic price cutting by smaller manufacturers. The stock dropped about 7 points to a new 1930 low. American and Foreign Power was another vulnerable spot. The stock was sent down more than 6 points to a new 1930 low at 82⅝, which, however, contrasts with a bottom level of 50 during the November break. Auburn Auto, a recent buoyant feature, dropped 10 points.

United States Steel lost 3 points, and such shares as Westinghouse Electric, Western Union, American Telephone, American Water Works, American Tobacco B, American Can, Allis Chalmers, Air Reduction, Byers, Eastman, General Electric, Johns Manville, Loew's, Macy, Radio, Underwood-Elliott and Union Carbide were among shares closing about 2 to 5 points off.

California Standard Oil Rises.

Standard Oil of California rose about 3 points to a new peak for the year, at 63¾, but lost some of its gain later.

Lower-priced issues were prominent in the advance, American Republics, Atlantic Refining, Phillips, Pure Oil, Richfield, Rio Grande, Sinclair and others selling up a point or so to new 1930 highs. In the utilities, Federal Light rose nearly 3 points to a new high for the year on announcement of acquisition by Cities Service.

Call money was easier, renewing at 4 per cent, but soon sagging to 3½. The prophets of a lower Federal reserve rediscount rate, disappointed last week, feel that the chances for a reduction are better than ever when the directors meet again tomorrow. Foreign exchanges were somewhat irregular, but changes were slight. The Canadian dollar was a little firmer, reaching 99⅝ cents for the first time this year.

The wheat market was influenced by continuance of an unfavorable export situation. The Liverpool and Argentine markets were decidedly weak. Futures prices at Chicago dropped about 4 cents, then regained more than half the losses in short covering and buying attributed to allies of the Farm Board. Corn futures followed the movement. Cotton, on the other hand, rallied substantially. Closing prices were about $1.50 a bale higher. The upturn was helped by private estimates showing from 7½ to 9 per cent reductions in acreage.

MONEY RATES EASE AIDS BOND ADVANCE

RAIL GROUP IS FEATURE

New York, March 12 (A.P.).—Renewed ease in money rates prompted vigorous buying in bond market today, with the rail liens attracting especial favor. The combined index of 30 leading issues mowed up 1-5 of a point to another new high for the year, and the day's business, aggregating $13,071,000, par value, was one of the largest of the year.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, but the rate was cut to 3½ by midday. This quieted the uneasiness of the previous day, when money yielded 4 per cent. Furthermore, it was felt in banking circles that a chance of a reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate tomorrow is better than ever.

Some two score rail issues reached new high ground, with the mortgages of lines in which early merger developments are expected trading in wholesale fashion. Frisco 4½s rose ¾ of a point to 92½, and the 4s A mounted ½ point, in an aggregate turnover of approximately $400,000 par value. A plan to combine this road with the Rock Island is now being developed. Dillon, Read & Co., who hold a large interest in Frisco, was said today to have acquired a considerable holding in Rock Island as well.

Van Sweringen Issues Firm.

The Van Sweringen rail issues were uniformly firm. This group was rumored about Wall street to have acquired working control of the Missouri Pacific. Their interest is known to be substantial. If they have control, and the Missouri Pacific consolidation plan is approved, it may put the Van Sweringens in control of the first transcontinental system. Missouri Pacific general 4s rose ¾ of a point, and Chesapeake & Ohio refunding 4½s and Erie 5s were turned over in large volume.

Rail issues gaining 1 to 2 points included Boston & Maine 5s, Central Pacific first 4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5s, Erie 4s, Hocking Valley 4½s, Lehigh Valley-Pennsylvania 4s and 5s, Lehigh Valley Hudson Terminal 5s, Katy 4s B, Pennsylvania 4s and Southern Railway 6s. While convertible issues were generally depressed by the heavy stock market, the New Haven 6s closed a fraction higher, as New Haven stock was an isolated firm spot.

Utilities in Strong Demand.

With the exception of the convertibles, the telephone issues, along with a wide assortment of public utility liens, were in strong demand. The American Telephone debentures 5s rose ¼-point, to 103, a new high. The convertible 4½s of 1939, however, lost 1½ points in heavy selling, and the 4½s of 1933 dropped more than 4 points in a small transaction. The International Telephone debentures sold up a fraction, while the convertibles sagged a fraction.

In the industrials, Lorillard Debenture 7s were a firm spot, rising nearly 2 points to a new peak. Liggett & Myers 5s, however, eased. Armour 5½s, Chile Copper 5s, and Sinclair Pipe Line 5s were firm. Western Electric 5s gained more than a point. Youngstown Sheet 5s, reflected merger developments with a gain of ½-point. In the amusements, Loews 6s with warrants dropped a couple of points in sympathy with the stock, and Keith Corporation 6s sagged on publication of a rather unsatisfactory earnings statement for Keith-Albee.

Easing credit sent several foreign issues with high yields soaring. Antioquia 7s, Brazil 6½s, Peru 7s, and Rio Grande Do Sul 7s mounted 2 to 3½ points. Several European governments, notably German, Belgian and French, were in good demand, but prices were practically unchanged. U. S. Governments crept higher in moderate trading, all issues reaching new 1930 highs save the Liberty 4¼s.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Yellow Truck and Others.

V. B.—Please advise me relative to Yellow Truck & Coach, Reynolds Spring and Mavis Bottling.

Answer—Earnings of Yellow Truck & Coach during the third quarter of 1929 failed to maintain gains registered earlier in the year, and full returns for 1929 will not, in all probability, more than cover preferred dividend requirements. The common on which no dividends are being paid, must be considered as one of the less attractive automobile issues. Mavis Bottling and Reynolds Spring, which are likewise nondividend payers, are even less worthy of consideration than Yellow Truck, even from a speculative viewpoint. In their present status neither of these issues has any investment qualities whatsoever.

Keith; Ford; Packard.

J. M. S.—What is your opinion of the following stocks: Radio Keith Orpheum, and its dividend possibilities; Packard Motor; Ford Motor, Ltd., its dividend and any other information?

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

LANDING OF BYRD IN VIRGINIA ASKED

Arlington County Petitions Governor for Aid in Project.

PROCLAMATION SOUGHT

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Arlington County and Alexandria have petitioned Gov. John G. Pollard to request Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd to step first on Virginia soil on his return to the United States from the South Pole.

Meeting yesterday in the Boulevard Bakery, at Clarendon, the committee composed of prominent citizens from Alexandria City and Arlington County, headed by Gardner L. Boothe, of Alexandria, president of the First National Bank, and including Hugh Lee Kirby, of Arlington County, president of the Wyoming and Montana Railway; William P. Ames, secretary of the Murphy & Ames Lumber Co., Arlington County; William W. Rucker, of Falls Church, manager of Murphy & Ames plant; A. B. Honts, cashier of the People's State Bank of Cherrydale; Robert S. Jones, Mayor of Alexandria; Fred C. Goodnow, president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce; Carroll Pierce, president of the Citizens National Bank at Alexandria; George E. Warfield, vice president of the First National Bank of Alexandria; Mrs. Osceola F. Stafford, president of the Boulevard Bakery; John E. Fowler, president of the Arlington Trust Co. at Rosslyn; William S. Hoge, jr., member of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce; James L. Stafford, treasurer of the Boulevard Bakery; Henry C. Morris, vice president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce; H. Serkowich, secretary of the Boulevard Bakery, adopted the following resolution:

"Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd is a native son of Virginia. We believe his brilliant achievement in behalf of science, his death-defying flight across the South Pole, the mapping of 280,000 square miles of hitherto unmapped country, the naming of the Marie Byrd and Rockefeller Mountains, his scientific exploration of those vast frozen regions of the top of the world, his successful flight across the North Pole, and his distinguished service to aviation by successfully flying across the Atlantic Ocean, thereby bringing honor and glory to the air service of the United States Navy, entitles him to have his name enshrined among the illustrious sons of Virginia."

The resolution further points out that: "It is both fitting and proper that the Governor of Virginia be requested to immediately dispatch a radio message to Rear Admiral Byrd, on board the steamer City of New York, in the harbor of Dunedin, New Zealand, and invite him to land first in America on Virginia soil, at Norfolk, that he may receive the acclaim from his native State first."

The committee in its resolution further asks that the governor call upon all of Admiral Byrd's neighbors and friends in the State of Virginia and elsewhere to send a personal radiogram, care of the City of New York, DDunedin, New Zealand, and urge the amiral to honor his home State by landing on Virginia soil first on his return.

The governor is further requested to ask the President of the United States to detail a convoy of naval vessels to meet the City of New York at sea and escort the expedition to the City of Norfolk, and that the governor be requested to appoint additional members to this committee, or appoint other committees in order that every section of the State be represented in making this invitation to Admiral Byrd a unanimous invitation from his fellow citizens of the State of Virginia.

The resolution which goes forth today to Gov. Pollard further requests that he issue a proclamation declaring the day Richard Evelyn Byrd lands in Virginia a public holiday in order that all of the people of the State shall have an opportunity to join in this public acclaim and help celebrate the achievements of a distinguished citizen of Virginia.

Chairman Booth, following the passage of the resolution, said: "We propose to call upon Mayor James Walker of New York and Grover C. Whelan, chairman of the mayor's committee on receptions to distinguished visitors to the Port of New York, to acquiesce in the resolution asking that Admiral Byrd and distinguished crew step first on Virginia soil on their return to the United States, instead of New York City."

It is the purpose of this committee, according to expressions made during the meeting, to call upon all organizations, both in Arlington County and Alexandria City, to call upon the governor to act in accordance with the resolution.

The matter will be taken up today by the Arlington County Monarch Club and the Arlington Rotary Club for their indorsement.

The Kiwanis Club of Alexandria and the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce will take appropriate action on the resolution, according to a statement issued yesterday by Fred C. Goodnow, president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce.

In a resolution adopted by the Aurora Hills Civic League at its meeting last night the county board of supervisors are asked to construct permanent streets through the original Aurora Hills section. It is pointed out that the streets in this section have long since been taken over by the county for maintenance, but have never been given any attention by the county authorities.

It is the consensus of the members attending the meeting that Washington avenue at least should have a curb and an asphalt center and that the other streets be given a permanent treatment.

It was further pointed out by many members that at least a portion of the $500,000 received from Alexandria should be spent in the Aurora Hills section.

The president, John C. Gall, was instructed to write the county board of supervisors concerning the resolution pertaining to street improvements.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club. President Dr. Richard N. Sutton will preside.

The Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., held its ninth annual banquet last night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon with more than 200 persons attending.

The invocation was given by the Rev. J. H. Linger, Emery N. Hoamer acting as the toastmaster. The address of welcome was delivered by the noble grand, Dr. Norbert Molnick.

Among the speakers were Elmer Cummings, grand master of Odd Fellows of the District of Columbia; State Senator Frank L. Ball; Mrs. Sudie Mitchell, noble grand of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge; Frederick Flynn, of Alexandria, grand warden of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows in Virginia; Mrs. Windsor, president of the Rebekah Assembly of the District of Columbia; Mrs. Emily Upson, of Richmond, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Virginia and Mrs. Clara E. Nevin, of Clarendon, past president of the Rebekah Assembly of Virginia.

Music during the evening was furnished by the quartet from Grace Reform Church of the District of Columbia. A number of vocal solos were sung by Miss Sadie Gibson, of Clarendon, with Mrs. Nola Livingston at the piano.

By a vote of 38 to 3, the Lyon Park Garden Club, organized three years ago, changed its name to the Arlington County Garden Club.

Following a short business session, J. G. Smith, of the United States Department of Agriculture, addressed the meeting on the proper methods of preparing the soil for the spring garden.

The meeting was held in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in the Rees Building at Clarendon. J. C. Schuster presided.

President D. W. Leary announces a special called meeting of the Aurora Heights Citizens Association to be held tomorrow night at the James Monroe School house at 8 o'clock.

Needs for the expanding the activities of the association will be the principal topic of discussion at this meeting, President Leary announces.

Among the projects to be discussed will be the proposed school bond issue, the needs for a modern sewerage system in the county, the extension of the water system and needed improvements to the roads of the county.

DECLINE IN VIRGINIA GRAIN STOCK NOTED

Corn on Hand Reported 42 Per Cent of Last Year's Production.

WHEAT ALSO OFF SOME

Richmond, Va., March 12 (A.P.).—Grain stocks on Virginia farms March 1 were slightly below stocks on the same date last year and also below the five-year average, Henry M. Taylor, agricultural statistician for the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, announced here tonight.

Corn stocks were reported at 42 per cent of the 1929 production, or 18,538,000 bushels, compared with 18,780,000 bushels last year and 19,595,000 bushels, the average for the previous five years. Most farmers reported sufficient corn to last until the new crop is available.

Only a small part of the Virginia corn crop is shipped, as in most sections all the crop is used for feeding live stock. Growers reported that only 6 per cent of the 1929 crop was shipped out of the county where grown, the same percentage as reported last year but slightly below the ten-year average, which is 8 per cent.

The principal sections of the State in which a surplus of corn is produced are the northern counties and the Rappahannock and James River Valleys.

Stocks of wheat on Virginia farms March 1 were reported to be 1,971,000 bushels, or 22 per cent of the 1929 crop, while a year ago stocks were reported to be 2,147,000 bushels and the five-year average is 2,260,000 bushels. Although the same percentage was reported on farms this year as last year, stocks were lower due to the smaller production in 1929.

Approximately 22 per cent of the 1929 wheat crop was shipped out of the county where grown, while 24 per cent of the 1928 crop was reported shipped. Most of the surplus wheat is produced in the Shenandoah and Rappahannock Valleys, with Augusta and Rockingham Counties leading.

Stocks of other grains on Virginia farms as a percentage of the 1929 and 1928 production were reported as follows: Oats, 20 and 23 per cent; barley, 12 and 11; rye, 12 and 12. Only a small percentage of these crops is sold, as most of the production is fed on farms where grown.

Milk Increase Fails.

Milk production failed to show the seasonal increase during February, and the average production per cow on March 1 was reported to be 9.7 pounds, compared with 11.2 pounds a year ago and 10.3 pounds on February 1. Only 59 per cent of cows on farms were being milked on March 1, while last year 64 per cent were being milked.

Egg production increased considerably during February and the average reported on March 1 was 42 eggs per farm, compared with 23 on February 1 and 39 on March 1 last year. This is the highest March average since 1927, when an average of 46 eggs per farm was reported. The number of hens and pullets of laying age averaged 91 per farm this year, compared with 88 per farm a year ago.

Fewer Teachers For Loudoun Seen

County Board to Consider Per Pupil Cost of Instruction.

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., March 12.—The employment of fewer teachers in Loudoun County for the next school session will be considered by the school board at its meeting on March 18, it was decided at a special meeting of the board held at the Lincoln High School today.

The attention of the school board was called to the conditions that the per pupil cost of teachers' salaries was higher in Loudoun in 1928-29 than in any other county in Virginia, although salaries are higher in eight other counties, and the enrollment and average daily attendance of pupils for each teacher is less in Loudoun than the average for Virginia. Upon the recommendations of the survey committee, it was decided to consider at the meeting next Tuesday the matter of employing fewer teachers and averaging a larger number of pupils to each teacher.

At the meeting next Tuesday the principals of schools of three or more rooms will be elected, and the school budget for 1930-31 will be considered and adopted.

Huntsberry Named Head Of Winchester Elks

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 12.—Walter E. Huntsberry, local business man, has been elected exalted ruler of Winchester Lodge, No. 867, B. P. O. Elks, succeeding C. R. Grubbs, who held the office the last year. Others elected were: Lawrence C. Hollis, leading knight; Warren Eddy, loyal Knight; Harry W. Butler, lecturing knight; Ralph Pifer, treasurer; Edwin T. Snider, secretary; William Maskell, tiler, and C. R. Grubbs and Lee Lamp, trustees for a new term.

The local lodge of Elks owns and occupies the building at Braddock and Piccadilly streets, from which Gen. Phil Sheridan started on his dashing ride to Cedar Creek during the Civil War, when his army was being routed by Confederate forces under Gen. Early.

Purchase of Church Site For Postoffice Refused

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., March 12.—The city council here has declined to purchase the old Westminster Presbyterian Church, now owned by J. B. Trent, for $67,500 and present it to the Government as a part of the site for the new postoffice.

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and retail merchants urged the council to buy the property on proviso that the Government would buy the News-Advance and Smith Buildings and add the three to the site for the Government building, shortly to be let to contract. The council defeated the proposal by a vote of 4 to 3 and probably killed the effort to secure for the new postoffice a half-block site.

DEMOCRATS MEET BEFORE ELECTION

MANY ARE IN CONTESTS

Richmond, Va., March 12 (A.P.).—March brings breezes and politics to the Old Dominion this year.

While the General Assembly session was productive of a few political announcements, interest is now centered in the Democratic convention of the "Fighting Ninth" District, called to meet at Bristol on March 20 to nominate a Democrat to oppose Representative Joseph C. Shaffer (Republican), of Wytheville. United States Senator Alben William Barkley, of Kentucky, has been selected to deliver the keynote address.

In the Second and Seventh Congressional Districts, now represented by Republicans, Democratic opposition has been assured. With the Democratic primary intervening, however, attention for the present is centered in the intraparty contests. A warm primary contest is also brewing in the Eighth District, where Representative R. Walton Moore, a Democrat, has announced he will not seek reelection.

Delegates Are Selected.

Ninth District Democrats are selecting delegates this week to the convention, and many leading citizens are being mentioned for the Democratic nomination for representative. The Ninth is the only district to nominate by convention in so far as the Democratic party is concerned. Among those mentioned for the nomination in the Ninth are John W. Flannagan, of Bristol; Senator S. J. Thompson, of Pounding Mill; R. S. Graham, of Norton; M. L. Harrison, delegate from Wythe; former Judge R. R. Parker, of Appalachia; Judge A. C. Buchanan, of Tazewell, and Senator A. E. Shumate, of Giles.

Ninth district State officials will attend the Bristol convention, including State Comptroller E. R. Combs, Corporation Judge George C. Peery and Motor Vehicle Commissioner T. McCall Frazier, E. C. Carrico, of Wise, a district chairman, and Mrs. Howard Gilmer, of Pulaski, is district secretary.

Representative Menalcus Lankford, Republican, has already been indorsed by Republicans of the Second District. Three Democrats have announced for the honor of opposing him in the general election and several others have been mentioned as probable candidates in the Democratic primary. Those who have announced are Joseph T. Deal, former representative; Wilson W. Vellines, member of the House of Delegates, and Mrs. Sarah Lee Fain, a former member of the House of Delegates.

Three-Cornered Contest.

In the Eighth there is a three-cornered Democratic contest, with Judge Howard Smith, of Alexandria; Senator Frank L. Ball and Capt. Crandall Mackey as candidates. Capt. Mackey favors "any reasonable amendment of the Volstead law that will enable the government to enforce prohibition," he said in his announcement.

In the Seventh District, now represented by Jacob A. Garber, Republican; Judge John W. Fishburne, of the Eighth Judicial Circuit, has announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Senator N. B. Early, of Ruckersville, who offered for the nomination, has withdrawn and thrown his support to Judge Fishburne.

With no announced opposition to United States Senator Carter Glass, of Lynchburg, either within or without the party, interest has been centered largely on the congressional contests. Democrats, encouraged by the 1929 victory in the State elections, will make a vigorous effort to return ten Democratic representatives, according to J. Murray Hooker, State Democratic chairman.

Agent, Attorney Clash Over Trial

Detective's "Bloodhound" Nose Is Decried by Defense Lawyer.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 12.—A clash between Prohibition Agent Nathaniel Bowers and J. Philip Roman, attorney, marked a hearing before United States Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson late yesterday which resulted in Charles Whitman, cigar store proprietor being dismissed from a possession charge, while Robert Beal and Frank Whitman were held under $500 each on that charge.

It was testified that in the raid made on the Whitman store on a search warrant, no liquor was found in the place, but that the pockets of Beal and Frank Whitman each yielded a pint of liquor. Attorney Roman contended the agents had a search warrant for the store and had no right to search the customers in the place.

The clash followed the testimony of Bowers that he detected the odor of liquor in an empty glass in the place. Bowers resented in strong language the appellation of "bloodhound" he thought Roman made, while Roman said he used the term "bloodhound nose." Commissioner Anderson reprimanded Bower for using unbecoming language in the presence of two women in the commissioner's office. Both men apologized to the commissioner.

ARGUMENTS ENLIVEN CHAMBER MEETING

SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

The meeting of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, which was held in Dunham Hall, in Lewinsville, near McLean, Tuesday evening, was marked by several heated debates.

Thomas R. Keith, chairman of the committee on hydroelectric power development, reported that the bill to create the Virginia Potomac River Commission, drawn by him in accordance with the action of the chamber, is now a law, and the only question that presents itself is selection of the personnel of that commission. In regard to the Cramton bill he stated that his committee would welcome any expression or action that was not antagonistic to the rights and interests of Fairfax County, and that this bill involved so many different rights and conditions that it should be investigated from all angles.

The chamber voted to urge Gov. John G. Pollard to appoint Mr. Keith as a member of the Potomac River Commission and appointed a committee consisting of C. H. Powell, Martin Webb and John Rooney to visit the governor and present this recommendation in person.

Rene Samson, secretary of the Langley Citizens Association, spoke on the necessity of regulations for zoning the highways of Fairfax County. During the discussion that followed, Frank Lyon referred to the many garages with their wrecked and junk cars dotting the landscape and said that zoning is one of the most important problems that the county has to face in its future development and that now is the time to take the proper action. It was also brought out that the chamber in this county should take the initiative, as was done by the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in that county.

A committee consisting of F. S. McCandlish, of Fairfax; Frank Lyon and John Mackall was appointed to investigate State laws in regard to zoning and to study the terms of the Ball bill which passed the State Legislature, creating a Northern Virginia Park and Planning Commission.

R. E. Kendrick, of Falls Church, as spokesman for approximately 1,000 men and women members of the volunteer fire departments and auxiliaries in Fairfax County, thanked the chamber for its assistance in securing the appropriation of $4,500 for county-wide fire protection placed in the county budget for next year. At the suggestion of Robert R. Buckley the chamber voted to thank the volunteer fire companies of Fairfax, Arlington and Prince William Counties for their work at Clifton last Sunday when they practically saved the entire town from destruction.

The most spirited discussion of the evening arose in connection with the resolution to indorse the action of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors in recommending that the State Highway Commission take into the State system the Leesburg pike from Tysons Cross Roads to Alexandria, in Falls Church district; 3 miles of road on the lower end of Ox road toward Occoquan, in Lee district, and the road from Penn Daw Hotel to the Little River turnpike, by Pullman's Store, in Mount Vernon district, as Fairfax County's share of the additional mileage adopted by the legislature. George F. Harrison, of Herndon, led the fight in opposition to the resolution, stating that Dranesville district had never received a fair share of State aid and that he felt a portion of this mileage should be used in that district.

Martin Webb, of Annandale, stated that Columbia pike seemed to be the most logical road to take into the State system, as he understood that there was a movement started in Arlington County to have that road included. The question was finally put to a vote and the recommendation of the board of supervisors to the State highway department was indorsed.

Capt. Thurlow White, of Baileys Crossroads; Mrs. Margaret C. Vosbury, of Merrifield, and Arthur Buell, of Herndon, were appointed to investigate the possibility of having the proposed State university for women located on the Willard estate in Fairfax.

It was reported that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, which is preparing to erect a gasoline station facing the courthouse, has agreed to alter construction plans to comply with the request of the chamber.

George F. Harrison, chairman of the chamber's highway committee, reported that his committee, in cooperation with county officials, had sent a delegation to Richmond to interview the Governor and State highway commission and representatives in the State Legislature in regard to extending the proposed road at Mount Vernon Plaza about 2 miles southwest to the Washington-Richmond highway. A free right of way 80 feet wide has already been secured, and this would allow persons traveling through the county to visit Mount Vernon and continue their journey without having to return over the same road. The committee asked that this road be completed by 1932 and not to affect the county's road mileage quota.

The chamber's next meeting will be held at Franconia on April 18. Twenty-two new members were accepted at Tuesday's meeting.

The special meeting of the Fairfax County School Board to inspect schools in Mount Vernon district will convene in Fairfax this morning. The board will leave Fairfax for its tour about 10 o'clock, going to Springfield and from there will first visit Franconia School and inspect the two sites that have been selected tentatively for a new school building there. From Franconia the board will visit Cameron Run, Belle Haven, Snowden, Woodlawn, Potters Hill, Fort Humphreys, Lebanon and Groveton Schools in the order named.

The need of increased grade school facilities, the possibilities of consolidation and the demand for a high school will be considered in conjunction with the effect on the different communities of the Federal Government's road-building program in Mount Vernon district will be studied by the board.

The Great Falls Grange will hold a square dance tonight in the Grange Hall at Forestville. The permanent dance committee will be in charge of arrangements.

The Ladies Guild of the Old Falls Church, at Falls Church, will hold their meeting today at the home of Mrs. Lee Hiett.

Mrs. H. H. Hill has been reelected president of the Ladies Aid Society of the Chesterbrook Methodist Church. Mrs. Edward Heath was elected vice president. Mrs. James Byrnes, secretary, and Mrs. Guy Beall, treasurer. The society plans to hold a penny cafeteria supper in the basement of the church next Thursday, March 20. Mrs. Hill was appointed chairman of the committee on arrangements. A social will be held following the supper.

MOTHER FIGHTING WILL ELKINS LEFT

TIME WAS NEAR GONE

Charging that her son, Stephen B. Elkins, who died in New York City, October 24, was ill at the time he made his last will and a codicil, and that he was unduly influenced by Mrs. Evelyn I. Martin, of New York, a beneficiary under the will and the codicil, Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins, the mother, yesterday applied to the District of Columbia Supreme Court for the revocation of the probate of the will.

The will and the codicil were filed for probate December 13, last. Under the law a caveat must be filed within three months, and the mother did not file the contest until the last moment.

Mr. Elkins, the son of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia, left the bulk of his estate to his brother, Davis Elkins, who also is executor. Mrs. Martin, under the will, is left a life annuity of $1,000, and by the codicil is to receive a Virginia fishing lodge valued at $30,000, and the New York City apartment of the deceased with all its contents except the paintings.

The value of the estate, including the Virginia fishing lodge, is in the neighborhood of $150,000. The will was executed on January 28, 1928, while the codicil bears the date of October 10, 1929, ten days before Mr. Elkins' death.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr yesterday stated that he had received many calls, during the past few weeks, from farmers in the county asking for assistance in tobacco growing and that he has endeavored to persuade them from doing up this work. Agent Derr communicated with T. B. Hutchison, an agronomist connected with the Agricultural College at Blacksburg, Va., and a specialist on tobacco raising, in regard to these requests and received the following reply: "I regret to hear that your farmers are seriously considering going into the tobacco business. I think this is a serious mistake, as I do not know of a tobacco section which has been permanently prosperous. Burley tobacco dropped 6 cents last year and I expect it will drop 6 cents this year. Both bright and dark shipping tobacco have been largely overproduced for years. I would advise the farmers that they leave tobacco strictly alone."

Agent Derr has also written the Maryland Experiment Station as to their opinion on this matter and in regard to the Maryland aircured type of tobacco as to its being adaptable to the soil of Fairfax County and to the practicability of raising tobacco in this county.

The members of the Future Farmers of Virginia class at the Floris Vocational School, at Floris, will hold a father and son banquet in the auditorium of the school tonight. Divisional superintendent of schools, Wilbert T. Woodson, and other prominent speakers will address the gathering.

Deputy County Clerk Elton R. Holbrooke announced yesterday that in accordance with the provisions of the new law that passed the last session of the State Legislature in regard to game and inland fisheries, the county will no longer pay bounties for predatory birds and animals. Heretofore, persons have brought the scalps of hawks, crows, weasels, and other such animals into the county clerk's office to receive the bounty and when several scalps were left in the office they soon became a nuisance.

The meeting night of the Baileys Cross Roads Community League was changed from last night to tonight so as not to conflict with the Lenten services that are held each Wednesday evening in St. Paul's Chapel, at Baileys Cross Roads.

The Parent-Teacher Association at Lincolnia will hold its regular meeting tonight in the auditorium of the school there.

The regular inspection of the Annandale Boy Scout Troop will be made this evening by the troop committee.

The Mount Vernon Circle of Kings Daughters will hold its March meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. William King, in George Washington Park, Alexandria.

Mrs. Barbara Elizabeth Kendall Silman, of Fairfax, the widow of James A. Silman, died at her home in Fairfax, Tuesday evening. She was 86 years old and had lived in this county most of her life, coming here from Warren County, Va. She is survived by two children, Mrs. Charles Broadwater, of Fairfax, and a son, Bert Silman, of Washington, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at the home, by the Rev. S. Y. Craig, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Fairfax Cemetery.

Woman Sentenced In Slaying Case

Mrs. Glennie Lou Tomlin Found Guilty in Death of Neighbor.

Amherst, Va., March 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Glennie Lou Tomlin, 25, today was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to serve five years in the State prison in connection with the fatal cutting of Mrs. Bessie Tomlin, a distant relative, on January 26. The verdict was returned late this afternoon by an Amherst County jury in the Circuit Court here after 1 hour and 40 minutes of deliberation.

A motion by W. K. Allen, counsel for the defense, to have the verdict set aside as contrary to the law and evidence, was overruled, but the defendant was allowed liberty under bond until the second day of the June term of court, to allow opportunity to perfect an appeal.

The fatal cutting occurred on a mountain highway between the home of the two women, two days after an alleged domestic argument. The defendant contended she slashed Mrs. Bessie Tomlin in self-defense and did not realize the seriousness of the wounds until the woman was found in the road bleeding to death.

$75 FINE IMPOSED FOR GAMING DEVICE

TOWN GROUPS TO CONFER

Thomas Avaunt, proprietor of a barbecue stand at Colmar Manor, on the Baltimore boulevard, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of setting up and maintaining a gambling device when arraigned before Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court. The judge imposed a fine of $75.

Avaunt was arrested by Deputy Sheriff L. E. Dutlow, who testified that he had played slot machines in Avaunt's establishment. Six slot machines were presented in evidence and were ordered destroyed by the judge. Deputy Sheriff Dutrow said that he dropped into the barbeque stand and saw a young woman playing the machines.

Avaunt was represented by Attorney John S. White.

Anthony E. Oliveri, Kennedy street near Thirteenth street northwest, was fined a total of $101 on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated and reckless driving. He was arrested by Maryland State Policeman C. W. Cubbage.

Representatives of the town councils of the towns in the Metropolitan District of Prince Georges County will meet tonight at the Town Hall in Mount Rainier to complete the organization of the Municipal Officers' Association of the Metropolitan District, Prince Georges County.

The organization is being formed to provide a means for better cooperation and to promote the general welfare of the 12 towns in the suburban area. A constitution has been drawn by the corporation counsels of the five towns which had representatives at the first meeting several weeks ago when the towns decided upon the formation of the association. The name given the organization is tentative and will be voted upon at the same time the constitution is conned tonight.

The tentative constitution provides that every elective officer and every town clerk, treasurer and attorney of any incorporated town in the metropolitan district shall become a member of the association upon the payment of annual dues by their respective towns. The dues tentatively decided upon was $10 per town annually.

It is further provided that all members from each individual town shall vote collectively, the town having one vote in the meetings of the association. Meetings are to be held each second Thursday, meeting in rotation at the various member towns.

The corporation counsels who framed the constitution are: Bird H. Dolby, Mount Rainier; Waldo Burnside, Hyattsville; John N. Torvestad, Colmar Manor; N. P. Rasmussen, Cottage City, and E. W. Baker, of Brentwood. Attorney Dolby is temporary chairman and probably will be elected to that office permanently tonight as well as E. W. Baker temporary secretary.

Sheriff Slaying Trial Due to Open Monday

Greenville, S. C., March 12 (A.P.).—Solicitor J. G. Leatherwood announced today he would call the case of former Sheriff Carlos A. Rector and former Deputy J. Harmon Moore, charged with the murder of Sheriff Sam D. Willis, next Monday. Blair Rooks, Negro, who is named in the indictment with the two men, probably will not be tried with them, the solicitor said.

The announcement was made today after a conference between prosecution and defense attorneys. The defense attorneys gave notice they were not waiving any legal rights which make it possible to move for a continuance.

ALEXANDRIA GROUP PLANS 1930 EVENT

Business Women's Club to Give Annual Dinner This Evening.

W. R. HANSBURY BURIED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Plans have been completed by the local Business and Professional Women's Club for their annual public relations dinner which will be given at the George Mason Hotel at 6:45 o'clock this evening, when Miss Helen Havener, of New York, national publicity chairman and editor of the national magazine, Independent Women, will be the principal speaker. Other guests will be the heads of various local civic organizations, and it is expected the dinner will be attended by a large number of club members and their friends. Miss Catherine Johnson is in charge of the entertainment program, and it is understood a number of novel features will be introduced.

At the club meeting Tuesday night Mrs. Lillie Cunningham was appointed a committee of one to represent the club and to confer with the Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, American Legion and Cameron Club on the continuance of local Boy Scout work.

Mrs. Mary Troth, club president, reported the selection of a room in Gadsby's Tavern for the use of the club, which will assume the work of restoring the furnishings of the room in keeping with the colonial period. Several other organizations are to be assigned rooms in this historic building, each of which will install appropriate furnishings.

Miss Ellen Fawcett, Miss Rose Peake and Mrs. Charles A. Strauss were elected members of a nominating committee to present the names of nominees for officers at the April meeting of the club.

A number of complaints are being received from motorists regarding the condition of the streets and roads leading into Alexandria, which are said to be in worse condition than they have been for years. Particular complaint is being made of the condition of what is known as the lower river road, the portion of which north of the entrance to Potomac Yards having many deep and dangerous holes.

This particular road, which became a city street of Alexandria upon the annexation of additional territory January 1, was the bone of contention between the Alexandria City officials and the State highway commission recently, in which contention the highway commission emerged a victor. The commission, early in 1929, allocated $80,000 for the improvement of the road from a point near the Highway Bridge to the city limits of Alexandria, the money to become available after July 1. For reasons unknown to Alexandrians, the work was not started, nor was a contract let, until late in 1929, when it was announced that a contract had been awarded for the improvement of the road from the point near the Highway Bridge to the new city limits of Alexandria, at Four Mile Run, a distance of 2 miles, or just one-half the distance to the old city limits. The amount of this contract was approximately $79,000, or practically the whole amount which was to have been expended on the 4 miles of roadway.

This left Alexandria with 2 miles of what had formerly been a State highway, a concrete road, which it is at least morally obligated to improve on a scale commensurate with the expensive construction being employed by the highway commission. Since there is no provision in the current budget for this work, all that has been done in the way of maintenance has been the placing of a few temporary patches, which have had little effect in checking the deterioration of the road.

At the beginning of the highway commission's construction work, this lower road was closed, and traffic detoured through Potomac and the upper or Mount Vernon highway to Washington. Here a condition similar to that on the lower road is found, since Arlington County built an expensive road to the new city limits at Four Mile Run, and the southern end of the roadway, about a mile, leading into Potomac, which is now also a responsibility of Alexandria, is in poor condition and rapidly becoming worse. It is understood some repair work will be done on this road before it is again closed to permit the pouring of concrete on the new section of the river road.

The board of directors of the Northern Virginia Hotel Association, owning the George Mason Hotel, took under advisement yesterday an application from Radio Station WJSV, owned by the Independent Publishing Co., for the rental of a suite of rooms in the hotel to be used as a broadcasting station. The station has been invited by the local chamber of commerce to establish its studio in Alexandria, and in the event that the hotel is unable to accommodate it, F. C. Goodnow, president of the chamber of commerce, stated yesterday that he has secured a site for the studio which will be acceptable to the operators. C. Page Waller, president of the hotel company, stated that the board of directors would reach a decision within a few days.

The city forces were at work yesterday opening Montgomery street from Lee street to the river front, to connect with the regrading and widening of Montgomery street from Fairfax to Lee street by the Shell Eastern Petroleum Products Co., which is constructing a large bulk oil storage plant in that vicinity.

The oil company found it necessary to lower the grade of Montgomery street, and the city then decided to open the street through to the river. The street will be given a temporary surfacing of cinders and probably will be hard surfaced later on.

Funeral services for Daniel R. Stansbury, prominent business man and past grand master of Odd Fellows in Virginia, were held yesterday from the residence, 207 North Columbus street, the Rev. Ernest M. Delany, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, officiating. Services at the grave, in Bethel Cemetery, were conducted by grand lodge officers of Virginia Odd Fellows, with Grand Master Thomas B. Morton, of Richmond, in charge.

Pallbearers were William H. Melchior, Alfred Thomson and J. F. Elmore, of the Second Presbyterian Church; W. L. Martin, C. Raymond Gaines and Harry F. Kennedy representing local Odd
